Marin Reaction To Resignation

After more than two years of watching the Watergate drama unfold, most Marin and Southern Sonoma residents seemed relieved by Richard M. Nixon's decision to resign as President.

Thirty-three persons, chosen at random from the phone book and interviewed by telephone by Independent-Journal reports, had varying reactions, mostly anti-Nixon, and ranging from jubilation to sorrow and anger.

Nixon had few supporters among those interviewed but they were still standing firmly behind him, believing he had been only a victim in the Watergate scandals.

"He should have done it sooner," said a Petaluma man in what was a much more typical comment.

Many of the citizens were not convinced that the resignation was enough; they thought Nixon should face prosecution and said the impeachment process should continue, no matter what.

Asked: "What is your reaction to the resignation of the president?" they replied thus:

Neal Aberman, 32, interior decorator, 620 Eucalyptus Way, Tamalpais Valley: "I'm glad he's getting out of office. I would have preferred to see him impeached. He deserves to be prosecuted. But I'm not pleased with the prospect of having Jerry Ford as President."

Mary Donovan, 24, group counselor, 675 Northern Avenue, Tamalpais Valley. "It's about time he did it. It was inevitable."

Lucille Burchfield, over 40, school bus driver and housewife, 5 Mercury Avenue, Tiburon: "I would like to see him impeached anyway and I would also like to see him go to court, the same as Agnew. I don't want my tax money supporting his pension. I work very hard for my money and I don't want it to go towards supporting him in San

Connally Claims Total Innocence

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally Jr. pleaded innocent today to all charges rising out of an allegation he accepted a $10,000 bribe after the controversial 1971 milk price support increase.

"If there is any doubt, I plead not guilty to all counts," Connally said in a firm voice after one of the prosecutors at his arraignment asked whether he had yet entered a plea.

U.S. District Judge George L. Hart Jr. granted a request by Connally's lawyer for 45 days in which to file motions. Hart also agreed not to set a trial date until after the motions are filed.

Ford Assumes Presidency Promising To Do His Best

Asks For A Return Of Brotherly Love

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gerald R. Ford assumed the American presidency today, saying "our long national nightmare" of Watergate is over and asking the nation to "let brotherly love come to our country."

Ford, 61, took the oath of office from Chief Justice Warren E. Burger while Richard M. Nixon —who resigned the presidency when it became apparent he would otherwise be removed through impeachment —flew home to his native west in an Air Force plane.

Ford told the nation in a brief, simple televised address from the East Room of the White House that he was "acutely aware" of his status of the nation's first chief executive never to have been elected on a national ballot.

He pledged that as president he would be what he had always been —a plainspoken politician. He was surrounded by old friends in Congress, where he has often said he had many adversaries but no enemies.

"My fellow Americans," Ford said in reference to the scandal that caused Nixon to become the first president to renounce his office, "our long national nightmare is over. Our Constitution works.

"But there is a Higher Power, by whatever name we honor Him, who ordains not only righteousness but love, not only justice but mercy.

"As we bind up the internal wounds of Watergate, more painful and more poisonous than those of foreign wars, let us restore the Golden Rule to our political process, and let brotherly love purge our hearts of suspicion and hate."

On a steamy Washington day, thousands of tourists stood in silence outside the White House gates while the short ceremony took place within.

Nixon caused his letter of resignation to be delivered to the constitutional officer designated to receive it, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, about 30 minutes before the oath was administered. Nixon's letter said:

"Dear Mr. Secretary:

"I hereby resign the office of President of the United States.

"Sincerely,

"Richard M. Nixon."

Ford said, "In the beginning, I asked you to pray for me. Before closing, I ask again for your prayers —for Richard Nixon and for his family. May our former President who brought peace to millions find it for himself." Ford lauded Nixon's family, "whose love and loyalty will forever be a shining legacy to all who bear the lonely burdens of the White House."

Ford pledged to "do the very best I can for America" and said he would use "all the strength and all the good sense I have gained from life, with all the confidence of my family,

Nixon's Choked Goodbye

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon choked back tears in an emotional goodby to his staff, and in effect to his country, then left the White House today for the trip back to a life as private citizen in California.

"We leave with high hopes, in good spirit, and with deep humility and with very much gratefulness in our hearts," Nixon said to his staff and Cabinet on national television. "I can only say to each and every one of you, we come from many faiths, we pray perhaps to different gods, but really to the same god in a sense.

"But I want to say to each and every one of you, not only will we always remember you, not only will we always be grateful to you, always you will be in our hearts, and you will be in our prayers.

"Thank you very much."

The emotion-packed goodby ceremony was held in the East Room of the White House — called a "great house" by Nixon. He and his family were greeted with a trumpeted "Hail To The Chief," and five minutes of continuous applause.

The farewell left Nixon close to tears and many of his staff members openly crying.

Nixon and his wife then walked directly to the south lawn and, with his successor Gerald R. Ford bidding them goodbye, went by helicopter to Andrews AFB where they left at 10:17 a.m. EDT in the presidential jet, Spirit of '76, for the flight to San Clemente.

Nixon, who announced last night he was resigning, was accompanied by some of his staff and his daughter and son-in-law, Tricia and Edward Cox. His other daughter and son-in-law, Julie and David Eisenhower, stayed behind, weeping openly as they waved goodbye to the departing helicopter.

In his farewall speech to Cabinet members and White House aides, Nixon acknowledged as he did in his resignation speech that some mistakes were made during his stay in the White House.

"Sure we have done some things wrong in this administration, and the top man always takes the responsibility, and I've never ducked it," Nixon said. "But ... no man and no woman came into this administration and left it with more than he came in. No man or woman ever profited at the public expense or the public till.

"Mistakes, yes, but not for personal gain, ever. You did what you believed in, sometimes right, sometimes wrong."

Nixon tried to make the occasion light at times, once joking about his taxes, and once made a gentle jab at the press. But what came over was deep emotion. Nixon's voice cracked several times and he at points had to choke back tears.

"Greatness comes not when things are always good for us," Nixon said. "But greatness comess when you take some knocks and disappointment.

"Only when you have been in the deepest valley can you know how it is to be on the highest mountain."

"We think that when we lose elections, when we suffer defeat, all is ended, we think 'the light left life forever.'" he said. "Not true, it is only a beginning."

After his final words, Nixon

Cotati Council Accepts Members' Resignations

By JEFF GREER

Cotati city councilmen voted 3-to-0 last night to accept the resignation of Mayor Stephen Laughlin and Councilman Annette Lombardi, allegedly caught early Wednesday removing marijuana plants from the Cotati police evidence locker.

Both audience and councilmen at the hour-long, low-key special council meeting said they wished the two officials could remain on the council. But they bowed to Councilman Geoffrey Dunham's report that Laughlin and Miss Lombardi "fell they cannot continue" in office.

The council said it will fill the vacancies by appointment within 30 days as required by state law. Mayor pro tem Harry Fassio said application forms will be available from City Mgr. Robert A. Switzer.

The door was left open, however, to call a special election.

The council agreed to discuss appointment or election as alternatives at its Aug. 20 meeting.

Although called as a closed session, last night's meeting was attended by about 100 persons, mostly younger residents who had supported Miss Lombardi, Laughlin and Dunham in their upset election victory two years ago and defeated a recall attempt last fall.

Fassio agreed to permit audience comment, and the meeting wound up being entirely open except for a seven-minute session during which councilmen discussed but took no action on their problem, choosing instead to do it all publicly.

One audience member, William Paine, a teacher at Sonoma State College, sought at length, but vainly, to get someone on the council to declare officially the reasons Laughlin and Miss Lombardi resigned. He also asked that the two appear at the council meeting, since at that time they still were officially council members.

Dunham replied that the at-

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Hiss Sees 'New Era Of Justice'

VENCE, France (UPI) — Alger Hiss said today President Nixon's resignation "can be the beginning of a new era of justice" in the United States.

Hiss

Hiss, a former State Department official, was convicted in 1950 for perjury in connection with a celebrated Communist espionage case after repeated accusations from then-Rep. Richard M. Nixon.

"I would hope that this resignation will not diminish our people's search for truth which should continue without interruption," Hiss said in a statement.

"This can be the beginning of a new era of justice in our country which no one would welcome more than I."

Hiss' statement was read to reporters by a woman who said she was a houseguest along with Hiss, an executive of a New York printing firm, in a home on the Riviera. She refused to give her name.

"Mr. Hiss has been ill for two or three days with a bad chest infection so he can talk to no one. He arrived here on vacation the first of August and will be here another week," she said.

She said to her knowledge Hiss did not listen to Nixon's speech, heard here at 2 a.m.

Kleindienst's Plea

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst has asked a federal bar commission to allow him to continue practicing law despite his guilty plea to a charge of incompletely answering questions posted by a Senate confirmation committee..

In related action, the U.S. District Court for Washington disbarred former White House aide John W. Dean III yesterday for his plea to a felony linked to the Watergate cover-up.

Lawyer Herbert J. Miller represented Kleindienst and told the court disciplinary committee the former attorney general was "a man who has adopted a standard of honorable, honest and ethical conduct for himself." He said the crime which Kleindienst admitted as not serious enough to warrant the penalties of disbarment, suspension or censure.

Catholics Protest

BELFAST (UPI) — Thousands of Roman Catholics spilled into the streets of Belfast today in a noisy demonstration demanding an end to the British government policy of jailing suspected extremists without trial.

Police also reported the body of an unidentified man was dumped on a street in the Fort William district of North Belfast early today. Police had no details of the slaying.

The death raised to 1,055 the number of persons killed in Northern Ireland violence between majority Protestants, minority Catholics and security forces in the past five years.

The Roman Catholic protest was on the anniversary of an Aug. 9, 1971, roundup that marked the start of Britain's policy of indefinitely jailing suspected Catholic and Protestant militants.

Vietnam Alert

SAIGON (UPI) — President Nguyen Van Thieu ordered a military alert across South Vietnam today to combat a possible Communist offensive in response to the resignation of President Nixon.

Military sources said Thieu listened to a live broadcast of Nixon's speech and then called a meeting of the South Vietnam National Security Council at his Independence Palace in Saigon.

Government spokesman Nguyen Quoc Cuong told newsmen he expected North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces to launch heavy attacks to test the reaction of Nixon's successor, Vice President Gerald R. Ford.

Henley Sentenced

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Elmer Wayne Henley, 188, sentenced to 594 years in prison for his part in the bizarre Houston sex and torture murder spree, will be eligible for parole in 15 years.

District Court Judge Preston Dial formally sentenced Henley yesterday, exactly one year from the day police began the grim unearthing of 27 bodies of young men found in unmarked Southeast Texas graves.

The jury that convicted Henley on July 15 set the maximum 99 years for each slaying, but Dial said yesterday that the terms should be stacked rather than served concurrently.

Greeks, Turks Sign Cyprus Peace Accord

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

With a smile and a handshake, Greek and Turkish officers signed an agreement for a demarcation line on Cyprus today but their countries ran into a new deadlock on a permanent political settlement for the strategic Mediterranean island.

Representatives from Britain and the United Nations joined in the signing of the agreement on demarcation of Turkish and Greek Cypriot forces on Cyprus. The details were not disclosed.

But at the larger peace talks in Geneva on the future of the island, the deadlock appeared complete.

In Ankara, Turkish Premier Bulent Ecevit said Turkey will refuse to start talking until Greece first accepts the idea of dividing Cyprus into two separate Greek and Turkish Cypriot regions — a demand rejected again publicly by Clerides.

"It is impossible for us to budge from our demand," Ecevit said, adding Turkey would oppose including Clerides and Turkish Cypriot leader Rauf Denktash in the Geneva peace talks as scheduled tomorrow if Greece rejects the plan.

Clerides reiterated his rejection of that when he flew to Geneva to take part in the talks saying:

"Any solution designed to keep the Greek and Turkish communities apart and separate will not serve the cause of peace in Cyprus."

He said the total withdrawal of Turkish forces "is a prerequisite to peace and security" but being a realist he does not expect Turkey to remove all its troops at one time.

There was no reported fighting in the capital of Nicosia, scene of a heavy outburst yesterday on the "green line" dividing Greek and Turkish communities.

Turkish Col. Nezihi Chakar said the demarcation agreement was "a good basis for final security zones". Asked if the it meant an end to the weeklong advance by Turkish troops on the island, he replied: "Our forces have stopped all forward movement. Any fighting has been behind Turkish lines."

Greek Maj. Evangelos Tsolakis said "every effort" had been made to overcome all problems.

In Nicosia, Cypriot President Glafkos Clerides named a new moderate cabinet yesterday, ousting ministers picked by his predecessor, Nicos Sampson, a guerrilla gunman backing union with Greece.

Turkish and Greek Cypriots swapped fire yesterday morning across the U.N. "green line" dividing Nicosia's two communities, delaying inspections by the negotiators.

Conference delegates said Mavros demanded an immediate cease-fire on the island and threatened to walk out if the fighting keeps on.

Reaction To Resignation

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

America's leaders largely expressed a common theme: Nixon's downfall is a tragedy for him, his family and the country. Now Ford must be given time and support to heal the national wounds.

"My feelings are torn between sadness and faith," said Sen. William Brock, R-Tenn, reflecting the sentiments of many of his countrymen.

The outpouring of support for Ford indicates he will experience at least a brief era of good feeling somewhat like the solidarity of President Johnson with Congress following President Kennedy's assassination.

Leaders of both parties have served with Ford for many years and they expressed the belief that Ford, unlike Nixon, would consult frequently with Congress and would get far better cooperation.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield called Ford "a decent man. He's conservative, but you know where he stands. He'd give consideration to congressional views. He would get exceptional cooperation."

Speaker Carl Albert, who holds the job that Ford once aspired to, noted that President Nixon told him the presidency is a "killer of a job."

"I hope we can make Jerry Ford's job easier for him," Albert said.

"If we unite now behind our new President, giving him our help and our prayers, the republic will emerge from this wrenching experience," said assistant Senate Republican leader Robert P. Griffin.

Both business and labor quickly pledged support.

AFL-CIO President George Meany sent Ford a telegram pledging "all possible support in meeting the grave and serious problems the nation faces," while Charles H. Smith Jr. of Cleveland, chairman of the board of the National Business Federation, pledged "complete cooperation."

While most of the country's leaders looked toward the new Ford administration, their main attention focused on the man who stepped aside to allow him to take the job. Some of the kindest comments came from his deepest political enemies.

"No one draws any particular joy from the sadness of another man," said Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., the man Nixon defeated in the 1972 election.

"I would hope that President Nixon can find some consolation in the successes of his administration that might affect mankind for some time to come," said Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace. "I pray for his peace of mind and that his family might have a long life."

"It was a courageous speech in which he recognized the fact that he had lost credibility with the people. What he has done is in the best interests of the country," said House Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., one of the first congressional leaders to call for Nixon to leave office.

"I am sorry about it both from a personal point of view and what it means to the nation, but it had to come," said Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., one of Nixon's early defenders.

Goldwater met with Nixon Wednesday to tell him his situation in Congress was grim. He said yesterday the "two saddest days of my life have been yesterday and today."

"The President's resignation is clearly in the best interest of the nation," said Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass. "I am sure that Congress and the country will close ranks behind President Ford as America enters a period of nation healing and reconciliation."

Others were not so kind.

Rep. Bella S. Abzug, D-N.Y., an outspoken supporter of impeachment, said constitutional government and the impeachment process had been vindicated by Nixon's resignation.

"The would-be king is gone," she said. "Long live the Presidency."

Rep. Jerome Waldie, D-Calif., a member of the House Judiciary Committee and one of the first to file an impeachment resolution against Nixon, said "I don't like it. I would much prefer him to stay in office and let the machinery continue. He has covered up the cover-up. He has denied us the details."

Rep. Robert McClory of Illinois, second-ranking GOP member of the Judiciary Committee, said, "I am very grateful for that decision. I think the people now will stop and reflect on his great accomplishment as President and he will have a great deal of opportunity to re-establish his stature as world leader."

Other reactions:

California Gov. Ronald Reagan —"It is a personal tragedy for Richard Nixon, who despite these events and his recent revelation, gave so much of himself to his country over the years and who accomplished so much, especially in the area of foreign affairs."

Coretta King, widow of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. —"I feel his resignation is appropriate.... There could be no other result if America was determined to retain its Constitution. It is sad to reflect on the fact that Mr. Nixon leaves office with little sympathy from the black community."

Gov. Malcolm Wilson of New York — "This is a tragic episode in the nation's history, but our country will survive and be stronger for its resolution.... Hopefully history will be charitable in remembering President Nixon's accomplishments rather than his frailties."

New Jersey Gov. Brendan T. Byrne — "The new President must be willing to take extraordinary measures to help this nation overcome the agony of living with a corrupt national adminstration. The selection of a member of the opposing political party to become vice president would be such a measure."

San Francisco Mayor Joseph San Francisco Mayor Joseph N. Alioto — The Nixon administration was "strangled in its own tangled web."

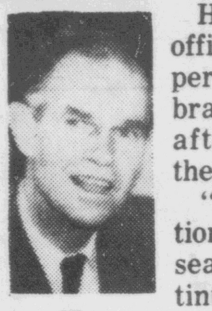
WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Hiss Sees 'New Era Of Justice'

VENCE, France (UPI) — Alger Hiss said today President Nixon's resignation "can be the beginning of a new era of justice" in the United States.



Hiss

Hiss, a former State Department official, was convicted in 1950 for perjury in connection with a celebrated Communist espionage case after repeated accusations from then-Rep. Richard M. Nixon.

"I would hope that this resignation will not diminish our people's search for truth which should continue without interruption," Hiss said in a statement.

"This can be the beginning of a new era of justice in our country which no one would welcome more than I."

Hiss' statement was read to reporters by a woman who said she was a houseguest along with Hiss, an executive of a New York printing firm, in a home on the Riviera. She refused to give her name.

"Mr. Hiss has been ill for two or three days with a bad chest infection so he can talk to no one. He arrived here on vacation the first of August and will be here another week," she said.

She said to her knowledge Hiss did not listen to Nixon's speech, heard here at 2 a.m.

Kleindienst's Plea

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst has asked a federal bar commission to allow him to continue practicing law despite his guilty plea to a charge of incompletely answering questions posted by a Senate confirmation committee..

In related action, the U.S. District Court for Washington disbarred former White House aide John W. Dean III yesterday for his plea to a felony linked to the Watergate cover-up.

Lawyer Herbert J. Miller represented Kleindienst and told the court disciplinary committee the former attorney general was "a man who has adopted a standard of honorable, honest and ethical conduct for himself." He said the crime which Kleindienst admitted as not serious enough to warrant the penalties of disbarment, suspension or censure.

Catholics Protest

BELFAST (UPI) — Thousands of Roman Catholics spilled into the streets of Belfast today in a noisy demonstration demanding an end to the British government policy of jailing suspected extremists without trial.

Police also reported the body of an unidentified man was dumped on a street in the Fort William district of North Belfast early today. Police had no details of the slaying.

The death raised to 1,055 the number of persons killed in Northern Ireland violence between majority Protestants, minority Catholics and security forces in the past five years.

The Roman Catholic protest was on the anniversary of an Aug. 9, 1971, roundup that marked the start of Britain's policy of indefinitely jailing suspected Catholic and Protestant militants.

Vietnam Alert

SAIGON (UPI) — President Nguyen Van Thieu ordered a military alert across South Vietnam today to combat a possible Communist offensive in response to the resignation of President Nixon.

Military sources said Thieu listened to a live broadcast of Nixon's speech and then called a meeting of the South Vietnam National Security Council at his Independence Palace in Saigon.

Government spokesman Nguyen Quoc Cuong told newsmen he expected North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces to launch heavy attacks to test the reaction of Nixon's successor, Vice President Gerald R. Ford.

Presidency Passes To Gerald R. Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The American presidency changed hands today to shed itself of scandal. Richard Nixon resigned to avoid removal from office and Gerald R. Ford, an unsullied and plainspoken Midwesterner assumed power he never sought.

Nothing like this has ever happened before. It amounts to a constitutional coup. It happened suddenly — within five working days after Nixon admitted intimate and early involvement in the Watergate scandal. It came after his last hope of avoiding impeachment and removal from office by Congress had collapsed.

It brought a sense of relief to the people and to Congress and a national feeling of good will toward the President-designate.

Nixon, reelected two years ago carrying 49 states, became the first president to resign. Ford became the 38th president, but the first to assume that office without running on a national ballot.

Like millions of his countrymen, Ford sat in his living room last night and watched Nixon on television somberly announce that he would give up the struggle to retain office.

Then Ford went outside and pledged in his customary simple words that he would try to achieve "what's best for America and the world."

He said Nixon's speech was "one of the very saddest moments that I've ever witnessed."

Hundreds stood outside the black iron fence around the White House while Nixon spoke for 17 minutes, delivering the 38th televised address to the nation of his five year and seven month presidency.

Nixon, tense, somber, a half-smile crossing his face only once, acknowledged his dilemma. His confession Monday had robbed him of his political power and public trust. Still, it was hard to resign.

"I have never been a quitter," he said.

"To leave office before my term is completed is abhorrent to every instinct in my body.

"But as President I must put the interest of America first."

By resigning, he retained the right to collect a $62,500 a year pension and the emoluments of office — free office space, secretarial help, Secret Service protection, the franking privilege and the like.

Nixon's critics had hoped he would spell out his Watergate role in full detail during his speech. He did not. He barely mentioned Watergate.

Ford, as President, will have to face the problem of deciding whether to make certain that Nixon is not prosecuted. After Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski earlier this year had convinced a grand jury that an incumbent president could not be indicted, the jury named Nixon as unindicted co-conspirator.

Nixon's downfall was brought about when he confessed Monday that there had been "omissions" in all his prior Watergate denials. Under compulsion from an 8-0 Supreme Court ruling, he made public three transcripts that showed that six days after the Watergate break-in he issued orders designed to have the CIA obstruct the FBI's investigation.

Nixon's announcement came exactly six years to the day that he stood triumphant before a cheering Republican National Convention in Miami Beach in 1968 and promised "a new day for America." In that acceptance speech, he had said, "America's in trouble today not because her people have failed but because her leaders have failed."

He won election that fall against Hubert H. Humphrey, then vice president, an old political antagonist.

FORD

my friends, and my dedicated staff ... with the good will of countless Americans I have encountered ...

"God helping me, I will not let you down."

Nixon, in a 17-minute speech from a clean desk in the Oval Office —his 37th speech from the White House of his presidency of five years and seven months — said last night he was resigning because he had lost public trust and the confidence of Congress.

He said he had made his share of mistakes as President, but he made only a bare reference to the scandal which forced him to resign rather than go through with an impeachment by the House and a trial by the Senate which politicians closest to him said inevitably would end with his conviction by a two-thirds majority and removal from office in disgrace.

"I am acutely aware that you have not elected me as your President by your ballots," he told Americans. "So I ask you to confirm me as your President with your prayers...

"If you have not chosen me by secret ballot, neither have I gained office by secret promises.

"I have not campaigned either for the presidency or the vice presidency. I have not subscribed to any partisan platform. I am indebted to no man and only to one woman — my dear wife, Betty —as I begin the most difficult job in the world."

About an hour after the oath-taking, Ford made an impromptu appearance in the White House press center and told reporters he would conduct an "open and candid" administration with "trust, rapport and friendship" with the press.

Ford told reporters "I do look forward to getting to know you again" and said he did not ask for any special favors in press coverage. He added a "thank you for the kindnesses of the past."

Ford served as vice president eight months, the first person to be named by the President and confirmed by both houses of Congress under the provisions of the never previously used 25th Amendment to the Constitution.

A congressman for a quarter of a century, his highest political ambition had been to lead the Republican party as speaker of the House —an institution he loved.

There he won a reputation as a master of compromise, accommodation and accord. He was admired for his honesty and his openness. His voting record was one of the most conservative of Republican leaders, reflecting the basic philosophy of his Grand Rapids, Mich. constituency.

Ford spoke in a strong, clear voice until toward the end when it quavered, reflecting the emotions of the moment.

Ford became the fourth man to assume the presidency in 11 years.

COTATI

torney for Laughlin and Miss Lombardi had advised them against making any public statements since they face prosecution on a misdemeanor charge of attempting to destroy evidence.

The investigation of the complicated marijuana scandal still is going on, Dunham stressed.

"There should be some kind of discussion about how the community feels about them," Paine urged. "Sometimes people make mistakes both ways."

"The matter is not one for a plebiscite. . . the resignation is moot. Even if the council doesn't accept, my friends feel they cannot serve any longer," Dunham said. "I'm forced to defend the resignations — and they're two of the best friends I have."

Dunham called the situation a nightmare for everyone who knows them.

Resident Andrew Harris urged the council to agree to "a cooling off period." He cited the resignation of President Nixon a few minutes earlier and argued, "This is a crucial time — almost hysterical."

City Atty. Jay Cantor and audience members discussed whether the council legally could go into closed session under the Brown Act, with Cantor holding that that language permitting closed meetings on dismissals and appointments probably also extends to resignations.

However, after only seven minutes, the council returned and threshed out its next steps publicly.

Asst. Dist. Attorney John Gallagher reported there were no new developments today nor charges filed in the marijuana case that tottered city government.

Laughlin, Miss Lombardi and a companion, Vicki Flaherty, all 27, were caught at Cotati City Hall by police who discovered that plants were missing from the evidence locker in a basement.

The three reportedly told officers they had planned "a lark" to raid the locker and replant the marijuana in city gardens.

The marijuana was seized by police Tuesday in a raid on a home occupied by Planning Commissioner Eve Kitchen and five other persons. Miss Kitchen subsequently also resigned but there was no mention of her at last night's council meeting.

A few staffers, including Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, will be going along. Chief of Staff Alexander M. Haig will stay to help the transition of government. The Coxes will accompany the President but the Eisenhowers will stay in their Washington apartment this weekend.

Nixon told a nationwide TV audience last night that his family "unanimously" urged him to keep fighting to stay in office through impeachment and a Senate trial. Aides said Mrs. Nixon and his daughters tried to talk hnim out of resigning.

When he made his irrevocable decision, apparently Tuesday or Wednesday evening, Julie who had been the President's most ardent defender sobbed in his comforting arms.

But between the tears yesterday Nixon women began packing.

Alioto Predicts New Urban Hope

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Mayor Joseph Alioto asserts that the advent of the Ford administration provides "new hope" for solutions to urban problems.

Alioto, also president of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, said yesterday the Nixon administration was "strangled in its own tangled web."

Presidency Passes To Gerald R. Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The American presidency changed hands today to shed itself of scandal. Richard Nixon resigned to avoid removal from office and Gerald R. Ford, an unsullied and plainspoken Midwesterner assumed power he never sought.

Nothing like this has ever happened before. It amounts to a constitutional coup. It happened suddenly — within five working days after Nixon admitted intimate and early involvement in the Watergate scandal. It came after his last hope of avoiding impeachment and removal from office by Congress had collapsed.

It brought a sense of relief to the people and to Congress and a national feeling of good will toward the President-designate.

Nixon, reelected two years ago carrying 49 states, became the first president to resign. Ford became the 38th president, but the first to assume that office without running on a national ballot.

Like millions of his countrymen, Ford sat in his living room last night and watched Nixon on television somberly announce that he would give up the struggle to retain office.

Then Ford went outside and pledged in his customary simple words that he would try to achieve "what's best for America and the world."

He said Nixon's speech was "one of the very saddest moments that I've ever witnessed."

Hundreds stood outside the black iron fence around the White House while Nixon spoke for 17 minutes, delivering the 38th televised address to the nation of his five year and seven month presidency.

Nixon, tense, somber, a half-smile crossing his face only once, acknowledged his dilemma. His confession Monday had robbed him of his political power and public trust. Still, it was hard to resign.

"I have never been a quitter," he said.

"To leave office before my term is completed is abhorrent to every instinct in my body.

"But as President I must put the interest of America first."

By resigning, he retained the right to collect a $62,500 a year pension and the emoluments of office — free office space, secretarial help, Secret Service protection, the franking privilege and the like.

Nixon's critics had hoped he would spell out his Watergate role in full detail during his speech. He did not. He barely mentioned Watergate.

Ford, as President, will have to face the problem of deciding whether to make certain that Nixon is not prosecuted. After Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski earlier this year had convinced a grand jury that an incumbent president could not be indicted, the jury named Nixon as unindicted co-conspirator.

Nixon's downfall was brought about when he confessed Monday that there had been "omissions" in all his prior Watergate denials. Under compulsion from an 8-0 Supreme Court ruling, he made public three transcripts that showed that six days after the Watergate break-in he issued orders designed to have the CIA obstruct the FBI's investigation.

Nixon's announcement came exactly six years to the day that he stood triumphant before a cheering Republican National Convention in Miami Beach in 1968 and promised "a new day for America." In that acceptance speech, he had said, "America's in trouble today not because her people have failed but because her leaders have failed."

He won election that fall against Hubert H. Humphrey, then vice president, an old political antagonist.

FORD

my friends, and my dedicated staff ... with the good will of countless Americans I have encountered ...

"God helping me, I will not let you down."

Nixon, in a 17-minute speech from a clean desk in the Oval Office —his 37th speech from the White House of his presidency of five years and seven months — said last night he was resigning because he had lost public trust and the confidence of Congress.

He said he had made his share of mistakes as President, but he made only a bare reference to the scandal which forced him to resign rather than go through with an impeachment by the House and a trial by the Senate which politicians closest to him said inevitably would end with his conviction by a two-thirds majority and removal from office in disgrace.

"I am acutely aware that you have not elected me as your President by your ballots," he told Americans. "So I ask you to confirm me as your President with your prayers...

"If you have not chosen me by secret ballot, neither have I gained office by secret promises.

"I have not campaigned either for the presidency or the vice presidency. I have not subscribed to any partisan platform. I am indebted to no man and only to one woman — my dear wife, Betty —as I begin the most difficult job in the world."

About an hour after the oath-taking, Ford made an impromptu appearance in the White House press center and told reporters he would conduct an "open and candid" administration with "trust, rapport and friendship" with the press.

Ford told reporters "I do look forward to getting to know you again" and said he did not ask for any special favors in press coverage. He added a "thank you for the kindnesses of the past."

Ford served as vice president eight months, the first person to be named by the President and confirmed by both houses of Congress under the provisions of the never previously used 25th Amendment to the Constitution.

A congressman for a quarter of a century, his highest political ambition had been to lead the Republican party as speaker of the House —an institution he loved.

There he won a reputation as a master of compromise, accommodation and accord. He was admired for his honesty and his openness. His voting record was one of the most conservative of Republican leaders, reflecting the basic philosophy of his Grand Rapids, Mich. constituency.

Ford spoke in a strong, clear voice until toward the end when it quavered, reflecting the emotions of the moment.

Ford became the fourth man to assume the presidency in 11 years.

COTATI

torney for Laughlin and Miss Lombardi had advised them against making any public statements since they face prosecution on a misdemeanor charge of attempting to destroy evidence.

"There should be some kind of discussion about how the community feels about them," Paine urged. "Sometimes people make mistakes both ways."

"The matter is not one for a plebiscite. . . the resignation is moot. Even if the council doesn't accept, my friends feel they cannot serve any longer," Dunham said. "I'm forced to defend the resignations — and they're two of the best friends I have."

Dunham called the situation a nightmare for everyone who knows them.

Resident Andrew Harris urged the council to agree to "a cooling off period." He cited the resignation of President Nixon a few minutes earlier and argued, "This is a crucial time — almost hysterical."

City Atty. Jay Cantor and audience members discussed whether the council legally could go into closed session under the Brown Act, with Cantor holding that that language permitting closed meetings on dismissals and appointments probably also extends to resignations.

However, after only seven minutes, the council returned and threshed out its next steps publicly.

Asst. Dist. Attorney John Gallagher reported there were no new developments today nor charges filed in the marijuana case that tottered city government.

Laughlin, Miss Lombardi and a companion, Vicki Flaherty, all 27, were caught at Cotati City Hall by police who discovered that plants were missing from the evidence locker in a basement.

The three reportedly told officers they had planned "a lark" to raid the locker and replant the marijuana in city gardens.

The marijuana was seized by police Tuesday in a raid on a home occupied by Planning Commissioner Eve Kitchen and five other persons. Miss Kitchen subsequently also resigned but there was no mention of her at last night's council meeting.

A few staffers, including Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, will be going along. Chief of Staff Alexander M. Haig will stay to help the transition of government. The Coxes will accompany the President but the Eisenhowers will stay in their Washington apartment this weekend.

Nixon told a nationwide TV audience last night that his family "unanimously" urged him to keep fighting to stay in office through impeachment and a Senate trial. Aides said Mrs. Nixon and his daughters tried to talk hnim out of resigning.

When he made his irrevocable decision, apparently Tuesday or Wednesday evening, Julie who had been the President's most ardent defender sobbed in his comforting arms.

But between the tears yesterday Nixon women began packing.

Marinites React To Nixon's Resignation

Clemente. I want him to go before a judge and be disbarred."

Florence E. Burnett, 81, retired California State Automobile Association employee, 24 Parkwood Avenue, Mill Valley: "I'm for Mr. Nixon. I don't believe in that kind of stuff. They're not giving him enough of a chance. There's many a man that's been ruined by someone starting a rumor that wasn't true."

Michael Paganini, 20, variously employed, 11 Harbor View Court, San Rafael — "He should have stayed in office. I think the whole thing has been going on for 200 years. Like the milk payoff and all that has been going on for a long time."

Carol Vencins, 32, actress, Inverness — I think if criminal charges are not brought the country's still going to be in trouble. He's going to be setting a precedent if he gets immunity . . . then how could anyone else respect the law? It's a sweet victory in a way that he's getting his comeuppance after 27 years. He stands on his record, which is exactly what we see today."

Karl E. Lindstrom, 13, student, 85 Mount Tiburon, Tiburon — "It's kind of a bummer he's resigning. There's no one who can really take over. And as long as one's been kicked out, they're just going to try to bother the next president and then the next and the next. He's done some things wrong but almost everybody else has, too."

Barbara Bennett, 34, commercial photography assistant, 403 West Cotati Avenue, Cotati — "I'm glad he resigned but I think he's saving face rather than face impeachment. He should be prosecuted because of all the others who've gone down the tubes."

Ray Brown, 34, funeral director, 601 Kentucky Street, Petaluma — "I'm glad he did and he should have done it sooner."

Eileen Giem, 31, city office worker, Cotati City Hall — "It's the only thing he could do — or else get hung."

Tim Chandler Green, 24, clerk, 1832 Fifth Avenue, San Rafael — "I had hoped to see him go through the impeachment process but to be rid of him is fine. It's ironic that the law and order man is going down because he broke the law. What goes around, comes around."

William D. Suval, 25, student, 111 Willow Avenue, Fairfax — "I think they should have impeached him and convicted him. I don't think that by resigning he should have amnesty from further criminal action like civil suits."

Lou Ganapoler, 55, manager of Trident restaurant, 762 Del Ganado, Terra Linda — "It's about time you said 'goodnight,' Dick. I feel it's the best thing he could be doing."

Bob Smith, 40, barber, 185 Marinwood Avenue, Marinwood — "It's sad to see someone go but I can't say I'm sad to see him gone."

Dave Marelli, 21, shoe repairman, 1318 Fourth Street, San Rafael — "I'm happy he resigned rather than be impeached. I think that was good for the country and I think Ford will do a better job than Nixon did."

Bessie McGee, 77, widow, 5 Golden Hinde Boulevard, San Rafael — "I don't like to say too much because I'm a Democrat but it was not unexpected. I knew it would happen because he got in too deep."

Richard Upton, 19, musician, 191 San Carlos Avenue, Sausalito: "I definitely want him out. I don't think his resignation should change any strictness in his punishment. I think he has copped out again."

Jan Poland, 33, legal secretary, Gate 6 Road, Sausalito: "I don't want him in there, one way or another. This may be the most graceful way for him to exit."

Elizabeth Okamura, 40, Ocean Parkway, Bolinas: "I'm amazed he hung on this long. To hang on this long he must have had delusions of grandeur. It's high time. It's past time if we are to believe he is a sane human being, which I am not sure he is."

Helga Epstein, 48, homemaker, 118 Convent Court, San Rafael — "Mr. Nixon's personal motives are not important. We the people have been in a state of shock, betrayed by the man who holds the highest office in our land — and at the same time clinging to faith that our form of democracy can and does work. I think the dignity of the proceedings of the House Judiciary Committee showed us that — and we need time to respond to this tragedy. Then we can begin to deal with the leadership crisis in our country."

Jane Rundell, 44, yacht broker, 157 Caribe Isle, Novato — "There has been much conjecture. He's painted himself into a corner. I expected it right along. I wondered when the pressure would get to him. If I had done all those things I feel I shouldn't be President."

Elaine Rosenblatt, 36, massage and body movement teacher, 27 Graceland Drive, San Rafael — "It's a good idea. Any human being should go through the least amount of pain they can. What he's done, he's done. Resigning is better for him."

Scott Hamilton, 22, university student, 14 Corte Las Sombras, Greenbrae — "It's unfortunate but necessary. He has obstructed justice and admitted it. We should not have a dishonest man as President. Nobody will disagree that his foreign policy has been distinguished, to a degree."

George P. Rideout, 31, San Rafael high school teacher, 109 Bolinas Avenue, Ross — "I'm delighted the whole thing is finally over. I would like to see the course of impeachment carried all the way. I think it is constitutionally the proper way to do things so the nation would have a better understanding of what has been going on. The truth should come out."

Anne Charles, 33, housewife and mother of four, 33 Terrace Avenue, Kentfield — "I think it's sad, but I feel a lot of positive things will come out of it. I'm pleased with the decisive nature of it."

John F. Barrows, 43, county administrator, 265 Crescent Road, San Anselmo — "It's 15 months overdue. Given the revelations of wrongdoing and malfeasance in office, it should have occurred 15 months ago."

Evelyn Conroy, 37, housewife, 18 Lower Drive, Mill Valley — "I think he did the right thing by resigning since he no longer had the backing of the nation. Gerald Ford will do a very good job. I'm sorry to see any man in those circumstances. I feel for the individual, but I'm not sorry to see him leave."

Eleanor M. Decker, 37, housewife, 32 Lincoln Avenue, Mill Valley — "I wish that he hadn't resigned so that the impeachment proceedings could continue. I believe he would have been impeached. But either way, he's no longer the President, which delights me."

Frank V. Keehn, 43, bartender, 81 Woodland Avenue, San Rafael — "I'm very disappointed. I think he was a very capable President and it was totally uncalled for to make a big issue out of it (Watergate). A man that has been in the Congress and Senate and vice president and President is certainly more than qualified to represent our country."

Barbara J. Parks, 43, secretary, 314 Mountain View Avenue, San Rafael — "I'm relieved. I think it's about time we got back to taking care of ourselves, our problems and stabilizing our economy. He duped the public and we're all getting a little bit tired of that. But I have no hatred against him."

Marjorie Connolly, 47, housewife, 2270 Paradise Drive, Tiburon — "Most beautiful birthday gift I ever had. Now at last the deviousness is over."

Clifford S. Lund, 52, insurance broker, 550 Heather Way, San Rafael — "I suppose I'm as sick about it as most people. I just think it's a very sad thing that we have come to that position in this country. I think it's the only thing he can do because of all the odds against him. It's not a question of his guilt or innocence but it's impossible for him to have a fair trial since the pre-trial impeachment publicity has violated all his civil rights."

Clifford F. Elder, 71, retired, 103 Buena Vista Avenue, Corte Madera — "I felt he should resign. He overrode his authority. I also feel that he should be tried for his criminal actions."

Freeway Detours Set In Petaluma

Petaluma area motorists using Highway 101 at the Washington Street overcrossing will face changes in traffic patterns several times in the next three weeks, state transportation department officials warned today.

Crews began removing portions of the old overcrossing yesterday, shunting all traffic into lanes on only one side of the freeway. Traffic flow is expected to be normal during the weekend, but crews will be detouring traffic from 9 a.m. on weekdays.

Rabbit Saved But Truck Tips

FAIRFIELD (UPI) — Diana Haley, 25, driver of a fuel tank-truck, told California Highway Patrol officers she swerved to avoid hitting a rabbit running across Highway 37 early today.

The tank truck went out of control, rolled off the road and split open, spilling about 25,000 gallons of fuel.

Mrs. Haley was hospitalized.

Brown Asks Labor To Support Ford

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Edmund G. Brown Jr., Democratic candidate for governor, today urged organized labor to "unite solidly behind" President Ford.

"We must not let the crimes of Watergate detract from the support we must now give to President Ford," Brown said in remarks prepared for a talk to the San Francisco Labor Council.

Clemente. I want him to go before a judge and be disbarred."

Florence E. Burnett, 81, retired California State Automobile Association employee, 24 Parkwood Avenue, Mill Valley: "I'm for Mr. Nixon. I don't believe in that kind of stuff. They're not giving him enough of a chance. There's many a man that's been ruined by someone starting a rumor that wasn't true."

Michael Paganini, 20, variously employed, 11 Harbor View Court, San Rafael — "He should have stayed in office. I think the whole thing has been going on for 200 years. Like the milk payoff and all that has been going on for a long time."

Carol Vencins, 32, actress, Inverness — I think if criminal charges are not brought the country's still going to be in trouble. He's going to be setting a precedent if he gets immunity . . . then how could anyone else respect the law? It's a sweet victory in a way that he's getting his comeuppance after 27 years. He stands on his record, which is exactly what we see today."

Karl E. Lindstrom, 13, student, 85 Mount Tiburon, Tiburon — "It's kind of a bummer he's resigning. There's no one who can really take over. And as long as one's been kicked out, they're just going to try to bother the next president and then the next and the next. He's done some things wrong but almost everybody else has, too."

Barbara Bennett, 34, commercial photography assistant, 403 West Cotati Avenue, Cotati — "I'm glad he resigned but I think he's saving face rather than face impeachment. He should be prosecuted because of all the others who've gone down the tubes."

Ray Brown, 34, funeral director, 601 Kentucky Street, Petaluma — "I'm glad he did and he should have done it sooner."

Eileen Giem, 31, city office worker, Cotati City Hall — "It's the only thing he could do — or else get hung."

Tim Chandler Green, 24, clerk, 1832 Fifth Avenue, San Rafael — "I had hoped to see him go through the impeachment process but to be rid of him is fine. It's ironic that the law and order man is going down because he broke the law. What goes around, comes around."

William D. Suval, 25, student, 111 Willow Avenue, Fairfax — "I think they should have impeached him and convicted him. I don't think that by resigning he should have amnesty from further criminal action like civil suits."

Lou Ganapoler, 55, manager of Trident restaurant, 762 Del Ganado, Terra Linda — "It's about time you said 'goodnight,' Dick. I feel it's the best thing he could be doing."

Bob Smith, 40, barber, 185 Marinwood Avenue, Marinwood — "It's sad to see someone go but I can't say I'm sad to see him gone."

Dave Marelli, 21, shoe repairman, 1318 Fourth Street, San Rafael — "I'm happy he resigned rather than be impeached. I think that was good for the country and I think Ford will do a better job than Nixon did."

Bessie McGee, 77, widow, 5 Golden Hinde Boulevard, San Rafael — "I don't like to say too much because I'm a Democrat but it was not unexpected. I knew it would happen because he got in too deep."

Richard Upton, 19, musician, 191 San Carlos Avenue, Sausalito: "I definitely want him out. I don't think his resignation should change any strictness in his punishment. I think he has copped out again."

Jan Poland, 33, legal secretary, Gate 6 Road, Sausalito: "I don't want him in there, one way or another. This may be the most graceful way for him to exit."

Elizabeth Okamura, 40, Ocean Parkway, Bolinas: "I'm amazed he hung on this long. To hang on this long he must have had delusions of grandeur.

It's high time. It's past time if we are to believe he is a sane human being, which I am not sure he is."

Helga Epstein, 48, homemaker, 118 Convent Court, San Rafael — "Mr. Nixon's personal motives are not important. We the people have been in a state of shock, betrayed by the man who holds the highest office in our land — and at the same time clinging to faith that our form of democracy can and does work. I think the dignity of the proceedings of the House Judiciary Committee showed us that — and we need time to respond to this tragedy. Then we can begin to deal with the leadership crisis in our country."

Jane Rundell, 44, yacht broker, 157 Caribe Isle, Novato — "There has been much conjecture. He's painted himself into a corner. I expected it right along. I wondered when the pressure would get to him. If I had done all those things I feel I shouldn't be President."

LEANING LANDMARK ABOUT GONE

Marin County's version of the Leaning Tower of Pisa, the old grinding mill at Hutchinson's Quarry near Greenbrae, is almost no more, as a view from the rear of the decaying structure shows. Not used for two years, the 50-year-old mill, which early assumed rippling lines on sinking fill, is due to be finally demolished within a week. Termed a hazard by Larkspur officials, the structure never made it as an historic monument but long provided a diversion for highway travelers. The property is to be developed by a Peninsula firm for commercial and residential use.

Finch Thinks Resignation Helps Remove 'Cloud'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Robert H. Finch, long-time confidant of President Nixon and formèr White House counselor, said last night the President's resignation would help Republican candidates remove "the suffocating cloud of Watergate."

Finch, who earlier in the year decided against running for governor of California because he believed he would be hounded by Watergate questions although he was never implicated in Watergate, watched Nixon's speech resignation on television at his San Marino home.

"I was moved," said the former California lieutenant governor. "Nixon rose to the occasion. He set the stage for Jerry Ford."

Asked in a telephone interview whether he believed the President's decision to leave office would aid California GOP candidates, Finch replied he thought it would be "very helpful in terms of removing the suffocating cloud of Watergate. People will now focus attention on these state races."

Finch resigned as lieutenant governor in 1969 to join the first Nixon administration as secretary of Health, Education and Welfare. He later moved to the White House as a presidential counselor .

Ford Names His Press Secretary

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Jerry TerHorse, Washington bureau chief of the Detroit News, will be Gerald R. Ford's White House press secretary.

TerHorst, who has known Ford for 25 years, succeeds Ronald L. Ziegler. Like Ford, terHorst is from Grand Rapids,, Mich., and he covered Ford's first campaign for the House of Representatives in 1947.

TerHorst, 52, has been Washington correspondent for the Detroit News since 1957 and chief of its Washington bureau since 1961. He has covered every presidential trip abroad and numerous domestic trips since 1960.

A Marine officer in World War II and during Korea, terHorst is a graduate of the University of Michigan in American history and political science.

He began his newspaper career in 1946 with the Grand Rapids Herald and the Grand Rapids Press. He is a co-author of a book, "the President's Trip to China," and also wrote for the North American Newspaper Alliance.

He and his wife and four children live in Alexandria, Va.

Praise And Blame In World Reaction To Resignation

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The world said goodbye to Richard Nixon with both praise and blame today and greeted his successor with relief and anticipation.

The London Sun called Nixon "the shabbiest, most squalid, deceitful, ruthless, mendacious, double-dealing, conniving, sanctimonious, hypocritical twister that great office will ever know.

"There is but one verdict history will accord him:.

"Expletive deleted."

But in France, former Foreign Minister Michel Jobert called Nixon's fall a great tragedy. Radio commentar Raymond Cartier said:

"Richard Nixon was the greatest president in American history."

Generally, foreign leaders and commentators expressed confidence that America's foreign policy would remain unchanged and relief that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger would stay on as Gerald Ford takes over the presidency.

But in the Arab world, there was fear that Ford would tilt back towards Israel.

Italian President Giovanni Leone sent a farewell message to Nixon making no reference to the circumstances which forced his resignation.

Leone said Nixon had contributed, "in years crowded with events and decisions for the fate of the world, to the maintenance of international peace and the reenforcement of hope for the coming of an era of even more full and profitable collaboration among all peoples."

In Japan, a spokesman for Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka said:

"On the occasion of his announcement today, we renew our respect for Mr. Nixon and his achievements."

Israeli Defense Minister Shimon Peres said the transfer of power from Nixon to Ford was a great victory for U.S. democratic institutions. European newspapers agreed. And Indian Foreign Minister Swaran Singh said Nixon's decision to resign was in the best tradition of democracy.

Danish Prime Minister Poul Hartling said:

"It is worth underlining that what has happened in America, shows that the United States is an open society. Only in a society with a free press and a strong sense of justice is it possible to experience a political development as the one the world now has witnessed."

Armin Grunewald, a spokesman for the West German government, said the Bonn government "assumes that the foreign policy, alliance and economic interests of the United States remained unchanged by the change in the office of the Presidency."

Similar opinions were expressed from France to Thailand and Indonesia.

In the Soviet Union, the Tass news agency reported President Nixon's resignation in a two-paragraph dispatch without comment seven minutes after the announcement last night.

China's New China News Agency made no immediate mention of Nixon. But diplomatic reports from Peking said Chinese officials appeared relieved Kissinger will remain in Ford's administration.

Arab press commentators reflected fears that the turnaround in American policy which Nixon led since the October Arab-Israeli war might not be maintained by Ford and several referred to what they called pro-Israeli indications in Ford's record.

"The new president of the United States," Beirut's French-language L'Orient-Le Jour said, "is, in fact, the only American official to have recognized Jerusalem as 'the unified capital of Israel."

Nixon Vetoes Money Bill As Inflationary

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In one of his last official acts as president, Richard Nixon vetoed a $13.57 billion appropriations bill, calling it inflationary.

In a message to the House yesterday, Nixon said the bill providing money for the Agriculture Department and other agencies, exceeded his budget recommendation by $540 million and "presents a clear and distinct threat to our fight against inflation."

Rains Of Relief Quenching Midwest

A National Weather Service spokesman said the dry spell was finally over—too late, though, to save billions of dollars in blistered crops.

DINING OUT AND INNS

By HARRY CRAFT

The Chopsticks In San Rafael Specializes In Cantonese Fare

It is claimed that the Chinese custom of combining small amounts of many things - vegetables, nuts, herbs and seasonings to change the dishes and add variety to a meal originated from the lack of abundance of foods in China.

Chinese cookery makes chief use of those things it does have — pork, beef, chicken, fish and certain other seafoods. It is a testimony to the ingenuity of the Chinese that they are able to do so much with so little.

As in any country, different areas of China feature different ingredients and different methods of preparation. Cantonese cooking, for example, makes much use of steaming certain foods, I am told, though "stir-frying" is also used. Cantonese seasoning is sometimes more pronounced.

One Marin Chinese restaurant that specializes in authentic Cantonese fare is the Chopsticks at 508 Third Street, San Rafael, across from United Market. Now open about a year, David and Irene Chan, in the Chinese tradition, have done much with little. In recent months they've managed to do some additional decorating and also take on extra space next door — which can be used for small parties.

The Chans do most of the work themselves, for the simple reason that they face a problem common with many Chinese restaurants in this county — having to bring in extra Chinese help from San Francisco and either provide transportation both ways or living quarters.

Chopsticks lunch specials are exceptionally reasonable and in the 85 cents to $1.49 range, according to whether you prefer one, two or three dishes.

So-called "family" Chinese dinners can be equally reasonable here, averaging from $2.25 to $2.75 per person. This is the quick way to order. Dishes are prescribed in advance. They are tasty, but you're missing the best part of Chinese fare if you do not eventually get down to making your own combinations.

The main thing is to select contrasting dishes and those that complement each other. Dishes are sufficiently described on the menu that this should not give you too much trouble — but in combining them with rice (that should go with all meals), for example, when should the rice be fried and when should it be steamed? Certain foods go better with the latter. In this and in other areas of perplexity, the Chans are prepared to help you along. Their "no-name" soup is particularly good.

They have a sort of intense pride in the way they offer their Cantonese specialties that is

Halfway House Opens In Texas For Ex-Convicts

DALLAS (UPI) — A halfway house for persons released from prison will open this summer offering the former inmates a temporary home, counseling, job referral services and educational opportunities.

"These are advantages found in a parole plan which the dischargee does not enjoy," a spokesman for the Dallas Area Criminal Justice Council said. "Usually, all a dischargee has when he gets out of the state prison at Huntsville is a new suit, $100 and a bus ticket.

"Consequently, when the $100 is gone, he turns again to crime rather than submit to the responsibilities of starting a straight life. And it frequently happens quickly after he's released.

"This is one reason why the repeat offender rate is so high among prison dischargees. Hopefully, the halfway house here will stem that."

Ford Will Miss Rite At Stanford

STANFORD (UPI) — Vice President Gerald Ford, who becomes President today, will not participate tomorrow evening in Stanford's commemoration of the 100th anniversary of the late President Herbert Hoover.

Oregon Senator Mark Hatfield will speak as scheduled in the invitational program honoring the school's most famous graduate.

The Chopsticks In San Rafael Specializes In Cantonese Fare

It is claimed that the Chinese custom of combining small amounts of many things - vegetables, nuts, herbs and seasonings to change the dishes and add variety to a meal originated from the lack of abundance of foods in China.

Chinese cookery makes chief use of those things it does have — pork, beef, chicken, fish and certain other seafoods. It is a testimony to the ingenuity of the Chinese that they are able to do so much with so little.

As in any country, different areas of China feature different ingredients and different methods of preparation. Cantonese cooking, for example, makes much use of steaming certain foods, I am told, though "stir-frying" is also used. Cantonese seasoning is sometimes more pronounced.

One Marin Chinese restaurant that specializes in authentic Cantonese fare is the Chopsticks at 508 Third Street, San Rafael, across from United Market. Now open about a year, David and Irene Chan, in the Chinese tradition, have done much with little. In recent months they've managed to do some additional decorating and also take on extra space next door — which can be used for small parties.

The Chans do most of the work themselves, for the simple reason that they face a problem common with many Chinese restaurants in this county — having to bring in extra Chinese help from San Francisco and either provide transportation both ways or living quarters.

Chopsticks lunch specials are exceptionally reasonable and in the 85 cents to $1.49 range, according to whether you prefer one, two or three dishes.

So-called "family" Chinese dinners can be equally reasonable here, averaging from $2.25 to $2.75 per person. This is the quick way to order. Dishes are prescribed in advance. They are tasty, but you're missing the best part of Chinese fare if you do not eventually get down to making your own combinations.

The main thing is to select contrasting dishes and those that complement each other. Dishes are sufficiently described on the menu that this should not give you too much trouble — but in combining them with rice (that should go with all meals), for example, when should the rice be fried and when should it be steamed? Certain foods go better with the latter. In this and in other areas of perplexity, the Chans are prepared to help you along. Their "no-name" soup is particularly good.

They have a sort of intense pride in the way they offer their Cantonese specialties that is

Halfway House Opens In Texas For Ex-Convicts

DALLAS (UPI) — A halfway house for persons released from prison will open this summer offering the former inmates a temporary home, counseling, job referral services and educational opportunities.

"These are advantages found in a parole plan which the dischargee does not enjoy," a spokesman for the Dallas Area Criminal Justice Council said. "Usually, all a dischargee has when he gets out of the state prison at Huntsville is a new suit, $100 and a bus ticket.

"Consequently, when the $100 is gone, he turns again to crime rather than submit to the responsibilities of starting a straight life. And it frequently happens quickly after he's released.

"This is one reason why the repeat offender rate is so high among prison dischargees. Hopefully, the halfway house here will stem that."

Ford Will Miss Rite At Stanford

STANFORD (UPI) — Vice President Gerald Ford, who becomes President today, will not participate tomorrow evening in Stanford's commemoration of the 100th anniversary of the late President Herbert Hoover.

Oregon Senator Mark Hatfield will speak as scheduled in the invitational program honoring the school's most famous graduate.

DINING

good to see. Any Chinese restaurant in this country that is not located in a specialized area such as San Francisco's Chinatown is obliged to make certain compromises with American customs, but it's the way the food is cooked to tradition that counts.

THE NEW VELVET TURTLE RESTAURANT, which will occupy a bluff site high on the east side of Highway 101 (across from Terra Linda and Northgate) is due for an opening by next Tuesday. With two private parties booked for the first day it is likely to be crowded.

Viewed from the highway, the restaurant is deceptive. About all you can discern is part of one wall and the name. But the building is exceptionally large, in fact, and this is made even more manifest inside. With seating for over 200 and a kitchen to handle the full capacity it would have to be.

There's a winding road leading to it uphill from Civic Center Drive. Paving hadn't been completed when I looked at it last Monday, but manager Fred Karcher assured me that by opening date access should be easy. There's no lack of parking space and I see a fine opportunity for some clever landscape work. All in all, it should be quite impressive.

ON THE OTHER SIDE of the highway, there's a new look to the Grotto. A front outside area has been enclosed with pilings, within which is a new cocktail lounge al fresco — for the present being used as an eating area. It has a seating capacity of about 40.

Look for more inside changes within the next few weeks.

THERE'S A NEW MUSICAL GROUP out at Black Point Inn on Friday and Saturday nights. It's called the Tender Souls — a quartet of guitars, bass, bongos and some other instruments, calculated to please both the young and the old. Its members are entertaining and they work well together — they should, they've been playing at a number of Bay Area spots with some success. Dancing, of course — the floor is there for it.

THE LITTLE L'Auberge Basque, which opened at 122 Washington Street, Petaluma, last February is still going strong and is now serving lunches Wednesdays through Fridays from 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Prices are in the $2 - $3.75 range (with soup or salad) and include omelets as well as some of the French and Basque dishes specialized in by owner Gabriel Elicatche. He and wife Suzanne have managed to hold their complete dinner prices down very well and these are from $3.95 to $6.75. Dinners are from 5 to 10 p.m. and on Sundays from 3 to 8 p.m. When we were last there in February, a choice of seven entrees was offered.

It's a tiny place, but neat and clean. It has a wine and beer license, but if you must have a cocktail or highball you'll have to look next door for it. This is the Volpi Grocery — in its rear quarters is located what is said to be the oldest bar in Petaluma.

L'Auberge Basque is one of those restaurants you look for in out of the way places and don't always find. It's in "oldtown" Petaluma, on the main thoroughfare, but there's usually no problem with parking.

IF YOU FIND YOURSELF some mid-day in Fort Bragg on the Mendocino coast wondering where to go for lunch, a good place is The Wharf. You'll find it in the Noyo Fishing Village at the mouth of the Noyo River. (Take the road down from Highway 1 at the north side of the bridge).

The Wharf juts out at water's edge, and from both dining room and cocktail lounge you can look out on fishing boats berthed and moving in and out of the harbor. There are boat and excursion fishing facilities here and also retail fish stalls and some other restaurants, but The Wharf appears to be the most popular eating place.

On three lunch occasions we have found the fare and service excellent and the prices reasonable. Lunches are from about $2.25 and dinners from $4.50. The menu features principally seafood dishes, although there are also steaks, salads, chicken, prime rib and the like. We have always ordered one of the fresh fish catches — salmon in season, petrale sole, red snapper or ling cod. Australian lobster tail on the dinner is $7.50 (large order $8.50); steak and lobster $9.

Lunches include salad, dinners include hors d'oeuvres, soup, salad and dessert.

Nixon Cousin Is Still Proud

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Richard Milhous Nixon's cousin, Phillip Milhous, disabled and on welfare, affirmed his pride in his relative yesterday and accused the nation of "picking like a bunch of buzzards ever since he's been in office."

"I'm proud of him. He's been a good President," said Milhous.

Milhous' father and Nixon's mother were brother and sister. The man is part of a small clan of Nixon relatives living in the nearby Sierra foothill community of Grass Valley.

Hearings On Better Forest Management Are Under Way

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state Board of Forestry yesterday began hearing testimony on new, stricter regulations for "responsible" forest management in private and state land along California's northern coast.

The board is expected to take action on the regulations, along with similar ones for the northern inland and southern half of the state, sometime in late September.

"The rules are stricter than the ones the state has been operating under in the past," said Larry Hustedt, assistant director of the state Department of Conservation.

The regulations would require logging operators to replant areas that they "clear out" in a manner that fits the contour of the land. Previously all clear cutting was done in blocks.

There are provisions for clear cutting in blocks but only under stringent circumstances.

They also set up logging practices which would require loggers to "exercise due diligence in the management and operation of felling, yarding, and loading of timber . . . to prevent damage to those remaining residual trees, seedlings, streamside vegetation and water quality."

The state Board of Forestry was directed by the 1973 legislature to adopt rules and regulations to protect forest areas in the state. The regulations have to be adopted by Oct. 1.

The board is expected to take additional testimony on the district rules during a Sept. 25-27 hearing.

Hustedt said no opposition has been voiced thus far from California's logging industry.

The three district committees worked for three months developing the rules and regulations.

Nixon Cousin Is Still Proud

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Richard Milhous Nixon's cousin, Phillip Milhous, disabled and on welfare, affirmed his pride in his relative yesterday and accused the nation of "picking like a bunch of buzzards ever since he's been in office."

"I'm proud of him. He's been a good President," said Milhous.

Milhous' father and Nixon's mother were brother and sister. The man is part of a small clan of Nixon relatives living in the nearby Sierra foothill community of Grass Valley.

Hearings On Better Forest Management Are Under Way

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state Board of Forestry yesterday began hearing testimony on new, stricter regulations for "responsible" forest management in private and state land along California's northern coast.

The board is expected to take action on the regulations, along with similar ones for the northern inland and southern half of the state, sometime in late September.

"The rules are stricter than the ones the state has been operating under in the past," said Larry Hustedt, assistant director of the state Department of Conservation.

The regulations would require logging operators to replant areas that they "clear out" in a manner that fits the contour of the land. Previously all clear cutting was done in blocks.

There are provisions for clear cutting in blocks but only under stringent circumstances.

They also set up logging practices which would require loggers to "exercise due diligence in the management and operation of felling, yarding, and loading of timber . . . to prevent damage to those remaining residual trees, seedlings, streamside vegetation and water quality."

The state Board of Forestry was directed by the 1973 legislature to adopt rules and regulations to protect forest areas in the state. The regulations have to be adopted by Oct. 1.

The board is expected to take additional testimony on the district rules during a Sept. 25-27 hearing.

Hustedt said no opposition has been voiced thus far from California's logging industry.

The three district committees worked for three months developing the rules and regulations.

Disabled Vet Picked

No Rehearing In Tomales Resort Case

The North Central Coast Regional Commission last night attempted to reopen the issue of a controversial resort planned on Tomales Bay, but found the law bars it from reconsidering its rejection of the resort.

The proposal by Herbert H. Angress will come before the state coastal commission Wednesday on his appeal from the regional agency's second denial. He has been battling public agencies for five years to build on his 22-acre site one mile north of Marshall.

(The dispute may be moot if the Legislature approves a pending appropriation to buy the Angress and other Tomales Bay parcles for park use.)

San Francisco Supervisor Dianne Feinstein, who voted with the majority in July to turn down Angress's second try for a permit, said she had not been able to sleep that night because she was so disturbed by her vote.

Her attempt to have the matter reconsidered was backed by several other commissioners, but their legal adviser, Deputy Atty. Gen. William Chamberlain, said they could not reopen it. The commission is a quasijudicial body, thus cannot reconsider its decisions on permits, he said.

In other business, commissioners postponed action on a staff proposal for a two-year freeze on virtually all subdivision of rural land along the coast. The issue will come before the commission at 7 p.m. on Aug. 22 in the Sonoma County board of supervisors chambers, Santa Rosa.

Chamberlain noted that the state Supreme Court ruled Friday that the commission can prohibit all use of land in the 1,000-yard-wide coastal zone during its planning period without compensating property owners. The planning period runs out at the end of 1976.

Executive Director Michael L. Fischer added that the staff will recommend that controls on subdivision of rural land be made permanent. This would take state legislation.

Although the staff proposal was postponed to give more time for public reaction (there was none last night), the commission's attitude toward subdivision of rural land was evident in two prompt denials of permits for such subdivisions. One was to divide 20 acres on Horseshoe Hill Road near Bolinas, the other to split a 10.4 acre parcel into four lots on Mesa Road near Point Reyes Station.

The Bolinas subdivision was rejected on the ground it could violate a general plan being drawn for the area, and the Point Reyes Station split was turned down because it was outside the line the staff expects to draw as the community's limit for development.

The commission also tabled unanimously a request from Patricia Carson Major that it reconsider its previous approval of trees erected on a Stinson Beach lot owned by Barbara Alban.

July 8—Supreme Court hears oral arguments on the 64 tapes; Philip A. Lacovara, counsel to the special prosecutor, says Nixon is not entitled to executive privilege because a case can be made that Nixon was part of a criminal conspiracy; chief White House Watergate counsel James D. St. Clair says any court action would intrude on the congressional impeachment process.

No Rehearing In Tomales Resort Case

The North Central Coast Regional Commission last night attempted to reopen the issue of a controversial resort planned on Tomales Bay, but found the law bars it from reconsidering its rejection of the resort.

The proposal by Herbert H. Angress will come before the state coastal commission Wednesday on his appeal from the regional agency's second denial. He has been battling public agencies for five years to build on his 22-acre site one mile north of Marshall.

(The dispute may be moot if the Legislature approves a pending appropriation to buy the Angress and other Tomales Bay parcles for park use.)

San Francisco Supervisor Dianne Feinstein, who voted with the majority in July to turn down Angress's second try for a permit, said she had not been able to sleep that night because she was so disturbed by her vote.

Her attempt to have the matter reconsidered was backed by several other commissioners, but their legal adviser, Deputy Atty. Gen. William Chamberlain, said they could not reopen it. The commission is a quasijudicial body, thus cannot reconsider its decisions on permits, he said.

In other business, commissioners postponed action on a staff proposal for a two-year freeze on virtually all subdivision of rural land along the coast. The issue will come before the commission at 7 p.m. on Aug. 22 in the Sonoma County board of supervisors chambers, Santa Rosa.

Chamberlain noted that the state Supreme Court ruled Friday that the commission can prohibit all use of land in the 1,000-yard-wide coastal zone during its planning period without compensating property owners. The planning period runs out at the end of 1976.

Executive Director Michael L. Fischer added that the staff will recommend that controls on subdivision of rural land be made permanent. This would take state legislation.

Although the staff proposal was postponed to give more time for public reaction (there was none last night), the commission's attitude toward subdivision of rural land was evident in two prompt denials of permits for such subdivisions. One was to divide 20 acres on Horseshoe Hill Road near Bolinas, the other to split a 10.4 acre parcel into four lots on Mesa Road near Point Reyes Station.

The Bolinas subdivision was rejected on the ground it could violate a general plan being drawn for the area, and the Point Reyes Station split was turned down because it was outside the line the staff expects to draw as the community's limit for development.

The commission also tabled unanimously a request from Patricia Carson Major that it reconsider its previous approval of trees erected on a Stinson Beach lot owned by Barbara Alban.

Filante's Position Remains Unclear

By MARY LEYDECKER

Can Dr. William J. Filante legally serve at the same time on both the Marin Community College District board and the Marin Municipal Water District board?

"No," says the attorney for the water district, in reply to the question from that district's board.

The law is not clear, says the Marin County counsel's office.

Filante said yesterday he thinks the question of whether he may continue to sit on the two influential political bodies should be settled in court.

The Kentfield physician was already serving on the college district board when elected to the water district board in June.

State law does not specifically forbid a person serving on two such political entities but forbids holding seats "where the two offices are incompatible," according to Tom Thorner, water district attorney.

The trouble is, according to Asst. County Counsel Richard V. Godino, that there are "no hard and fast guidelines" to determine such incompatibility.

Godino cited the obvious incompatibility of serving both on a city council and the county board of supervisors at the same time.

In Filante's case, Godino said he could see some conflicts of interest as a possibility. The college district is a water user, probably one of the largest, and since it is a school district it currently is receiving favorable rates, Godino said.

If there were a move to change the rates, Godino said he could imagine a situation where Filante would have a conflict between the two interests.

Filante said yesterday he thinks "the law should be clarified." He indicated he intends to stay on both boards and that he views himself as having a lower potential for conflict of interest than a person serving on a board who has a strong personal interest outside.

Thorner has given the legal opinion to the water board that by accepting the water district post Filante "has given up his post" on the college board.

Thorner said the law provides that if a person is elected to two incompatible offices he is automatically out of the first one he took.

Thorner said he had prepared his opinion last month at the request of the water district board but that he has no further interest in the matter because Filante's seat on the water agency is "both legal and proper," though not on the college board.

Filante's fellow college district trustees have set a closed meeting Sept. 4 with a representative of the county counsel's office to get advice.

Godino said, however, that he can only discuss the matter with college officials — they have no authority to vote Filante off the board, he said.

It would take a legal action to remove the physician, according to Godino, if he does not choose to resign.

Filante indicated yesterday he would welcome a legal challenge to his seat on the college board so that the matter can be clarified.

Auto Mechanics Are Going Back To Work

Mechanics and body men began returning to Marin auto repair shops today following the settlement of a six-week strike which had idled about half the county's 127 shops.

Members of the International Association of Machinists voted by a three-to-one margin yesterday to accept the agreement which calls for a 37 per cent pay increase over three years and includes an immediate raise of $1.05 an hour, to $8.18.

The settlement also provides for another 45 cents an hour increase next July 1, with further raises of 25, 33 and 58 cents an hour at six-month intervals after that.

Harry H. McElroy, spokesman for the California Association of Employers, said the mechanics reported back to their jobs today and those who could be put to work remained.

Others will be back to work by early next week, he said.

Meanwhile, Marin's auto dealers and garages will drop the suit they filed in late July to force the striking mechanics to return to work.

The $250,000 damage suit was taken off the Marin Superior Court calendar yesterday and McElroy said it will be dismissed entirely once a new contract has been signed.

Between 250 and 350 mechanics and body men were covered by the settlement.

Miriam A. Ferguson, Texas' first and only woman governor, was elected to office in 1925 just four years after her husband was impeached, found guilty and removed from the Texas governorship.

Nude Photo Studio Measure Reviewed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Fire, Safety and Police Committee of the Board of Supervisors has approved an ordinance that would regulate photography studios where the public is invited to take pictures of nude models.

The ordinance, approved yesterday, sets up a hearing procedure for permits and prohibits persons under 18 from working or patronizing the establishments. The measure now goes to the full board for concurrence.

No Injuries As Pipe Bomb Explodes

CULVER CITY (UPI) — A pipe bomb exploded at a small chemical factory last night, blowing out part of the building's front wall and sending shock waves through the neighborhood, firemen said today.

An Offer To Transfer Prisoners

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — State Director of Corrections Raymond K. Procunier has offered to transfer six San Quentin inmates to other prisons.

Procunier made the offer yesterday during testimony in U.S. District Court. As a state official, he is a defendant in a suit by the six prisoners, who are all confined to the adjustment center. They seek to close the center on grounds it is cruel and unusual punishment and therefore unconstitutional.

A goal of the suit was to get out of the maximum security unit.

Procunier said the Department of Corrections had not moved the men because in previous court cases judges had ordered prisoners returned to facilities from which they had been transferred.

If the six men and their attorneys indicated they would not make an effort to return to San Quentin, he would personally review their transfer, Procunier said.

A spokesman for the department in Sacramento said the Correctional Training Facility at Folsom or the state prison at Folsom were facilities likely to receive the six.

Under no circumstances would he approve returning the inmates to the main line population at San Quentin, Procunier said.

Plaintiffs in the case are Fleeta Drumgo, 28; Hugo Pinell, 29; Johnny Spain, 24, Luis Talamantez, 31; David Johnson, 26 and Willie Tate, 29.

Previously, Warden Kenneth Britt had testified that the men are too dangerous to be kept anywhere in San Quentin except the maximum security adjustment center.

Petaluma Man Will Face Attack Charge

Petaluma police last night arrested Robert Mark Crause, 19, of 1444 Sierra Avenue, Petaluma, for alleged sex offenses involving a 13-year-old girl in Petaluma Wednesday night.

The youth was booked into Sonoma County Jail on a charge of suspicion of rape and was to appear today in municipal court in Petaluma for arraignment.

Filante's Position Remains Unclear

By MARY LEYDECKER

Can Dr. William J. Filante legally serve at the same time on both the Marin Community College District board and the Marin Municipal Water District board?

"No," says the attorney for the water district, in reply to the question from that district's board.

The law is not clear, says the Marin County counsel's office.

Filante said yesterday he thinks the question of whether he may continue to sit on the two influential political bodies should be settled in court.

The Kentfield physician was already serving on the college district board when elected to the water district board in June.

State law does not specifically forbid a person serving on two such political entities but forbids holding seats "where the two offices are incompatible," according to Tom Thorner, water district attorney.

The trouble is, according to Asst. County Counsel Richard V. Godino, that there are "no hard and fast guidelines" to determine such incompatibility.

Godino cited the obvious incompatibility of serving both on a city council and the county board of supervisors at the same time.

In Filante's case, Godino said he could see some conflicts of interest as a possibility. The college district is a water user, probably one of the largest, and since it is a school district it currently is receiving favorable rates, Godino said.

If there were a move to change the rates, Godino said he could imagine a situation where Filante would have a conflict between the two interests.

Filante said yesterday he thinks "the law should be clarified." He indicated he intends to stay on both boards and that he views himself as having a lower potential for conflict of interest than a person serving on a board who has a strong personal interest outside.

Thorner has given the legal opinion to the water board that by accepting the water district post Filante "has given up his post" on the college board.

Thorner said the law provides that if a person is elected to two incompatible offices he is automatically out of the first one he took.

Thorner said he had prepared his opinion last month at the request of the water district board but that he has no further interest in the matter because Filante's seat on the water agency is "both legal and proper," though not on the college board.

Filante's fellow college district trustees have set a closed meeting Sept. 4 with a representative of the county counsel's office to get advice.

Godino said, however, that he can only discuss the matter with college officials — they have no authority to vote Filante off the board, he said.

It would take a legal action to remove the physician, according to Godino, if he does not choose to resign.

Filante indicated yesterday he would welcome a legal challenge to his seat on the college board so that the matter can be clarified.

Auto Mechanics Are Going Back To Work

Mechanics and body men began returning to Marin auto repair shops today following the settlement of a six-week strike which had idled about half the county's 127 shops.

Members of the International Association of Machinists voted by a three-to-one margin yesterday to accept the agreement which calls for a 37 per cent pay increase over three years and includes an immediate raise of $1.05 an hour, to $8.18.

The settlement also provides for another 45 cents an hour increase next July 1, with further raises of 25, 33 and 58 cents an hour at six-month intervals after that.

Harry H. McElroy, spokesman for the California Association of Employers, said the mechanics reported back to their jobs today and those who could be put to work remained.

Others will be back to work by early next week, he said.

Meanwhile, Marin's auto dealers and garages will drop the suit they filed in late July to force the striking mechanics to return to work.

The $250,000 damage suit was taken off the Marin Superior Court calendar yesterday and McElroy said it will be dismissed entirely once a new contract has been signed.

Between 250 and 350 mechanics and body men were covered by the settlement.

Miriam A. Ferguson, Texas' first and only woman governor, was elected to office in 1925 just four years after her husband was impeached, found guilty and removed from the Texas governorship.

Nude Photo Studio Measure Reviewed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Fire, Safety and Police Committee of the Board of Supervisors has approved an ordinance that would regulate photography studios where the public is invited to take pictures of nude models.

The ordinance, approved yesterday, sets up a hearing procedure for permits and prohibits persons under 18 from working or patronizing the establishments. The measure now goes to the full board for concurrence.

An Offer To Transfer Prisoners

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — State Director of Corrections Raymond K. Procunier has offered to transfer six San Quentin inmates to other prisons.

Procunier made the offer yesterday during testimony in U.S. District Court. As a state official, he is a defendant in a suit by the six prisoners, who are all confined to the adjustment center. They seek to close the center on grounds it is cruel and unusual punishment and therefore unconstitutional.

A goal of the suit was to get out of the maximum security unit.

Procunier said the Department of Corrections had not moved the men because in previous court cases judges had ordered prisoners returned to facilities from which they had been transferred.

If the six men and their attorneys indicated they would not make an effort to return to San Quentin, he would personally review their transfer, Procunier said.

A spokesman for the department in Sacramento said the Correctional Training Facility at Folsom or the state prison at Folsom were facilities likely to receive the six.

Under no circumstances would he approve returning the inmates to the main line population at San Quentin, Procunier said.

Plaintiffs in the case are Fleeta Drumgo, 28; Hugo Pinell, 29; Johnny Spain, 24, Luis Talamantez, 31; David Johnson, 26 and Willie Tate, 29.

Previously, Warden Kenneth Britt had testified that the men are too dangerous to be kept anywhere in San Quentin except the maximum security adjustment center.

Petaluma Man Will Face Attack Charge

Petaluma police last night arrested Robert Mark Crause, 19, of 1444 Sierra Avenue, Petaluma, for alleged sex offenses involving a 13-year-old girl in Petaluma Wednesday night.

The youth was booked into Sonoma County Jail on a charge of suspicion of rape and was to appear today in municipal court in Petaluma for arraignment.

President Ford Needs All Our Help

The agony is ended.

No longer does the United States have a president secluded in his fortress White House, surrounding himself with an ever-dwindling guard of last-ditch defenders, battling desperately to save himself from criminal charges.

As of today, we have a president who can speak openly with Congress and the people, without having his words fuel suspicions. We have a president whose actions will not be manacled by a chain of past events. We have a president who will not have to be, as Richard Milhous Nixon put it last night, "a part-time president."

IT WAS A SAD hour for the nation when Mr. Nixon sat before television cameras to announce that he would be the first of 37 U.S. presidents to resign the office. It was sad because of what had gone before, of what had forced Mr. Nixon to that hard decision.

But in resigning, Mr. Nixon cleared the way for return of rational government. He put the interests of the nation first, without question, in this, his last act as president.

And as Gerald Ford took the oath of office today, the vitality of the United States system — which so many of our own people have found cause to criticize in recent years — was proved anew.

There was no coup. There was no palace uprising, nor military takeover. A president who had lost the confidence of Congress and people turned over the government to a successor he had himself chosen. Yet the new president assumed office without burden of the misdeeds of his predecessor.

That in itself is a remarkable demonstration of our system's vitality, its rationality, and its fairness.

Now we can, as far as the presidency is concerned, "forget Watergate." If any ghosts still inhabit White House closets, they are not haunting Gerald Ford.

BUT WE SHOULD NOT for a moment forget the lessons of Watergate.

The long agony found us close to the breakdown of our precious system. It found us with president and Congress embroiled in a contest for supremacy, with the processes of government short-circuited in some respects and damned to a standstill in others, with cynicism rampant and ideals twisted into incongruities.

We must not forget how close we came to a loss of civil liberties, how near we came to constitutional crisis, how — by our own inattention — we almost lost government of, by, and for the people in a struggle for power among men to whom politics became more important than democracy or honor.

We almost lost the system that saved us, in the sordid series of political machinations embraced by the code name, "Watergate."

BUT WE DIDN'T lose it. We have a new president. And with our help and the help of Congress, he can return government to its proper role as servant of the people.

President Gerald Ford can depend, at least for awhile, on the help of Congress, for he is well known and trusted by that body. But he will need more than that. He, and Congress, will need the help of all of us, regardless of our partisan or other affiliations.

The resignation of President Richard Nixon was one of the saddest hours in our history. But it can usher in one of the proudest hours. It is largely up to us.

High-Pay Legislature Results In Deterioration

By EARL G. WATERS

Veteran observers of the legislative process, California style, have been increasingly disappointed, if not utterly frustrated, by the gradual sinking in the quality of work and overall caliber of membership.

This is not to say that there are not many able legislators in the two houses. It is in comparison to the members of former years that today's lawmakers come up short.

If one were to trace the course which has led to this situation, it might be attributed to the abolition of cross-filing which has resulted in an intense and unhealthy partisanship; the one-man, one-vote court decision which removed the influence of the rural Senate; and the move towards "professionalism" of the lawmakers and away from the "citizen-legislator" concepts.

THE BIGGEST SINGLE mistake was making the job profitable. Under the citizen-legislator concept, the pay was token and the sessions were short. The deterioration started when the solons decided the office should be better compensated and, to justify that, contended it had become a full-time job.

All that needs be done to explode the myth of "full-time job" is to review the number of days the legislature is in actual session and the short hours of convening on those days. True, considerable time is spent in committee hearings, but even with that it is clear the business of handling legislative proposals could easily be accomplished in annual sessions of less than six months duration. And that is making quite a concession. The actual fact is it could be done in a six-month session every other year. The balance of the two years could then be spent, as it should be, in the much more significant work of interim studies of the many pressing problems of state government. And, with adequate and competent staff, interim work does not call for the full time of the members.

But, by raising the salaries, the lawmakers have created a situation where they feel they must be convened year-around even though they have to dilly-dally to spread the work out over so long a period.

THE SALARY RAISE did something else. It made the office attractive to people who were not capable of earning so much money elsewhere. Fewer of those with professional or business achievement in their home communities are being elected. There is a gradual transition to those who have no profession and have made no mark in life otherwise.

This type of "professional lawmaker" becomes a "professional officeholder." He does not possess the maturity which comes with having achieved, and he lacks close relationship with the community he represents.

Worse, having no profession or business to fall back upon, the matter of getting re-elected, sustaining his hold on the office, becomes paramount. It represents life or death to his economic existence. Under such circumstances, the office holder will do anything and everything to escape defeat at the polls.

WORTH SAYING AGAIN

To be always thinking about your manners is not the way to make them good; the very perfection of manners is not to think about them. — Richard Whatley.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Incorrect Name For Organization

In the July 4 issue of the I-J you had a very nice article about the "College for Kids" expanded program. It was gratifying to see the efforts of many people editorialized in the paper. However, the article alluded to the "Marin Association for Creative Children" as being one of the major associations for initiating the program. This should be the Marin Association for Gifted Children.

We felt this correction should be made to give the proper credit to a vital, hard-working organization and also to insure inquiries are directed to the proper place for a response.

Election Officer's Role In Fining Of Musser

In the public interest I would like to state my side of the story concerning my fine for failure to file a primary campaign statement on time.

Mr. Peterzell's article in your Aug. 5 edition is correct and factual up to the point where he said "but the elections office said he could wait because the fines may be waived." First, it was not the elections office who said anything, it was the elections officer personally who told me in effect that he would not accept my money at the time because Mr. Gnoss was waiting for an opinion from the secretary of state and he, the elections officer, would notify me when to pay the fine. He had not notified me by July 31 and since I had a long planned trip out of the county scheduled for Aug. 1, I proceeded to make the trip. On Friday, Aug. 2 Mr. Gnoss personally told me the fine should be paid and it was paid within 10 minutes.

But what is even more significant in view of the issue raised by Mr. Peterzell, was the fact that the notification from the elections office that the statement in question was due was postmarked three days before the due date but not received until four or five days after the due date. Since this was not a post office postmark, but simply the county clerk's postage meter postmark, it is not hard to understand how this delay could have happened.

Babe Ruth Tournament Coverage Pleases

On behalf of the leagues in District 9 (Marin and Sonoma Counties) I want to thank the Independent-Journal sports staff for the daily coverage of our recent Babe Ruth all-star tournaments held in Santa Rosa and Sonoma.

Special thanks to Vernon (Lefty) Gomez of Fairfax, chairman of the international Babe Ruth board of directors and a baseball Hall of Famer, who for the second straight year presented awards at our tournament for 15-year-olds. We were extremely honored at having such a distinguished gentleman in attendance.

Both of our district champions were runners-up in the state tournaments.

Santa Rosa, the 15-year-old winner, won the northern section state tournament in Stockton, beating Eel River in the finals, but then lost two one-run decisions to defending champion Lompoc in the state playoff in Hollister.

West Side Santa Rosa, the 13-year-old champion, bowed to unbeaten Vallejo in the finals of the 11-team state tournament in Visalia. West Side also distinguished itself by winning the state's sportsmanship award.

Thanks to everyone who made District 9's season a complete success.

San Anselmo Should Move Carefully On Administrator

Today I am departing from a self-imposed rule. It has been on rare occasions that I have departed from it. That is in discussing matters of intra character in our cities.

Those times, I believe, were in praising my home town, San Anselmo. I have had a love affair with this lovely place for more than 50 years. Yes, more than 55 years. I have been so proud, over these years, to serve it directly or indirectly.

Two of such times have been of particular pride to me. One, the installation of the first police two-way radio in any small town in the state.

MY OTHER was my "stubborn" refusal to either vote for a procedure which would have actually taken property away from its then owners through foreclosure, because of a freak situation I will describe later, nor sign the instruments to make such an act legal . . .

That battle with powerful interests went on for years. It was not settled until I had been off the San Anselmo City Council for several years.

What I refused to do saved the property of many owners still in possession. Here is how it went:

Some promoters of street paving (let me stress — not all, by any means, but enough to create a deplorable situation) would work over whole sections, with some "bellweather" simp. They would work up a demand for new pavement, curbs and gutters. The costs they would quote were invariably about one-half of the amount billed to the owners when the work was done. The assessments were in most cases higher than the property could be sold for.

The bonds covering the work would be bought immediately by a certain kind of bond house and resold to farmers in the Middle West. The bond act tried to make it mandatory that a city or county assess up to 10 cents per $100 valuation for each delinquency occurring in all such other bond issues. This was against each piece of property in the city.

Delinquencies were right and left. I wouldn't vote nor sign as mayor.

ALAN BRUCE is applying for the job of San Anselmo city manager. He is entitled to a clean fiar break. But the City of San Anselmo is also entitled to a fair break in such an important decision.

As you know this column was started with and continues with streams of information about the expenses of county government.

I would be less than true to my home town if I didn't in some manner keep its citizens informed of this crisis in our affairs this day. (I am finishing this on my 86th birthday.)

Alan started out for the county in March of 1957 with a salary of $703 a month. July 1, 1970, his salary was $2,450.86 a month plus fringe benefits. You should have this in detail. Some interesting things occurred.

In justice to all concerned, appointment to the San Anselmo position should not be rushed. Our city has department heads who are carrying on all functions now in admirable fashion. They can continue until a careful decision is reached, based on more facts rather than pushed through by a small group.

CAPITOL QUIPS

By PHIL DESSAUER

When things get really desperate, we can count on Congress to pass a law making inflation illegal.

Several prospective candidates for vice president are ready for the race, but so far none has cleared the big test — hitting a spectator with a golf shot.

Professional football is becoming more complicated. Now fans have to cope with the offensive line, the defensive line, and the picket line.

ERNEST B. FURGURSON

First Job For Gerald Ford: Choosing A New Vice President

WASHINGTON — When a president quits or is impeached, his successor's problems are as heavy and perplexing as if the chief executive suddenly had died. The most urgent of those is choosing his own vice president.

Mr. Ford may have settled on someone long ago, the day he came into office by the same route. He may have been interviewing Republican politicians for the job without their knowing it during his incessant travels in these past nine months. That would mean he was showing the good judgment to look beyond his own long but narrow background in the House.

IT IS A POLITICAL decision, but what kind of politics? Traditional ticket balancing for the election two years hence? Intraparty politics at a time when the GOP will be badly fractured? Nonpartisan politics in seeking a smart, experienced, honest assistant president?

Ticket balancing for geography would mean picking someone outside the Middle West; for ideology, someone from the party's moderate-to-liberal ranks.

In two years Nelson Rockefeller will be 68 years old, a bit ripe even for a rich candidate for No. 2. Ronald Reagan will be 65, and besides he is too far right for this formula.

Elliott Richardson is constantly mentioned by everybody except Gerald Ford. But while voting for impeachment in Congress should not be a disqualifier, since so many apparently have done it, having played a leading role like Richardson's may be too much for the GOP regulars to accept. The same criterion would rule out William Ruckelshaus. John Gardner of Common Cause also is more popular with independents than with delegates to a Republican National Convention.

The list of GOP governors does not stop at Rockefeller and Reagan. Connecticut's Thomas Meskill, Iowa's Robert Ray, Massachusetts' Francis Sargent, Michigan's William Milliken, Oregon's Tom McCall and Washington's Dan Evans meet the conventional requirements in one or both ways. Indianapolis' mayor, Richard Lugar, was among the cast theoretically considered by Mr. Nixon last year when he chose Mr. Ford.

IF THE NEXT president thought he needed to turn south, where the Republicans have done extremely well in recent elections, he would find the roster of prominent officials did not match the party's popular fashion. Yet at least two from that section must have Mr. Ford's serious attention. One is George Bush, former congressman from Texas and now GOP national chairman, who is rich, moderate and clean-cut, and whose state is a near necessity to Republican campaign success.

The other is Howard Baker, who played his role so carefully in the Senate Watergate hearings. And that brings us to the fount of presidential ambition, the U.S. Senate. The party would take Barry Goldwater by acclamation, but he is already 65. Either Charles Percy of Illinois or Charles Mathias of Maryland would give ideological balance. Robert Taft of Ohio would be centrist and respectable.

Then it is conceivable Ford would reach back into his quarter-century in the House and tap someone like John Anderson of Illinois, the House GOP conference chairman. It is far more than conceivable that from that same experience he would turn to Melvin Laird, who is not a congressman anymore but knows the Congress intimately, has cabinet and White House background, and is renowned for his political brains.

NOW, HAVING MADE a list long enough to skip no clear possibilities, my next thought is to hope Mr. Ford apraoches the problem differently. He has a special opportunity.

By the time the next election comes, the country will not care whether the incumbent vice president is from Maine or California, liberal or conservative. He will have established himself as a national figure, the vice president on the job, and will be rated on his performance there. So in at least one way Mr. Ford is in an enviable position; if he realizes it, he can start off by simply choosing the best man, with the knowledge that the political part will fall into place if his judgment is confirmed.

1974, Baltimore Sun.

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

Congress Stealing Billions In Social Security Savings

WASHINGTON — Every year the Congress of the United States is stealing several billion dollars from some three million American citizens who for years gave part of their earnings to Social Security and are now, at 65, denied thier own contributions.

Perhaps one should put quotation marks around that word "stealing," but if it isn't stealing, it is immoral, unfair, unethical and downright dishonest.

I SAY DISHONEST because this Social Security money is not the government's to withhold — and never was. It belongs to those who contributed and who are not now allowed to receive it. I say this ruling by Congress is dishonest because it violates an explicit promise which Congress made when it started the Social Security program in 1935 and repeatedly reaffirmed.

In recent years Congress has reneged, and several million workers who put aside their savings through Social Security are now not able to draw what they saved and what is theirs because they still want to do a little work and get paid for it. If they get paid more than $2,400 a year, these people are out $1 of what they had saved for every $2 they earn.

THE CRUEL UNFAIRNESS of this is doubly evident in the fact that there is no limit whatsoever on what a Social Security beneficiary can earn through bank interest, stocks and bonds, but only on what he earns by his own work and skills. He is penalized for that.

And he shouldn't be.

The government doesn't own this money it is denying to Social Security contributors over 65 who want to work. Those who paid it in own it. But Congress, under present statutes, says that if they want to earn extra money over $2,400 a year, they can't receive what they have contributed and which the Congress many times told them would be theirs "as a matter of right."

That is the exact promise of the Social Security Act when it was first passed — "a matter of right, not a matter of charity" — and it prevailed until Congress began tinkering with the law a few years ago.

SEN. BARRY GOLDWATER, R-Ariz., who has the credentials to speak out and who in many ways is the conscience of the Congress, calls this earnings limitation "morally wrong, illogical and a harm to the economy." He says:

"It is morally wrong because Social Security should not be a contract to quit work." A worker should not be forced to lose past savings because of present earnings.

If Congress wants to recover some of its lost confidence with the American people, it will not adjourn this year without repairing this egregious unfairness.

President Ford Needs All Our Help

The agony is ended.

No longer does the United States have a president secluded in his fortress White House, surrounding himself with an ever-dwindling guard of last-ditch defenders, battling desperately to save himself from criminal charges.

As of today, we have a president who can speak openly with Congress and the people, without having his words fuel suspicions. We have a president whose actions will not be manacled by a chain of past events. We have a president who will not have to be, as Richard Milhous Nixon put it last night, "a part-time president."

IT WAS A SAD hour for the nation when Mr. Nixon sat before television cameras to announce that he would be the first of 37 U.S. presidents to resign the office. It was sad because of what had gone before, of what had forced Mr. Nixon to that hard decision.

But in resigning, Mr. Nixon cleared the way for return of rational government. He put the interests of the nation first, without question, in this, his last act as president.

And as Gerald Ford took the oath of office today, the vitality of the United States system — which so many of our own people have found cause to criticize in recent years — was proved anew.

There was no coup. There was no palace uprising, nor military takeover. A president who had lost the confidence of Congress and people turned over the government to a successor he had himself chosen. Yet the new president assumed office without burden of the misdeeds of his predecessor.

That in itself is a remarkable demonstration of our system's vitality, its rationality, and its fairness.

Now we can, as far as the presidency is concerned, "forget Watergate." If any ghosts still inhabit White House closets, they are not haunting Gerald Ford.

BUT WE SHOULD NOT for a moment forget the lessons of Watergate.

The long agony found us close to the breakdown of our precious system. It found us with president and Congress embroiled in a contest for supremacy, with the processes of government short-circuited in some respects and damned to a standstill in others, with cynicism rampant and ideals twisted into incongruities.

We must not forget how close we came to a loss of civil liberties, how near we came to constitutional crisis, how — by our own inattention — we almost lost government of, by, and for the people in a struggle for power among men to whom politics became more important than democracy or honor.

We almost lost the system that saved us, in the sordid series of political machinations embraced by the code name, "Watergate."

BUT WE DIDN'T lose it. We have a new president. And with our help and the help of Congress, he can return government to its proper role as servant of the people.

President Gerald Ford can depend, at least for awhile, on the help of Congress, for he is well known and trusted by that body. But he will need more than that. He, and Congress, will need the help of all of us, regardless of our partisan or other affiliations.

The resignation of President Richard Nixon was one of the saddest hours in our history. But it can usher in one of the proudest hours. It is largely up to us.

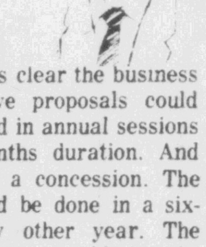
High-Pay Legislature Results In Deterioration



By EARL G. WATERS

Veteran observers of the legislative process, California style, have been increasingly disappointed, if not utterly frustrated, by the gradual sinking in the quality of work and overall caliber of membership.

This is not to say that there are not many able legislators in the two houses. It is in comparison to the members of former years that today's lawmakers come up short.

If one were to trace the course which has led to this situation, it might be attributed to the abolition of cross-filing which has resulted in an intense and unhealthy partisanship; the one-man, one-vote court decision which removed the influence of the rural Senate; and the move towards "professionalism" of the lawmakers and away from the "citizen-legislator" concepts.

THE BIGGEST SINGLE mistake was making the job profitable. Underthe citizen-legislator concept, the pay was token and the sessions were short. The deterioration started when the solons decided the office should be better compensated and, to justify that, contended it had become a full-time job.

All that needs be done to explode the myth of "full-time job" is to review the number of days the legislature is in actual session and the short hours of convening on those days. True, considerable time is spent in committee hearings, but even with that it is clear the business of handling legislative proposals could easily be accomplished in annual sessions of less than six months duration. And that is making quite a concession. The actual fact is it could be done in a six-month session every other year. The balance of the two years could then be spent, as it should be, in the much more significant work of interim studies of the many pressing problems of state government. And, with adequate and competent staff, interim work does not call for the full time of the members.

But, by raising the salaries, the lawmakers have created a situation where they feel they must be convened year-around even though they have to dilly-dally to spread the work out over so long a period.

THE SALARY RAISE did something else. It made the office attractive to people who were not capable of earning so much money elsewhere. Fewer of those with professional or business achievement in their home communities are being elected. There is a gradual transition to those who have no profession and have made no mark in life otherwise.

This type of "professional lawmaker" becomes a "professional officeholder." He does not possess the maturity which comes with having achieved, and he lacks close relationship with the community he represents.

Worse, having no profession or business to fall back upon, the matter of getting re-elected, sustaining his hold on the office, becomes paramount. It represents life or death to his economic existence. Under such circumstances, the office holder will do anything and everything to escape defeat at the polls.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Incorrect Name For Organization

In the July 4 issue of the I-J you had a very nice article about the "College for Kids" expanded program. It was gratifying to see the efforts of many people editorialized in the paper. However, the article alluded to the "Marin Association for Creative Children" as being one of the major associations for initiating the program. This should be the Marin Association for Gifted Children.

We felt this correction should be made to give the proper credit to a vital, hard-working organization and also to insure inquiries are directed to the proper place for a response.

Election Officer's Role In Fining Of Musser

In the public interest I would like to state my side of the story concerning my fine for failure to file a primary campaign statement on time.

Mr. Peterzell's article in your Aug. 5 edition is correct and factual up to the point where he said "but the elections office said he could wait because the fines may be waived." First, it was not the elections office who said anything, it was the elections officer personally who told me in effect that he would not accept my money at the time because Mr. Gnoss was waiting for an opinion from the secretary of state and he, the elections officer, would notify me when to pay the fine. He had not notified me by July 31 and since I had a long planned trip out of the county scheduled for Aug. 1, I proceeded to make the trip. On Friday, Aug. 2 Mr. Gnoss personally told me the fine should be paid and it was paid within 10 minutes.

But what is even more significant in view of the issue raised by Mr. Peterzell, was the fact that the notification from the elections office that the statement in question was due was postmarked three days before the due date but not received until four or five days after the due date. Since this was not a post office postmark, but simply the county clerk's postage meter postmark, it is not hard to understand how this delay could have happened.

Babe Ruth Tournament Coverage Pleases

On behalf of the leagues in District 9 (Marin and Sonoma Counties) I want to thank the Independent-Journal sports staff for the daily coverage of our recent Babe Ruth all-star tournaments held in Santa Rosa and Sonoma.

Special thanks to Vernon (Lefty) Gomez of Fairfax, chairman of the international Babe Ruth board of directors and a baseball Hall of Famer, who for the second straight year presented awards at our tournament for 15-year-olds. We were extremely honored at having such a distinguished gentleman in attendance.

Both of our district champions were runners-up in the state tournaments.

Santa Rosa, the 15-year-old winner, won the northern section state tournament in Stockton, beating Eel River in the finals, but then lost two one-run decisions to defending champion Lompoc in the state playoff in Hollister.

West Side Santa Rosa, the 13-year-old champion, bowed to unbeaten Vallejo in the finals of the 11-team state tournament in Visalia. West Side also distinguished itself by winning the state's sportsmanship award.

Thanks to everyone who made District 9's season a complete success.

San Anselmo Should Move Carefully On Administrator

Today I am departing from a self-imposed rule. It has been on rare occasions that I have departed from it. That is in discussing matters of intra character in our cities.

Those times, I believe, were in praising my home town, San Anselmo. I have had a love affair with this lovely place for more than 50 years. Yes, more than 55 years. I have been so proud, over these years, to serve it directly or indirectly.

Two of such times have been of particular pride to me. One, the installation of the first police two-way radio in any small town in the state.

MY OTHER was my "stubborn" refusal to either vote for a procedure which would have actually taken property away from its then owners through foreclosure, because of a freak situation I will describe later, nor sign the instruments to make such an act legal . . .

That battle with powerful interests went on for years. It was not settled until I had been off the San Anselmo City Council for several years.

What I refused to do saved the property of many owners still in possession. Here is how it went:

Some promoters of street paving (let me stress — not all, by any means, but enough to create a deplorable situation) would work over whole sections, with some "bellweather" simp. They would work up a demand for new pavement, curbs and gutters. The costs they would quote were invariably about one-half of the amount billed to the owners when the work was done. The assessments were in most cases higher than the property could be sold for.

The bonds covering the work would be bought immediately by a certain kind of bond house and resold to farmers in the Middle West. The bond act tried to make it mandatory that a city or county assess up to 10 cents per $100 valuation for each delinquency occurring in all such other bond issues. This was against each piece of property in the city.

Delinquencies were right and left. I wouldn't vote nor sign as mayor.

ALAN BRUCE is applying for the job of San Anselmo city manager. He is entitled to a clean fiar break. But the City of San Anselmo is also entitled to a fair break in such an important decision.

As you know this column was started with and continues with streams of information about the expenses of county government.

I would be less than true to my home town if I didn't in some manner keep its citizens informed of this crisis in our affairs this day. (I am finishing this on my 86th birthday.)

Alan started out for the county in March of 1957 with a salary of $703 a month. July 1, 1970, his salary was $2,450.86 a month plus fringe benefits. You should have this in detail. Some interesting things occurred.

In justice to all concerned, appointment to the San Anselmo position should not be rushed. Our city has department heads who are carrying on all functions now in admirable fashion. They can continue until a careful decision is reached, based on more facts rather than pushed through by a small group.

CAPITOL QUIPS

ERNEST B. FURGURSON

First Job For Gerald Ford: Choosing A New Vice President

WASHINGTON — When a president quits or is impeached, his successor's problems are as heavy and perplexing as if the chief executive suddenly had died. The most urgent of those is choosing his own vice president.

Mr. Ford may have settled on someone long ago, the day he came into office by the same route. He may have been interviewing Republican politicians for the job without their knowing it during his incessant travels in these past nine months. That would mean he was showing the good judgment to look beyond his own long but narrow background in the House.

IT IS A POLITICAL decision, but what kind of politics? Traditional ticket balancing for the election two years hence? Intraparty politics at a time when the GOP will be badly fractured? Nonpartisan politics in seeking a smart, experienced, honest assistant president?

Ticket balancing for geography would mean picking someone outside the Middle West; for ideology, someone from the party's moderate-to-liberal ranks.

In two years Nelson Rockefeller will be 68 years old, a bit ripe even for a rich candidate for No. 2. Ronald Reagan will be 65, and besides he is too far right for this formula.

Elliott Richardson is constantly mentioned by everybody except Gerald Ford. But while voting for impeachment in Congress should not be a disqualifier, since so many apparently have done it, having played a leading role like Richardson's may be too much for the GOP regulars to accept. The same criterion would rule out William Ruckelshaus. John Gardner of Common Cause also is more popular with independents than with delegates to a Republican National Convention.

The list of GOP governors does not stop at Rockefeller and Reagan. Connecticut's Thomas Meskill, Iowa's Robert Ray, Massachusetts' Francis Sargent, Michigan's William Milliken, Oregon's Tom McCall and Washington's Dan Evans meet the conventional requirements in one or both ways. Indianapolis' mayor, Richard Lugar, was among the cast theoretically considered by Mr. Nixon last year when he chose Mr. Ford.

IF THE NEXT president thought he needed to turn south, where the Republicans have done extremely well in recent elections, he would find the roster of prominent officials did not match the party's popular fashion. Yet at least two from that section must have Mr. Ford's serious attention. One is George Bush, former congressman from Texas and now GOP national chairman, who is rich, moderate and clean-cut, and whose state is a near necessity to Republican campaign success.

The other is Howard Baker, who played his role so carefully in the Senate Watergate hearings. And that brings us to the fount of presidential ambition, the U.S. Senate. The party would take Barry Goldwater by acclamation, but he is already 65. Either Charles Percy of Illinois or Charles Mathias of Maryland would give ideological balance. Robert Taft of Ohio would be centrist and respectable.

Then it is conceivable Ford would reach back into his quarter-century in the House and tap someone like John Anderson of Illinois, the House GOP conference chairman. It is far more than conceivable that from that same experience he would turn to Melvin Laird, who is not a congressman anymore but knows the Congress intimately, has cabinet and White House background, and is renowned for his political brains.

NOW, HAVING MADE a list long enough to skip no clear possibilities, my next thought is to hope Mr. Ford apraoches the problem differently. He has a special opportunity.

By the time the next election comes, the country will not care whether the incumbent vice president is from Maine or California, liberal or conservative. He will have established himself as a national figure, the vice president on the job, and will be rated on his performance there. So in at least one way Mr. Ford is in an enviable position; if he realizes it, he can start off by simply choosing the best man, with the knowledge that the political part will fall into place if his judgment is confirmed.

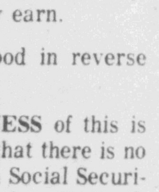
ROSCOE DRUMMOND



Congress Stealing Billions In Social Security Savings

WASHINGTON — Every year the Congress of the United States is stealing several billion dollars from some three million American citizens who for years gave part of their earnings to Social Security and are now, at 65, denied thier own contributions.

Perhaps one should put quotation marks around that word "stealing," but if it isn't stealing, it is immoral, unfair, unethical and downright dishonest.

I SAY DISHONEST because this Social Security money is not the government's to withhold — and never was. It belongs to those who contributed and who are not now allowed to receive it. I say this ruling by Congress is dishonest because it violates an explicit promise which Congress made when it started the Social Security program in 1935 and repeatedly reaffirmed.

In recent years Congress has reneged, and several million workers who put aside their savings through Social Security are now not able to draw what they saved and what is theirs because they still want to do a little work and get paid for it. If they get paid more than $2,400 a year, these people are out $1 of what they had saved for every $2 they earn.

THE CRUEL UNFAIRNESS of this is doubly evident in the fact that there is no limit whatsoever on what a Social Security beneficiary can earn through bank interest, stocks and bonds, but only on what he earns by his own work and skills. He is penalized for that.

And he shouldn't be.

The government doesn't own this money it is denying to Social Security contributors over 65 who want to work. Those who paid it in own it. But Congress, under present statutes, says that if they want to earn extra money over $2,400 a year, they can't receive what they have contributed and which the Congress many times told them would be theirs "as a matter of right."

That is the exact promise of the Social Security Act when it was first passed — "a matter of right, not a matter of charity" — and it prevailed until Congress began tinkering with the law a few years ago.

SEN. BARRY GOLDWATER, R-Ariz., who has the credentials to speak out and who in many ways is the conscience of the Congress, calls this earnings limitation "morally wrong, illogical and a harm to the economy." He says:

"It is morally wrong because Social Security should not be a contract to quit work." A worker should not be forced to lose past savings because of present earnings.

If Congress wants to recover some of its lost confidence with the American people, it will not adjourn this year without repairing this egregious unfairness.

A CLOSE LOOK

Eula Boardman Brings Foreign Boys To Marin

By BARBARA HOSMER

Because Eula Boardman of Sebastopol did what seemed practical to her, 14 exchange students visiting in Petaluma will go home with a taste of American corporate business, dairying, sheep shearing, tortilla-making and family life — both pioneer and modern.

Wife of Wesley Boardman, Petaluma Adobe Lions Club president, she scheduled a full three weeks of learning for the 13 Japanese and one French boy's, a program that involved all 35 families of the host club.

EULA BOARDMAN
A practical plan

The emphasis on giving the students a close look at industry and local government, giving them some history and organizing group recreation, she later found may have been unique within the Lions Clubs International Youth Exchange Program. She will pass her idea along to the international organization.

"It was the first time the Adobe Club had had a youth exchange program, and I thought that this was what I was supposed to do," Mrs. Boardman explained.

"Closeness of the whole group, American families and visitors, was a main objective of the plan and it went into operation the moment the visitors arrived. After their almost 24 hours of travel to Petaluma, Mrs. Boardman immediately held a reception for students. "Everyone was so tired, their defenses were down and it was a good time to break down any barriers," she explained. "It worked," she added.

Following her carefully drawn schedule, the 17 to 21-year-old students and the host club families, often numbering over 100 persons, held a weekend campout at Lakeport, toured the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. headquarters for 14 states in San Francisco, canoed on the Russian River, toured Marin Civic Center for a closeup of county government, joined in an old fashioned potluck meal at McDowell Park in Petaluma, toured Mission San Rafael Arcangel and the Napa Valley wine country.

They carpooled to San Francisco to visit the Presidio operations dispersal office for the entire Army and the life insurance corporation for a view of operations of huge public and private organizations. But they also observed Petaluma's local industries at two dairy ranches and a chicken ranch, sampled the cheeses at the Marin French Cheese Factory and attended the Santa Rosa Livestock auction.

Highlight of the whole tour, Mrs. Boardman said, was the 24 hours they spent at the Old Adobe near Petaluma. There the mainly Japanese group learned about Indian and pioneer life by grinding corn with pestle and mortar, making tortillas and tostados, milking a goat, making leather crafts to take home, churning butter and shearing sheep.

One Japanese girl who helped shear did such a good job that the lamb was a winner at the Santa Rosa County Fair, Mrs. Boardman said. "And she'd never seen a sheep before."

The idea was to keep things as close to pioneer life as possible. "We hoped to stage a mock Indian raid that night, but the students never went to bed," Mrs. Boardman commented. Instead, they sang around the camp fire until 4 a.m.

When the students left Sunday to board the airplane for Los Angeles, the Adobe Lions Club families warned them that their stay with families there would probably be far more individualized.

The only real hitch in the three weeks had been that the prime rib dinner at Sebastopol Memorial Building drew twice as many persons as had signed up and more food had to be cooked.

Sure now that they can handle large groups, the Boardmans and Lions are hoping for 20 exchange students next summer.

Assembly Unanimously Returns $18 Million To Mental Health

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Assembly voted unanimously yesterday to restore $18 million of $23 million cut by Gov. Ronald Reagan from this year's budget for support of local mental health programs.

Agreement had been reached between Reagan and legislative leaders on the compromise sum after harsh reaction to the governor's vetoes. It was warned that many programs would have to be cut back significantly without the money.

The appropriations bill (AB4513) was rushed to the Senate on a 73-0 vote with no debate. It was carried by the Assembly's ranking mental health expert, Assemblyman Frank Lanterman, R-La Canada.

Fully restored was $10 million for direct support of local mental health facilities. Another $5.25 million was earmarked for local after-care centers, which was three-fourths the amount originally contained in the budget.

The final $2.75 million was for treatment of mentally disabled Californians, which was half the amount budgeted.

When Reagan made the budget vetoes in June he called existing funds "sufficient" to keep the programs operating.

Lanterman explained the governor made a mistake, perhaps, he said, because the Legislature gave Reagan only two days to review more than 400 budget items before it had to be signed into law.

Mental health authorities from throughout the state raised an outcry at the vetoes, warning that unless the funds were restored mental health programs would suffer.

An emphasis on local care has been the cornerstone of Reagan's approach to treatment of the mentally ill and disabled during the 7½ years of his administration.

A CLOSE LOOK

Eula Boardman Brings Foreign Boys To Marin

By BARBARA HOSMER

Because Eula Boardman of Sebastopol did what seemed practical to her, 14 exchange students visiting in Petaluma will go home with a taste of American corporate business, dairying, sheep shearing, tortilla-making and family life — both pioneer and modern.

Wife of Wesley Boardman, Petaluma Adobe Lions Club president, she scheduled a full three weeks of learning for the 13 Japanese and one French boy's, a program that involved all 35 families of the host club.

The emphasis on giving the students a close look at industry and local government, giving them some history and organizing group recreation, she later found may have been unique within the Lions Clubs International Youth Exchange Program. She will pass her idea along to the international organization.

EULA BOARDMAN

"It was the first time the Adobe Club had had a youth exchange program, and I thought that this was what I was supposed to do," Mrs. Boardman explained.

"Closeness of the whole group, American families and visitors, was a main objective of the plan and it went into operation the moment the visitors arrived. After their almost 24 hours of travel to Petaluma, Mrs. Boardman immediately held a reception for students. "Everyone was so tired, their defenses were down and it was a good time to break down any barriers," she explained. "It worked," she added.

Following her carefully drawn schedule, the 17 to 21-year-old students and the host club families, often numbering over 100 persons, held a weekend campout at Lakeport, toured the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. headquarters for 14 states in San Francisco, canoed on the Russian River, toured Marin Civic Center for a closeup of county government, joined in an old fashioned potluck meal at McDowell Park in Petaluma, toured Mission San Rafael Arcangel and the Napa Valley wine country.

They carpooled to San Francisco to visit the Presidio operations dispersal office for the entire Army and the life insurance corporation for a view of operations of huge public and private organizations. But they also observed Petaluma's local industries at two dairy ranches and a chicken ranch, sampled the cheeses at the Marin French Cheese Factory and attended the Santa Rosa Livestock auction.

Highlight of the whole tour, Mrs. Boardman said, was the 24 hours they spent at the Old Adobe near Petaluma. There the mainly Japanese group learned about Indian and pioneer life by grinding corn with pestle and mortar, making tortillas and tostados, milking a goat, making leather crafts to take home, churning butter and shearing sheep.

One Japanese girl who helped shear did such a good job that the lamb was a winner at the Santa Rosa County Fair, Mrs. Boardman said. "And she'd never seen a sheep before."

The idea was to keep things as close to pioneer life as possible. "We hoped to stage a mock Indian raid that night, but the students never went to bed," Mrs. Boardman commented. Instead, they sang around the camp fire until 4 a.m.

When the students left Sunday to board the airplane for Los Angeles, the Adobe Lions Club families warned them that their stay with families there would probably be far more individualized.

The only real hitch in the three weeks had been that the prime rib dinner at Sebastopol Memorial Building drew twice as many persons as had signed up and more food had to be cooked.

Sure now that they can handle large groups, the Boardmans and Lions are hoping for 20 exchange students next summer.

Assembly Unanimously Returns $18 Million To Mental Health

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Assembly voted unanimously yesterday to restore $18 million of $23 million cut by Gov. Ronald Reagan from this year's budget for support of local mental health programs.

Agreement had been reached between Reagan and legislative leaders on the compromise sum after harsh reaction to the governor's vetoes. It was warned that many programs would have to be cut back significantly without the money.

The appropriations bill (AB4513) was rushed to the Senate on a 73-0 vote with no debate. It was carried by the Assembly's ranking mental health expert, Assemblyman Frank Lanterman, R-La Canada.

Fully restored was $10 million for direct support of local mental health facilities. Another $5.25 million was earmarked for local after-care centers, which was three-fourths the amount originally contained in the budget.

The final $2.75 million was for treatment of mentally disabled Californians, which was half the amount budgeted.

When Reagan made the budget vetoes in June he called existing funds "sufficient" to keep the programs operating.

Lanterman explained the governor made a mistake, perhaps, he said, because the Legislature gave Reagan only two days to review more than 400 budget items before it had to be signed into law.

Mental health authorities from throughout the state raised an outcry at the vetoes, warning that unless the funds were restored mental health programs would suffer.

An emphasis on local care has been the cornerstone of Reagan's approach to treatment of the mentally ill and disabled during the 7½ years of his administration.

Seventh Crisis, Watergate, Nixon's Undoing

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The author of the following dispatch covered the activities of Richard M. Nixon when he first was elected to Congress in 1946. He also reported on Nixon's role in breaking the Alger Hiss-Whittaker Chambers "Pumpkin Papers" spy case. He has been an avid Nixon watcher since.)

United Press International

When Richard Milhous Nixon wrote "Six Crises," he could not have foreseen that his greatest crisis lay ahead, a scandal of historic proportions that dragged him from the pinnacle of power and personal popularity and finally destroyed him politically.

Stretching over three decades, Nixon's political career was an amazing pattern of crests and troughs, of triumphs and defeats. Watergate was his nadir —the most precipitous fall from favor of any modern American politician.

From this fall there was no hope of the comeback Nixon had made his trademark in public life. Twice before, he seemed destined for the political scrap heap when he lost his first bid for the presidency in 1960 and then the governorship of California two years later. It was then he delivered the famous post-election line: "You won't have Nixon to kick around any more."

Yet six years later he was elected President and then went on to win a second term by one of the greatest landslides in American political history.

It seems cruel irony that the clumsy Watergate break-in in June, 1972, should have come at a time when Nixon's prospects for re-election were already so bright, promising four more years to achieve world peace and seek the "new American revolution" at home.

But many politicians blame Nixon himself. They feel he could have deflected the entire scandal at the outset merely by declaring he would get to the bottom of the break-in at Democratic National Committee headquarters and deal summarily with anyone in his administration who might be involved.

Nixon did not do this.

Instead, the White House dismissed the break-in as a "third-rate burglary" while Nixon, for more than two years, kept secret the fact that he was an active participant in a cover-up designed to insure that nothing interfered with his re-election.

Money was paid, allegedly to buy the silence of those who burglarized the Watergate. There were investigations of Nixon's federal tax returns, improvements made on his personal properties at taxpayers' expense and his campaign financing. Some of his aides resigned or were fired. Others were indicted, convicted and jailed.

Others still face trial in the cover-up, including H.R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman, the two men in the White House upon whom he depended most, and John N. Mitchell, Nixon's attorney general and briefly director of his 1972 campaign.

The House Judiciary Committee, after six days of nationally televised debate, approved three articles of impeachment against Nixon charging him with abuse of power, obstruction of justice and failure to comply with committee subpoenas. With some Republican members joining in, the panel recommended his conviction by the Senate and removal from office.

For only the second time in U.S. history, a President faced the threat of the ultimate disgrace provided by the Constitution. In the only previous case, Andrew Johnson escaped conviction by a single vote in 1868, finished his term and left office an embittered man. He died a few years later.

The biggest single blow to Nixon's hope of containing the scandals was the Supreme Court's 8-0 ruling that he must surrender 64 White House tapes to the special Watergate prosecutor. Aware that defiance of the Court would mean almost automatic impeachment, Nixon agreed to turn over the tapes.

And with that, he was forced to admit he had discussed the break-in with Haldeman six days after it occurred, and had directed that the FBI be ordered to curb its investigation not only to avoid compromising CIA activities but to conceal the involvement of his reelection campaign committee.

The President conceded he had been wrong. but insisted that what he had done still did not warrant impeachment. The damage, however, was done. His supporters in Congress, including Republicans who defended him most strongly during the Judiciary Committee hearings, defected by the dozens.

Nixon acknowledged that impeachment by the House was a foregone conclusion but vowed to see his ordeal through despite a rising chorus of demands that he resign.

Nixon emerged on the political scene in 1946 as a scarcely noticed House member from California's 12th district after an election in which Republicans won control of Congress for the first time since the days of Herbert Hoover.

In Washington, he was given two relatively unimportant committee assignments. On the House Labor and Education Committee he served with a much-better known freshman — Rep. John F. Kennedy, D-Mass.

It was his post on the House Committee on Un-American Activities that provided Nixon with his chance to move into the limelight.

The committee attracted heavy press attention and liberal criticism for its handling of its anti-Communist hearings. In August, 1948, the Alger Hiss-Whittaker Chambers case surfaced and Nixon faced the first of his crises.

At issue was which of two men was telling the truth: Chambers, a Time magazine editor, who swore that he had known Hiss, a former State Department official, as a Communist party member of an espionage operation in the early New Deal Days; or Hiss who indignantly denied the charge under oath.

At the outset, most committee members believed Hiss, head of the prestigious Carnegie Endowment. But Nixon, helped by a top Washington newsman, the late Bert Andrews, dug into the background of the two men and became convinced Hiss was lying.

He staked his fledgling reputation on that belief and a jury ultimately convicted Hiss of perjury.

Nixon acknowledged in "Six Crises" that the case brought him the national attention that led to his later career. But he also wrote that "it left a residue of hatred and hostility toward me ... among substantial segments of the press and the intellectual community."

His next step up the political ladder was a successful 1950 race for the Senate seat in California against Helen Gahagan Douglas, a staunch New Deal Democrat.

His Senate service was brief and Nixon's star was still ascending when Dwight D. Eisenhower picked him as his vice presidential running-mate in 1952. At that point, the "Checkers" crisis occurred and almost finished off Nixon.

In the midst of the campaign, news stories broke that a group of wealthy Californians had raised $18,235 for a special fund to help underwrite Nixon's expenses as senator. Eisenhower declared his young running-mate would have to come "as clean as a hound's tooth." Some influential Republicans advocated that he get off the ticket.

Nixon responded with a counter-offensive — a technique to became his political hallmark. He quickly arranged a national television appearance and from a Los Angeles studio delivered this defense:

He said he never had been influenced to do special favors for his fund contributors. He listed his assets and bank holdings down to the penny. He emphasized that his wife, Pat, wore only "a respectable Republican cloth coat." He told of receiving a personal gift from an admirer — a black-and-white cocker spaniel puppy which his daughter named Checkers — and which was prominently displayed for television cameras.

It was corny but effective. Eisenhower accepted Nixon's explanation and at Wheeling, W.Va., embraced his vice presidential candidate with the public assertion: "That's my boy."

The Eisenhower-Nixon ticket was elected by landslide proportions in 1952 and again in 1956. There were three main highlights of his eight years in the vice presidency:

In the fall of 1955, Eisenhower suffered a serious heart attack and Nixon was in the limelight as an unofficial "acting President" during Ike's months of convalescence.

In 1958 during a good-will mission to Latin America, Nixon and his wife were threatened physically by a hostile Communist mob in Caracas and drew general praise for meeting the situation with courage and coolness.

In 1959, he and Soviet Premier Nikita Khruschev engaged in their widely publicized "kitchen debate" at a trade fair in Moscow and Nixon emerged as a firm and skillful defender of the free enterprise system.

At 47, Nixon captured the 1960 Republican presidential nomination without difficulty and entered the campaign as favorite over his Democratic rival, John F. Kennedy.

On Nov. 8, 1960, Nixon lost an election for the first time. Kennedy won by an electoral college margin of 303 to 219 but by only 118,550 votes in the actual polling.

In 1962, Nixon's fortunes took a drastic downward turn when he was defeated for the California governorship by incumbent Democrat Edmund G. (Pat) Brown.

Seemingly, Nixon had gone down the political drain but events were in store that would thrust him upward again. Kennedy was assassinated and his successor, Lyndon B. Johnson, scored a landslide triumph over conservative GOP Sen. Barry M. Goldwater in 1964 that left the Republican party shattered and leaderless.

By 1965, a less confident but more mature Nixon tentatively returned to the public scene. In the hinterlands, he spoke at local party meetings in school gyms attended by 40 or 50 people. In the mid-term elections of 1966, he was in full swing, campaigning on behalf of congressional candidates in 82 districts.

The Republicans picked up 47 House seats and Nixon won the gratitude of GOP leaders in almost every area of the country.

What had been a brushfire operation in Vietnam became a full-scale war that grew increasingly unpopular. It was responsible for Johnson's decision early in 1968 that he would not run again for the presidency.

The leading active Republican, Michigan Gov. George Romney, blundered by saying he had been "brainwashed" on Vietnam and took himself out of contention even before the New Hampshire primary.

Another rival, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, wound up announcing himself not a candidate, then became a candidate, and succeeded in alienating a fellow governor from Maryland, Spiro T. Agnew.

With no active opposition, Nixon shed his loser's image in the primaries, particularly in Oregon against California Gov. Ronald Reagan. At the Miami Beach convention, he thwarted a Rockefeller-Reagan bid to stop him and won the nomination on the first ballot.

On Nov. 5, 1968, Richard M. Nixon was elected President of the United States by a heavy electoral college majority but with only 43.4 per cent of the popular vote.

In year-end Gallup Polls for 1970 and 1971, Nixon was listed as the man most admired by the American people. His performance as President registered nearly 70 per cent approval.

On Nov. 7, 1972, Nixon and Agnew swept to re-election on a tidal wave of votes that carried 49 states and won 60.7 per cent of the total vote. Nixon overwhelmed Democrat George S. McGovern by nearly 18 million votes —the greatest in electoral history —and had the endorsement of 47,167,319 Americans.

Even though the Republicans failed to make significant gains in Congress and had suffered setbacks at the governorship level, Nixon in his final election contest had reached his pinnacle of popularity and authority.

It enabled him — almost with impunity — to bomb Hanoi and mine Haiphong in an effort to force North Vietnam to yield. It let him undertake sweeping reorganization of the executive branch of the government and positioned him for an anticipated series of fights with the Democratic Congress.

But then began the astonishing events known as Watergate — and Nixon's greatest crisis was upon him.

The arrest of seven men for the burglary and bugging of Democratic National Headquarters in the plush Watergate apartment complex on June 17, 1972, had stirred relatively little public interest during the election year.

The White House discounted the break-in. News accounts that the trail led to the Committee to Re-Elect the President and to the White House itself drew denials and an assertion by Nixon that no one presently on his staff was involved.

The Watergate trial before U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica produced little sensational testimony, as five of the seven defendants pleaded guilty and two others, James McCord and G. Gordon Liddy, were convicted by a jury.

A special seven-man Senate investigating committee headed by Sen. Sam J. Ervin had been set up, but seemed to pose no more problems than previous random congressional inquiries that had disclosed nothing too damaging.

On sentencing day, March 23, 1973, Sirica announced McCord had written him a letter charging the trial had been marked by perjury, pressure and cover-up attempts by higher-ups.

On April 17, Nixon announced he had instituted a new White House investigation of Watergate on March 21 because of "serious charges which came to my attention." He acknowledged there had been "major developments" in the case.

Then like a series of depth charges, event exploded after event.

The President's two closest White House advisers, Haldeman and Ehrlichman, resigned; White House Counsel John W. Dean III was fired; Attorney General Richard M. Kleindienst quit.

Two former cabinet members and top Nixon campaign leaders, John N. Mitchell and Maurice Stans, were indicted on charges of bribery and perjury in connection with an illegal campaign contribution. They were acquitted.

Dean, who had been assigned to supervise the original White House investigation, swore under oath before the Senate committee and a national television audience that Nixon was aware of the Watergate cover-up efforts by his aides.

The White House tapes came to light and Nixon refused to give them up under subpoena either to a special Watergate grand jury or the Senate panel. Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox was fired. Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson quit, and his deputy, William Ruckelshaus, also was dismissed in what was dubbed "The Saturday Night Massacre."

Spiro T. Agnew pleaded no contest to federal charges of income tax evasion involving payments from contractors while governor of Maryland. He resigned as vice president.

A beleaguered Nixon, faced with a possible historic confrontation in the Supreme Court, agreed to turn over the White House tapes to Sirica but his attorneys said that two of them never existed, and it was discovered an 18-½ minute portion of a third had been erased.

The House authorized its Judiciary Committee to consider possible impeachment of the President. There were blunt public demands that Nixon resign once Agnew's successor, Rep. Gerald R. Ford, was confirmed.

Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski disclosed that Haldeman, Ehrlichman, Mitchell, Charles Colson and three other Nixon aides had been indicted in the cover-up.

Even before the Watergate crisis had snowballed to these proportions, a poll showed that only 9 per cent of the people felt Nixon was being "frank and honest," and 63 per cent believed he had withheld information about the case.

In May, 1973, only 14 per cent of those polled said he should resign and 75 per cent opposed. By November, 43 per cent favored his resignation with only 47 per cent opposed and Nixon's approval rating as President had plummeted to 27 per cent.

In that same month, Nixon launched "Operation Candor" in an effort to restore public confidence in his shaken presidency.

He insisted he would not resign. He promised Republic congressmen he would satisfactorily answer all questions about Watergate along with charges that he had used a loophole to escape all but minimal income taxes and severe criticism on government money spent on his Florida and California homes.

The President also told a televised news conference with a group of managing editors: "I am not a crook." But a poll conducted just days before showed that 44 per cent of those questioned believed that Watergate would show Nixon had violated the law and 46 per cent deemed him a man not of high integrity.

A congressional committee and the Internal Revenue Service ruled that his income tax deductions had been illegal, and the IRS sent him a bill for more than $500,000 in back taxes and penalties. Nixon said he would pay, but that it would wipe out his assets.

Nixon's problems burgeoned. Charges were leveled that the President was involved in a controversial decision to raise milk price support levels, shortly after $2 million was pledged to his re-election campaign by dairy cooperatives.

It was disclosed that International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. had offered $400,000 cash to help underwrite the 1972 Republican National Convention if it were held in San Diego. The offer came a short time after the administration's controversial decision to drop an antitrust suit against the giant conglomerate.

Finally, there were the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment hearings, the Supreme Court order to surrender the tapes and Nixon's concession that he had been in on the cover-up.

The alternatives seemed clear: resign or be ousted.

And so, just when Nixon should have been basking in the glory of his greatest triumphs, he was fighting for his political life.

Watergate — his seventh crisis — was his undoing.

Eisenhower declared his young running-mate would have to come "as clean as a hound's tooth." Some influential Republicans advocated that he get off the ticket.

Nixon responded with a counter-offensive — a technique to became his political hallmark. He quickly arranged a national television appearance and from a Los Angeles studio delivered this defense:

He said he never had been influenced to do special favors for his fund contributors. He listed his assets and bank holdings down to the penny. He emphasized that his wife, Pat, wore only "a respectable Republican cloth coat." He told of receiving a personal gift from an admirer — a black-and-white cocker spaniel puppy which his daughter named Checkers — and which was prominently displayed for television cameras.

It was corny but effective. Eisenhower accepted Nixon's explanation and at Wheeling, W.Va., embraced his vice presidential candidate with the public assertion: "That's my boy."

The Eisenhower-Nixon ticket was elected by landslide proportions in 1952 and again in 1956. There were three main highlights of his eight years in the vice presidency:

In the fall of 1955, Eisenhower suffered a serious heart attack and Nixon was in the limelight as an unofficial "acting President" during Ike's months of convalescence.

In 1958 during a good-will mission to Latin America, Nixon and his wife were threatened physically by a hostile Communist mob in Caracas and drew general praise for meeting the situation with courage and coolness.

In 1959, he and Soviet Premier Nikita Khruschev engaged in their widely publicized "kitchen debate" at a trade fair in Moscow and Nixon emerged as a firm and skillful defender of the free enterprise system.

At 47, Nixon captured the 1960 Republican presidential nomination without difficulty and entered the campaign as favorite over his Democratic rival, John F. Kennedy.

On Nov. 8, 1960, Nixon lost an election for the first time. Kennedy won by an electoral college margin of 303 to 219 but by only 118,550 votes in the actual polling.

In 1962, Nixon's fortunes took a drastic downward turn when he was defeated for the California governorship by incumbent Democrat Edmund G. (Pat) Brown.

Seemingly, Nixon had gone down the political drain but events were in store that would thrust him upward again. Kennedy was assassinated and his successor, Lyndon B. Johnson, scored a landslide triumph over conservative GOP Sen. Barry M. Goldwater in 1964 that left the Republican party shattered and leaderless.

By 1965, a less confident but more mature Nixon tentatively returned to the public scene. In the hinterlands, he spoke at local party meetings in school gyms attended by 40 or 50 people. In the mid-term elections of 1966, he was in full swing, campaigning on behalf of congressional candidates in 82 districts.

The Republicans picked up 47 House seats and Nixon won the gratitude of GOP leaders in almost every area of the country.

What had been a brushfire operation in Vietnam became a full-scale war that grew increasingly unpopular. It was responsible for Johnson's decision early in 1968 that he would not run again for the presidency.

The leading active Republican, Michigan Gov. George Romney, blundered by saying he had been "brainwashed" on Vietnam and took himself out of contention even before the New Hampshire primary.

Another rival, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, wound up announcing himself not a candidate, then became a candidate, and succeeded in alienating a fellow governor from Maryland, Spiro T. Agnew.

With no active opposition, Nixon shed his loser's image in the primaries, particularly in Oregon against California Gov. Ronald Reagan. At the Miami Beach convention, he thwarted a Rockefeller-Reagan bid to stop him and won the nomination on the first ballot.

On Nov. 5, 1968, Richard M. Nixon was elected President of the United States by a heavy electoral college majority but with only 43.4 per cent of the popular vote.

In year-end Gallup Polls for 1970 and 1971, Nixon was listed as the man most admired by the American people. His performance as President registered nearly 70 per cent approval.

On Nov. 7, 1972, Nixon and Agnew swept to re-election on a tidal wave of votes that carried 49 states and won 60.7 per cent of the total vote. Nixon overwhelmed Democrat George S. McGovern by nearly 18 million votes —the greatest in electoral history —and had the endorsement of 47,167,319 Americans.

Even though the Republicans failed to make significant gains in Congress and had suffered setbacks at the governorship level, Nixon in his final election contest had reached his pinnacle of popularity and authority.

It enabled him — almost with impunity — to bomb Hanoi and mine Haiphong in an effort to force North Vietnam to yield. It let him undertake sweeping reorganization of the executive branch of the government and positioned him for an anticipated series of fights with the Democratic Congress.

But then began the astonishing events known as Watergate — and Nixon's greatest crisis was upon him.

The arrest of seven men for the burglary and bugging of Democratic National Headquarters in the plush Watergate apartment complex on June 17, 1972, had stirred relatively little public interest during the election year.

The White House discounted the break-in. News accounts that the trail led to the Committee to Re-Elect the President and to the White House itself drew denials and an assertion by Nixon that no one presently on his staff was involved.

The Watergate trial before U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica produced little sensational testimony, as five of the seven defendants pleaded guilty and two others, James McCord and G. Gordon Liddy, were convicted by a jury.

A special seven-man Senate investigating committee headed by Sen. Sam J. Ervin had been set up, but seemed to pose no more problems than previous random congressional inquiries that had disclosed nothing too damaging.

On sentencing day, March 23, 1973, Sirica announced McCord had written him a letter charging the trial had been marked by perjury, pressure and cover-up attempts by higher-ups.

On April 17, Nixon announced he had instituted a new White House investigation of Watergate on March 21 because of "serious charges which came to my attention." He acknowledged there had been "major developments" in the case.

Then like a series of depth charges, event exploded after event.

The President's two closest White House advisers, Haldeman and Ehrlichman, resigned; White House Counsel John W. Dean III was fired; Attorney General Richard M. Kleindienst quit.

Two former cabinet members and top Nixon campaign leaders, John N. Mitchell and Maurice Stans, were indicted on charges of bribery and perjury in connection with an illegal campaign contribution. They were acquitted.

Dean, who had been assigned to supervise the original White House investigation, swore under oath before the Senate committee and a national television audience that Nixon was aware of the Watergate cover-up efforts by his aides.

The White House tapes came to light and Nixon refused to give them up under subpoena either to a special Watergate grand jury or the Senate panel. Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox was fired. Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson quit, and his deputy, William Ruckelshaus, also was dismissed in what was dubbed "The Saturday Night Massacre."

Spiro T. Agnew pleaded no contest to federal charges of income tax evasion involving payments from contractors while governor of Maryland. He resigned as vice president.

A beleaguered Nixon, faced with a possible historic confrontation in the Supreme Court, agreed to turn over the White House tapes to Sirica but his attorneys said that two of them never existed, and it was discovered an 18-½ minute portion of a third had been erased.

The House authorized its Judiciary Committee to consider possible impeachment of the President. There were blunt public demands that Nixon resign once Agnew's successor, Rep. Gerald R. Ford, was confirmed.

Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski disclosed that Haldeman, Ehrlichman, Mitchell, Charles Colson and three other Nixon aides had been indicted in the cover-up.

Even before the Watergate crisis had snowballed to these proportions, a poll showed that only 9 per cent of the people felt Nixon was being "frank and honest," and 63 per cent believed he had withheld information about the case.

In May, 1973, only 14 per cent of those polled said he should resign and 75 per cent opposed. By November, 43 per cent favored his resignation with only 47 per cent opposed and Nixon's approval rating as President had plummeted to 27 per cent.

In that same month, Nixon launched "Operation Candor" in an effort to restore public confidence in his shaken presidency.

He insisted he would not resign. He promised Republic congressmen he would satisfactorily answer all questions about Watergate along with charges that he had used a loophole to escape all but minimal income taxes and severe criticism on government money spent on his Florida and California homes.

The President also told a televised news conference with a group of managing editors: "I am not a crook." But a poll conducted just days before showed that 44 per cent of those questioned believed that Watergate would show Nixon had violated the law and 46 per cent deemed him a man not of high integrity.

A congressional committee and the Internal Revenue Service ruled that his income tax deductions had been illegal, and the IRS sent him a bill for more than $500,000 in back taxes and penalties. Nixon said he would pay, but that it would wipe out his assets.

Nixon's problems burgeoned. Charges were leveled that the President was involved in a controversial decision to raise milk price support levels, shortly after $2 million was pledged to his re-election campaign by dairy cooperatives.

It was disclosed that International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. had offered $400,000 cash to help underwrite the 1972 Republican National Convention if it were held in San Diego. The offer came a short time after the administration's controversial decision to drop an antitrust suit against the giant conglomerate.

Finally, there were the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment hearings, the Supreme Court order to surrender the tapes and Nixon's concession that he had been in on the cover-up.

The alternatives seemed clear: resign or be ousted.

And so, just when Nixon should have been basking in the glory of his greatest triumphs, he was fighting for his political life.

Watergate — his seventh crisis — was his undoing.

CHINA TRIUMPH — President Nixon and Chinese Premier Chou En-lai toasted each other during Nixon's historic visit to China in February of 1972.

EARLY TRIUMPH — Richard M. Nixon was only 39 years old when he was chosen as the running mate of Dwight D. Eisenhower and the two scored back-to-back presidential victories in 1952 and 1956.

THOUGH THEY WORRY ABOUT COUNTRY

Young Americans Are Optimistic

A majority of young people are concerned about the future of the country but are inclined to be optimistic about their own personal future, according to a new survey of Americans between the ages of 14 to 25.

The study conducted for the Institute of Life Insurance found that despite misgivings about the future of the country expressed by 75 per cent of the young people, 7 out of 10 of those surveyed indicated they felt their own prospects were good.

According to the Institute's Director of Research, Dr. Harold Edrich, the disparity between confidence about one's personal future and the country's future reflects a pattern observed previously. "It appears, however," he says, "that the gap is wider now than at any time in the recent past."

The survey also found that the degree of personal optimism escalates with age while at the same time concern about the county's future lessens. The most likely to register a strong vote of confidence in their own future were those in the oldest group surveyed — youths between 22 and 25 years of age. Of these, 74 per cent expressed personal optimism. The least confident were those in the youngest age category — under 17 years of age. Only 67 per cent indicated they were hopeful about their personal situation.

Referring to a Gallup poll which recently indicated that 8 out of 10 adults retain confidence in the future of this country, Dr. Edrich noted that the philsophical split between age groups as well as generations may be due "to their differing perspectives on the nation's ability to survive social, economic and political problems.

"A wider exposure to a variety of national crises in their lifetime experience has prepared the older segments of the population to view national problems with more tolerance. Among those younger, however, optimism about the state of the country tends to fluctuate more with current events."

"Nevertheless," he adds, "A majority of the next generation of leaders are confident about their own personal future and this is a positive sign for the society's future."

The survey also found that most personally optimistic were young people living in the North Central region of the country (76 per cent). The least confident about their future were Southerners (64 per cent).

The most concerned about the country's future, according to the survey, were Northeasterners (82 per cent). Least worried were those living in the North Central region (70 per cent).

There were also attitudinal differences based on sex. Males expressed more optimism about their future than females (73 per cent to 67 per cent). Women were also more worried than men about the country's future (79 per cent to 71 per cent).

Marin Photographer Finds Big Fascination In Faces

By KAREN PETERSON

Faces have always intrigued Mimi Jacobs. So three years ago she picked up a camera, started reading about photography and committed herself to putting down on film something of the soul.

Her aim as a photographer is to "show something of the inner self of the subject."

Not content to sit back with her new found avocation, Mrs. Jacobs has a long-term project, documenting Bay Area artists — "people of social concern," she said. "People who care about others."

FROM A LIST OF 50, Mrs. Jacobs has photographed and interviewed 18. Her photographic compositions are simple. "I let my subject's face and eyes especially tell his story," she said. "I think I can look into a person's face and know a little about what is going on" inside.

In a studio in the hills of Kent Woodlands and lit by wall-to-ceiling windows, Mrs. Jacobs displays some of her craft. With pride she also shows a postcard from Arizona, a request by Ansel Adams to use her portrait of him in future publicity.

Her list of subjects include social philosopher Erik Hoffer and Imogene Cunningham, a prize-winning photographer still active in her 90s. It was "Imogene who was reponsible for my really being a photographer at all," said Mrs. Jacobs of the photographer who said she would do "everything I can to help you."

NOW IN HER EARLY 60'S, Mrs. Jacobs believes her enthusiasm for photography "came at a time in my life that I probably needed something exciting." She feels that she might have been better if she'd started years ago, but also thinks that jumping in now saved her from seeing her work as "an old story." "I was terribly excited by it," she said.

Out of the artists she has photographed, there was only one who wasn't satisfied, she said — a gratifying compliment to the woman who still refers to herself as "a novice."

HER SUBJECTS are photographed in her spacious home. She is a photographic purist in that she tries to use only available light rather than artifical, strobe lighting. Available light, she believes, is "more natural . . . softer, kinder."

To produce a good photograph, Mrs. Jacobs believes the photographer must make the subjects "unaware of the camera." During her interviews, which have been published in a

Unisex Idea Is Still Around But Goes Under New Name

It's a sporty concept for pairs who like to match up in navy pea jackets and gray flannel trousers for casual occasions and to get into related dinner suits (his would have pants, hers a long wrap skirt) for "do-dress" evenings.

The fashion community evidently sees a future for clothes of this sort. Three designers (Ralph Lauren, Calvin Klein and Bill Kaiserman of Rafael) whose specialty is creating sportswear for both men and women have been voted Coty American Fashion Critics' awards for 1974.

IT IS POSSIBLE to make a case for certain likenesses in the new fall styles for men and women if you look at the whole fashion picture. The moods for both sexes are comfortable and easygoing — no pinched-in waists or stiff construction.

Equal attention is paid to all the telling details — the right belt, the subtle combination of textures or patterns and the thoughtful head-to-toe composition of an entire outfit. The hit-or-miss look is out this year for both men and women

He and she are offered Donegal tweeds, tattersall checks, windowpane plaids, camel hair, cordury and trench coats or capes that reverse from flannel or tweed to waterproof poplin. Sweaters in bold geometrics and chessboard checks, in bulky yarns with deep shawl collars, in space-knit stripes, are in for both males and females.

But here the similarities end. The point is reached when you have to say that essentially fall fashions for men and for women are miles apart.

THE LINES FOR WOMEN have changed radically — going longer, fuller, lighter in weight and in a new direction — away from the body.

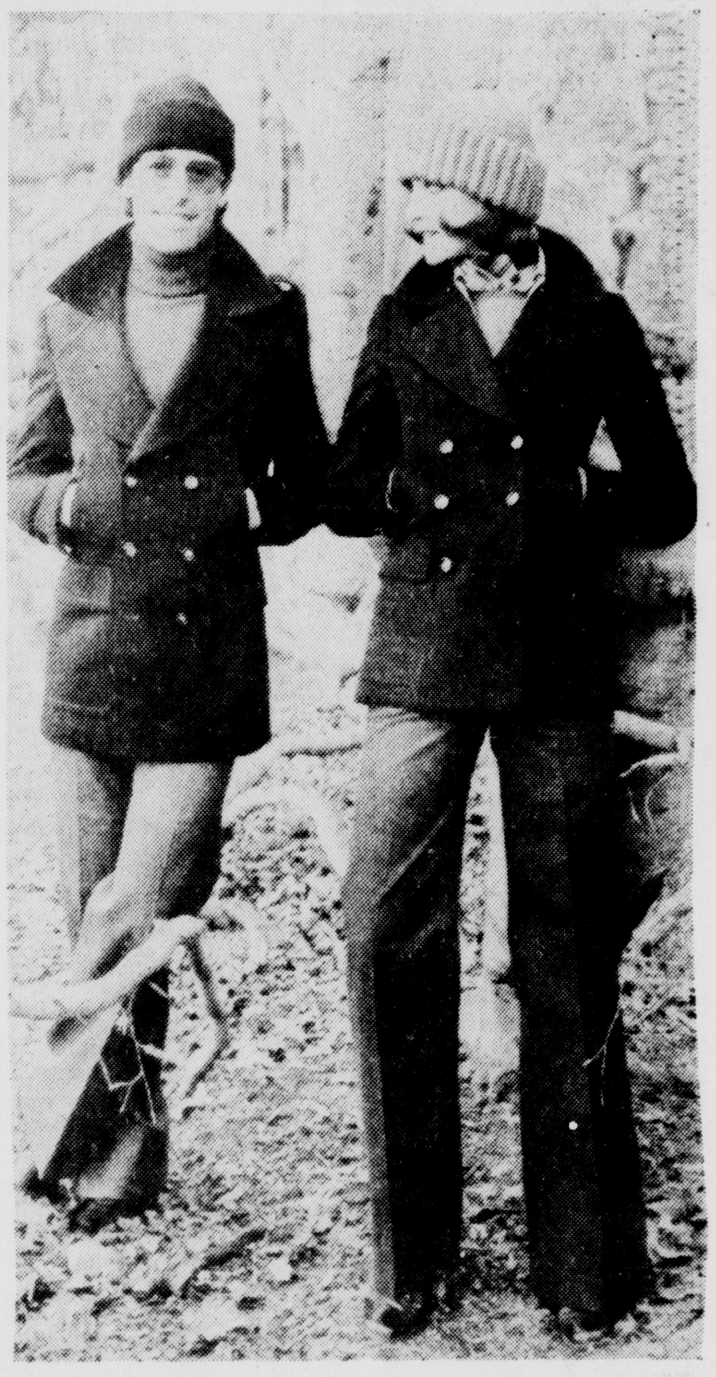
But men's fashions stick to the same silhouette as before. For them, it's the high, tight armhole, the molded waist and the European-style shirt also known as the body shirt for the close way it fits.

The answer to "What's new?" at the Men's Fashion Association (MFA) press weekend recently at Spring Lake, N.J., came down to vests, Norfolk jackets and wing collars with butterfly black ties for formal dinner wear.

SINCE VESTS and belted Norfolk jackets have not exactly been in limbo lately, that leaves wing collars to make the headlines, provided the wing collar gains acceptance. If Vice-President Gerald R. Ford can wear a Gaylord Ravenal Show Boat jacket to his son's wedding, the wing collar with dinner clothes may have a chance at that.

To have the appearance of a gentlemen is, somehow, everything in current menswear — curious at a time when "lady" is considered an opprobrious term. You would not catch a women's fashion designer calling his new line the "lady look." He would know that would be an invitation to bankruptcy.

Tom Fallon, who showed a handsome collection of leather and leather-trimmed coats and suits last month, alluded to how well-turned-out a gentleman would be in his designs. So much so that Robert L. Green, Playboy magazine's fashion director, couldn't resist quipping, "Or even if you're common as dirt."



'COUPLES DRESSING' is still very much a fashion factor, according to leading designers of sportswear for men and women.

Also, for the would-be gentleman, there are chalk-stripe and pin-stripe suits redolent of Wall Street Bankers.

A SECOND TYPE of suit that continues is the body-fit European which comes with either high-tailored shoulders or softer, slopier shoulders. There are deep vents in black or at the sides of the jacket. This suit is aimed at the young or at the with-it mature man who has kept in shape.

For the man whose fall buying will not extend beyond some new shirts and a business suit or two, a three piece suit with a waistcoat should be considered. The vest can match or contrast and some, being reversible, will do both. Earthy colors — russet browns, brick, forest and bottle green, camel and heather mixtures — are in.

Music Chest Members To Toast 1974 Season

By MOLLY MARIN

MUSIC CHEST board members and other Marin music lovers will drink a champagne toast to the conclusion of another successful Music Chest season Sunday at the Ross home of Mrs. John A. Lesoine, president of the organization. Mrs. Lesoine has included on her guest list the winners of Music Chest ballet and music scholarships whose names will have been made public during the afternoon concert of Cuban pianist Horacio Gutierrez at the Veterans Memorial Auditorium. Gutierrez' concert is the final one of the 1974 summer series.

Mrs. Herbert S. Salisbury was honored at a family dinner Sunday on the occasion of her 90th birthday. The party was held at her San Rafael residence. She is the widow of the late Herbert S. Salisbury, well-known in Marin as a geologist and for his interest in and mapping of many Indian burial mounds in the county.

Attending the party were her two sisters, Mrs. Harry Striblen of Chicago and Mrs. John Pennell of Independence, Mo.; her three children and their spouses, Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Salisbury of Belmont, Mass., and Mr. and Mrs. Scott Salisbury and Mr. and Mrs. George Wehrheim of San Anselmo. Also attending were her nine grandchildren and four of her eight great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Salisbury was presented with many gifts including a bouquet of her favorite flower, yellow roses, from three nieces who could not attend: Dorothy Dean, Mrs. Jess Brooks and Mrs. Dean Jacob, all of Carthage, Ill.

Her sisters also hosted Mrs. Salisbury at a luncheon Tuesday at the Alta Mira Hotel in Sausalito.

The City of Petaluma hosted a party Sunday at the home of Mayor Helen Putnam to help the Coast Guard celebrate its 184th birthday and to thank members of the Coast Guard Training Center at Two Rock.

Capt. William Kirkley, commander of the training center, said the personnel held their own barbecue Friday for about 800 coast guard and civilian personnel and their families.

Young Americans Are Optimistic

A majority of young people are concerned about the future of the country but are inclined to be optimistic about their own personal future, according to a new survey of Americans between the ages of 14 to 25.

The study conducted for the Institute of Life Insurance found that despite misgivings about the future of the country expressed by 75 per cent of the young people, 7 out of 10 of those surveyed indicated they felt their own prospects were good.

According to the Institute's Director of Research, Dr. Harold Edrich, the disparity between confidence about one's personal future and the country's future reflects a pattern observed previously. "It appears, however," he says, "that the gap is wider now than at any time in the recent past."

The most concerned about the country's future, according to the survey, were Northeasterners (82 per cent). Least worried were those living in the North Central region (70 per cent).

There were also attitudinal differences based on sex. Males expressed more optimism about their future than females (73 per cent to 67 per cent). Women were also more worried than men about the country's future (79 per cent to 71 per cent).

MUSIC CHEST board members and other Marin music lovers will drink a champagne toast to the conclusion of another successful Music Chest season Sunday at the Ross home of Mrs. John A. Lesoine, president of the organization. Mrs. Lesoine has included on her guest list the winners of Music Chest ballet and music scholarships whose names will have been made public during the afternoon concert of Cuban pianist Horacio Gutierrez at the Veterans Memorial Auditorium. Gutierrez' concert is the final one of the 1974 summer series.

Mrs. Herbert S. Salisbury was honored at a family dinner Sunday on the occasion of her 90th birthday. The party was held at her San Rafael residence. She is the widow of the late Herbert S. Salisbury, well-known in Marin as a geologist and for his interest in and mapping of many Indian burial mounds in the county.

Attending the party were her two sisters, Mrs. Harry Striblen of Chicago and Mrs. John Pennell of Independence, Mo.; her three children and their spouses, Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Salisbury of Belmont, Mass., and Mr. and Mrs. Scott Salisbury and Mr. and Mrs. George Wehrheim of San Anselmo. Also attending were her nine grandchildren and four of her eight great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Salisbury was presented with many gifts including a bouquet of her favorite flower, yellow roses, from three nieces who could not attend: Dorothy Dean, Mrs. Jess Brooks and Mrs. Dean Jacob, all of Carthage, Ill.

Her sisters also hosted Mrs. Salisbury at a luncheon Tuesday at the Alta Mira Hotel in Sausalito.

The City of Petaluma hosted a party Sunday at the home of Mayor Helen Putnam to help the Coast Guard celebrate its 184th birthday and to thank members of the Coast Guard Training Center at Two Rock.

Capt. William Kirkley, commander of the training center, said the personnel held their own barbecue Friday for about 800 coast guard and civilian personnel and their families.

Seventh Crisis, Watergate, Nixon's Undoing

When Richard Milhous Nixon wrote "Six Crises," he could not have foreseen that his greatest crisis lay ahead, a scandal of historic proportions that dragged him from the pinnacle of power and personal popularity and finally destroyed him politically.

Stretching over three decades, Nixon's political career was an amazing pattern of crests and troughs, of triumphs and defeats. Watergate was his nadir —the most precipitous fall from favor of any modern American politician.

From this fall there was no hope of the comeback Nixon had made his trademark in public life. Twice before, he seemed destined for the political scrap heap when he lost his first bid for the presidency in 1960 and then the governorship of California two years later. It was then he delivered the famous post-election line: "You won't have Nixon to kick around any more."

Yet six years later he was elected President and then went on to win a second term by one of the greatest landslides in American political history.

It seems cruel irony that the clumsy Watergate break-in in June, 1972, should have come at a time when Nixon's prospects for re-election were already so bright, promising four more years to achieve world peace and seek the "new American revolution" at home.

But many politicians blame Nixon himself. They feel he could have deflected the entire scandal at the outset merely by declaring he would get to the bottom of the break-in at Democratic National Committee headquarters and deal summarily with anyone in his administration who might be involved.

Nixon did not do this.

Instead, the White House dismissed the break-in as a "third-rate burglary" while Nixon, for more than two years, kept secret the fact that he was an active participant in a cover-up designed to insure that nothing interfered with his re-election.

Money was paid, allegedly to buy the silence of those who burglarized the Watergate. There were investigations of Nixon's federal tax returns, improvements made on his personal properties at taxpayers' expense and his campaign financing. Some of his aides resigned or were fired. Others were indicted, convicted and jailed.

Others still face trial in the cover-up, including H.R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman, the two men in the White House upon whom he depended most, and John N. Mitchell, Nixon's attorney general and briefly director of his 1972 campaign.

The House Judiciary Committee, after six days of nationally televised debate, approved three articles of impeachment against Nixon charging him with abuse of power, obstruction of justice and failure to comply with committee subpoenas. With some Republican members joining in, the panel recommended his conviction by the Senate and removal from office.

For only the second time in U.S. history, a President faced the threat of the ultimate disgrace provided by the Constitution. In the only previous case, Andrew Johnson escaped conviction by a single vote in 1868, finished his term and left office an embittered man. He died a few years later.

The biggest single blow to Nixon's hope of containing the scandals was the Supreme Court's 8-0 ruling that he must surrender 64 White House tapes to the special Watergate prosecutor. Aware that defiance of the Court would mean almost automatic impeachment, Nixon agreed to turn over the tapes.

And with that, he was forced to admit he had discussed the break-in with Haldeman six days after it occurred, and had directed that the FBI be ordered to curb its investigation not only to avoid compromising CIA activities but to conceal the involvement of his reelection campaign committee.

The President conceded he had been wrong. but insisted that what he had done still did not warrant impeachment. The damage, however, was done. His supporters in Congress, including Republicans who defended him most strongly during the Judiciary Committee hearings, defected by the dozens.

Nixon acknowledged that impeachment by the House was a foregone conclusion but vowed to see his ordeal through despite a rising chorus of demands that he resign.

Nixon emerged on the political scene in 1946 as a scarcely noticed House member from California's 12th district after an election in which Republicans won control of Congress for the first time since the days of Herbert Hoover.

In Washington, he was given two relatively unimportant committee assignments. On the House Labor and Education Committee he served with a much-better known freshman — Rep. John F. Kennedy, D-Mass.

It was his post on the House Committee on Un-American Activities that provided Nixon with his chance to move into the limelight.

The committee attracted heavy press attention and liberal criticism for its handling of its anti-Communist hearings. In August, 1948, the Alger Hiss-Whittaker Chambers case surfaced and Nixon faced the first of his crises.

At issue was which of two men was telling the truth: Chambers, a Time magazine editor, who swore that he had known Hiss, a former State Department official, as a Communist party member of an espionage operation in the early New Deal Days; or Hiss who indignantly denied the charge under oath.

At the outset, most committee members believed Hiss, head of the prestigious Carnegie Endowment. But Nixon, helped by a top Washington newsman, the late Bert Andrews, dug into the background of the two men and became convinced Hiss was lying.

He staked his fledgling reputation on that belief and a jury ultimately convicted Hiss of perjury.

Nixon acknowledged in "Six Crises" that the case brought him the national attention that led to his later career. But he also wrote that "it left a residue of hatred and hostility toward me ... among substantial segments of the press and the intellectual community."

His next step up the political ladder was a successful 1950 race for the Senate seat in California against Helen Gahagan Douglas, a staunch New Deal Democrat.

His Senate service was brief and Nixon's star was still ascending when Dwight D. Eisenhower picked him as his vice presidential running-mate in 1952. At that point, the "Checkers" crisis occurred and almost finished off Nixon.

In the midst of the campaign, news stories broke that a group of wealthy Californians had raised $18,235 for a special fund to help underwrite Nixon's expenses as senator. Eisenhower declared his young running-mate would have to come "as clean as a hound's tooth." Some influential Republicans advocated that he get off the ticket.

Nixon responded with a counter-offensive — a technique to became his political hallmark. He quickly arranged a national television appearance and from a Los Angeles studio delivered this defense:

He said he never had been influenced to do special favors for his fund contributors. He listed his assets and bank holdings down to the penny. He emphasized that his wife, Pat, wore only "a respectable Republican cloth coat." He told of receiving a personal gift from an admirer — a black-and-white cocker spaniel puppy which his daughter named Checkers — and which was prominently displayed for television cameras.

It was corny but effective. Eisenhower accepted Nixon's explanation and at Wheeling, W.Va., embraced his vice presidential candidate with the public assertion: "That's my boy."

The Eisenhower-Nixon ticket was elected by landslide proportions in 1952 and again in 1956. There were three main highlights of his eight years in the vice presidency:

In the fall of 1955, Eisenhower suffered a serious heart attack and Nixon was in the limelight as an unofficial "acting President" during Ike's months of convalescence.

In 1958 during a good-will mission to Latin America, Nixon and his wife were threatened physically by a hostile Communist mob in Caracas and drew general praise for meeting the situation with courage and coolness.

In 1959, he and Soviet Premier Nikita Khruschev engaged in their widely publicized "kitchen debate" at a trade fair in Moscow and Nixon emerged as a firm and skillful defender of the free enterprise system.

At 47, Nixon captured the 1960 Republican presidential nomination without difficulty and entered the campaign as favorite over his Democratic rival, John F. Kennedy.

On Nov. 8, 1960, Nixon lost an election for the first time. Kennedy won by an electoral college margin of 303 to 219 but by only 118,550 votes in the actual polling.

In 1962, Nixon's fortunes took a drastic downward turn when he was defeated for the California governorship by incumbent Democrat Edmund G. (Pat) Brown.

Seemingly, Nixon had gone down the political drain but events were in store that would thrust him upward again. Kennedy was assassinated and his successor, Lyndon B. Johnson, scored a landslide triumph over conservative GOP Sen. Barry M. Goldwater in 1964 that left the Republican party shattered and leaderless.

By 1965, a less confident but more mature Nixon tentatively returned to the public scene. In the hinterlands, he spoke at local party meetings in school gyms attended by 40 or 50 people. In the mid-term elections of 1966, he was in full swing, campaigning on behalf of congressional candidates in 82 districts.

The Republicans picked up 47 House seats and Nixon won the gratitude of GOP leaders in almost every area of the country.

What had been a brushfire operation in Vietnam became a full-scale war that grew increasingly unpopular. It was responsible for Johnson's decision early in 1968 that he would not run again for the presidency.

The leading active Republican, Michigan Gov. George Romney, blundered by saying he had been "brainwashed" on Vietnam and took himself out of contention even before the New Hampshire primary.

Another rival, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, wound up announcing himself not a candidate, then became a candidate, and succeeded in alienating a fellow governor from Maryland, Spiro T. Agnew.

With no active opposition, Nixon shed his loser's image in the primaries, particularly in Oregon against California Gov. Ronald Reagan. At the Miami Beach convention, he thwarted a Rockefeller-Reagan bid to stop him and won the nomination on the first ballot.

On Nov. 5, 1968, Richard M. Nixon was elected President of the United States by a heavy electoral college majority but with only 43.4 per cent of the popular vote.

In year-end Gallup Polls for 1970 and 1971, Nixon was listed as the man most admired by the American people. His performance as President registered nearly 70 per cent approval.

On Nov. 7, 1972, Nixon and Agnew swept to re-election on a tidal wave of votes that carried 49 states and won 60.7 per cent of the total vote. Nixon overwhelmed Democrat George S. McGovern by nearly 18 million votes —the greatest in electoral history —and had the endorsement of 47,167,319 Americans.

Even though the Republicans failed to make significant gains in Congress and had suffered setbacks at the governorship level, Nixon in his final election contest had reached his pinnacle of popularity and authority.

It enabled him — almost with impunity — to bomb Hanoi and mine Haiphong in an effort to force North Vietnam to yield. It let him undertake sweeping reorganization of the executive branch of the government and positioned him for an anticipated series of fights with the Democratic Congress.

But then began the astonishing events known as Watergate — and Nixon's greatest crisis was upon him.

The arrest of seven men for the burglary and bugging of Democratic National Headquarters in the plush Watergate apartment complex on June 17, 1972, had stirred relatively little public interest during the election year.

The White House discounted the break-in. News accounts that the trail led to the Committee to Re-Elect the President and to the White House itself drew denials and an assertion by Nixon that no one presently on his staff was involved.

The Watergate trial before U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica produced little sensational testimony, as five of the seven defendants pleaded guilty and two others, James McCord and G. Gordon Liddy, were convicted by a jury.

A special seven-man Senate investigating committee headed by Sen. Sam J. Ervin had been set up, but seemed to pose no more problems than previous random congressional inquiries that had disclosed nothing too damaging.

On sentencing day, March 23, 1973, Sirica announced McCord had written him a letter charging the trial had been marked by perjury, pressure and cover-up attempts by higher-ups.

On April 17, Nixon announced he had instituted a new White House investigation of Watergate on March 21 because of "serious charges which came to my attention." He acknowledged there had been "major developments" in the case.

Then like a series of depth charges, event exploded after event.

The President's two closest White House advisers, Haldeman and Ehrlichman, resigned; White House Counsel John W. Dean III was fired; Attorney General Richard M. Kleindienst quit.

Two former cabinet members and top Nixon campaign leaders, John N. Mitchell and Maurice Stans, were indicted on charges of bribery and perjury in connection with an illegal campaign contribution. They were acquitted.

Dean, who had been assigned to supervise the original White House investigation, swore under oath before the Senate committee and a national television audience that Nixon was aware of the Watergate cover-up efforts by his aides.

The White House tapes came to light and Nixon refused to give them up under subpoena either to a special Watergate grand jury or the Senate panel. Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox was fired. Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson quit, and his deputy, William Ruckelshaus, also was dismissed in what was dubbed "The Saturday Night Massacre."

Spiro T. Agnew pleaded no contest to federal charges of income tax evasion involving payments from contractors while governor of Maryland. He resigned as vice president.

A beleaguered Nixon, faced with a possible historic confrontation in the Supreme Court, agreed to turn over the White House tapes to Sirica but his attorneys said that two of them never existed, and it was discovered an 18-½ minute portion of a third had been erased.

The House authorized its Judiciary Committee to consider possible impeachment of the President. There were blunt public demands that Nixon resign once Agnew's successor, Rep. Gerald R. Ford, was confirmed.

Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski disclosed that Haldeman, Ehrlichman, Mitchell, Charles Colson and three other Nixon aides had been indicted in the cover-up.

Even before the Watergate crisis had snowballed to these proportions, a poll showed that only 9 per cent of the people felt Nixon was being "frank and honest," and 63 per cent believed he had withheld information about the case.

In May, 1973, only 14 per cent of those polled said he should resign and 75 per cent opposed. By November, 43 per cent favored his resignation with only 47 per cent opposed and Nixon's approval rating as President had plummeted to 27 per cent.

In that same month, Nixon launched "Operation Candor" in an effort to restore public confidence in his shaken presidency.

He insisted he would not resign. He promised Republic congressmen he would satisfactorily answer all questions about Watergate along with charges that he had used a loophole to escape all but minimal income taxes and severe criticism on government money spent on his Florida and California homes.

The President also told a televised news conference with a group of managing editors: "I am not a crook." But a poll conducted just days before showed that 44 per cent of those questioned believed that Watergate would show Nixon had violated the law and 46 per cent deemed him a man not of high integrity.

A congressional committee and the Internal Revenue Service ruled that his income tax deductions had been illegal, and the IRS sent him a bill for more than $500,000 in back taxes and penalties. Nixon said he would pay, but that it would wipe out his assets.

Nixon's problems burgeoned. Charges were leveled that the President was involved in a controversial decision to raise milk price support levels, shortly after $2 million was pledged to his re-election campaign by dairy cooperatives.

It was disclosed that International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. had offered $400,000 cash to help underwrite the 1972 Republican National Convention if it were held in San Diego. The offer came a short time after the administration's controversial decision to drop an antitrust suit against the giant conglomerate.

Finally, there were the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment hearings, the Supreme Court order to surrender the tapes and Nixon's concession that he had been in on the cover-up.

The alternatives seemed clear: resign or be ousted.

And so, just when Nixon should have been basking in the glory of his greatest triumphs, he was fighting for his political life.

Watergate — his seventh crisis — was his undoing.

The Watergate trial before U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica produced little sensational testimony, as five of the seven defendants pleaded guilty and two others, James McCord and G. Gordon Liddy, were convicted by a jury.

A special seven-man Senate investigating committee headed by Sen. Sam J. Ervin had been set up, but seemed to pose no more problems than previous random congressional inquiries that had disclosed nothing too damaging.

On sentencing day, March 23, 1973, Sirica announced McCord had written him a letter charging the trial had been marked by perjury, pressure and cover-up attempts by higher-ups.

On April 17, Nixon announced he had instituted a new White House investigation of Watergate on March 21 because of "serious charges which came to my attention." He acknowledged there had been "major developments" in the case.

Then like a series of depth charges, event exploded after event.

The President's two closest White House advisers, Haldeman and Ehrlichman, resigned; White House Counsel John W. Dean III was fired; Attorney General Richard M. Kleindienst quit.

Two former cabinet members and top Nixon campaign leaders, John N. Mitchell and Maurice Stans, were indicted on charges of bribery and perjury in connection with an illegal campaign contribution. They were acquitted.

Dean, who had been assigned to supervise the original White House investigation, swore under oath before the Senate committee and a national television audience that Nixon was aware of the Watergate cover-up efforts by his aides.

The White House tapes came to light and Nixon refused to give them up under subpoena either to a special Watergate grand jury or the Senate panel. Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox was fired. Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson quit, and his deputy, William Ruckelshaus, also was dismissed in what was dubbed "The Saturday Night Massacre."

Spiro T. Agnew pleaded no contest to federal charges of income tax evasion involving payments from contractors while governor of Maryland. He resigned as vice president.

A beleaguered Nixon, faced with a possible historic confrontation in the Supreme Court, agreed to turn over the White House tapes to Sirica but his attorneys said that two of them never existed, and it was discovered an 18-½ minute portion of a third had been erased.

The House authorized its Judiciary Committee to consider possible impeachment of the President. There were blunt public demands that Nixon resign once Agnew's successor, Rep. Gerald R. Ford, was confirmed.

Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski disclosed that Haldeman, Ehrlichman, Mitchell, Charles Colson and three other Nixon aides had been indicted in the cover-up.

Even before the Watergate crisis had snowballed to these proportions, a poll showed that only 9 per cent of the people felt Nixon was being "frank and honest," and 63 per cent believed he had withheld information about the case.

In May, 1973, only 14 per cent of those polled said he should resign and 75 per cent opposed. By November, 43 per cent favored his resignation with only 47 per cent opposed and Nixon's approval rating as President had plummeted to 27 per cent.

In that same month, Nixon launched "Operation Candor" in an effort to restore public confidence in his shaken presidency.

He insisted he would not resign. He promised Republic congressmen he would satisfactorily answer all questions about Watergate along with charges that he had used a loophole to escape all but minimal income taxes and severe criticism on government money spent on his Florida and California homes.

The President also told a televised news conference with a group of managing editors: "I am not a crook." But a poll conducted just days before showed that 44 per cent of those questioned believed that Watergate would show Nixon had violated the law and 46 per cent deemed him a man not of high integrity.

A congressional committee and the Internal Revenue Service ruled that his income tax deductions had been illegal, and the IRS sent him a bill for more than $500,000 in back taxes and penalties. Nixon said he would pay, but that it would wipe out his assets.

Nixon's problems burgeoned. Charges were leveled that the President was involved in a controversial decision to raise milk price support levels, shortly after $2 million was pledged to his re-election campaign by dairy cooperatives.

It was disclosed that International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. had offered $400,000 cash to help underwrite the 1972 Republican National Convention if it were held in San Diego. The offer came a short time after the administration's controversial decision to drop an anti-trust suit against the giant conglomerate.

Finally, there were the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment hearings, the Supreme Court order to surrender the tapes and Nixon's concession that he had been in on the cover-up.

The alternatives seemed clear: resign or be ousted.

And so, just when Nixon should have been basking in the glory of his greatest triumphs, he was fighting for his political life.

Watergate — his seventh crisis — was his undoing.

CHINA TRIUMPH — President Nixon and Chinese Premier Chou En-lai toasted each other during Nixon's historic visit to China in February of 1972.

EARLY TRIUMPH — Richard M. Nixon was only 39 years old when he was chosen as the running mate of Dwight D. Eisenhower and the two scored back-to-back presidential victories in 1952 and 1956.

THOUGH THEY WORRY ABOUT COUNTRY

Young Americans Are Optimistic

A majority of young people are concerned about the future of the country but are inclined to be optimistic about their own personal future, according to a new survey of Americans between the ages of 14 to 25.

The study conducted for the Institute of Life Insurance found that despite misgivings about the future of the country expressed by 75 per cent of the young people, 7 out of 10 of those surveyed indicated they felt their own prospects were good.

According to the Institute's Director of Research, Dr. Harold Edrich, the disparity between confidence about one's personal future and the country's future reflects a pattern observed previously. "It appears, however," he says, "that the gap is wider now than at any time in the recent past."

The survey also found that the degree of personal optimism escalates with age while at the same time concern about the county's future lessens. The most likely to register a strong vote of confidence in their own future were those in the oldest group surveyed — youths between 22 and 25 years of age. Of these, 74 per cent expressed personal optimism. The least confident were those in the youngest age category — under 17 years of age. Only 67 per cent indicated they were hopeful about their personal situation.

Referring to a Gallup poll which recently indicated that 8 out of 10 adults retain confidence in the future of this country, Dr. Edrich noted that the philsophical split between age groups as well as generations may be due "to their differing perspectives on the nation's ability to survive social, economic and political problems.

"A wider exposure to a variety of national crises in their lifetime experience has prepared the older segments of the population to view national problems with more tolerance. Among those younger, however, optimism about the state of the country tends to fluctuate more with current events."

"Nevertheless," he adds, "A majority of the next generation of leaders are confident about their own personal future and this is a positive sign for the society's future."

The survey also found that most personally optimistic were young people living in the North Central region of the country (76 per cent). The least confident about their future were Southerners (64 per cent).

The most concerned about the country's future, according to the survey, were Northeasterners (82 per cent). Least worried were those living in the North Central region (70 per cent).

There were also attitudinal differences based on sex. Males expressed more optimism about their future than females (73 per cent to 67 per cent). Women were also more worried than men about the country's future (79 per cent to 71 per cent).

FOCUSING THE 35mm camera is photographer Mimi Jacobs of Kent Woodlands. In just three years of work, she has gathered enough expertise to receive enthusiastic approval from photographers Ansel Adams and Imogene Cunningham.

Marin Photographer Finds Big Fascination In Faces

By KAREN PETERSON

Faces have always intrigued Mimi Jacobs. So three years ago she picked up a camera, started reading about photography and committed herself to putting down on film something of the soul.

Her aim as a photographer is to "show something of the inner self of the subject."

Not content to sit back with her new found avocation, Mrs. Jacobs has a long-term project, documenting Bay Area artists — "people of social concern," she said. "People who care about others."

FROM A LIST OF 50, Mrs. Jacobs has photographed and interviewed 18. Her photographic compositions are simple. "I let my subject's face and eyes especially tell his story," she said. "I think I can look into a person's face and know a little about what is going on" inside.

In a studio in the hills of Kent Woodlands and lit by wall-to-ceiling windows, Mrs. Jacobs displays some of her craft. With pride she also shows a postcard from Arizona, a request by Ansel Adams to use her portrait of him in future publicity.

Her list of subjects include social philosopher Erik Hoffer and Imogene Cunningham, a prize-winning photographer still active in her 90s. It was "Imogene who was reponsible for my really being a photographer at all," said Mrs. Jacobs of the photographer who said she would do "everything I can to help you."

NOW IN HER EARLY 60'S, Mrs. Jacobs believes her enthusiasm for photography "came at a time in my life that I probably needed something exciting." She feels that she might have been better if she'd started years ago, but also thinks that jumping in now saved her from seeing her work as "an old story." "Now it's just fun," said the petite former sculpturess. Twenty years ago, Mrs. Jacobs was one of thousands to be impressed by the Family of Man photography exhibit. "I was terribly excited by it," she said.

Interest soon led to determination. Mrs. Jacobs is self-taught, first studying the Time/Life photography series, going to libraries to read about techniques and "gradually accumulating a library" of photography books, she said.

SHE STUDIED at a workshop in Tiburon; studied and critiqued with Sister Adelle, another accomplished Marin photographer, and studied lighting in a University of California at Berkeley extension class.

The artists she has contacted for her documentary have been highly responsive, said Mrs. Jacobs, adding that "no one seems to have a photograph" of themselves.

Out of the artists she has photographed, there was only one who wasn't satisfied, she said — a gratifying compliment to the woman who still refers to herself as "a novice."

HER SUBJECTS are photographed in her spacious home. She is a photographic purist in that she tries to use only available light rather than artifical, strobe lighting. Available light, she believes, is "more natural . . . softer, kinder."

To produce a good photograph, Mrs. Jacobs believes the photographer must make the subjects "unaware of the camera." During her interviews, which have been published in a

Unisex Idea Is Still Around But Goes Under New Name

It's a sporty concept for pairs who like to match up in navy pea jackets and gray flannel trousers for casual occasions and to get into related dinner suits (his would have pants, hers a long wrap skirt) for "dodress" evenings.

The fashion community evidently sees a future for clothes of this sort. Three designers (Ralph Lauren, Calvin Klein and Bill Kaiserman of Rafael) whose specialty is creating sportswear for both men and women have been voted Coty American Fashion Critics' awards for 1974.

IT IS POSSIBLE to make a case for certain likenesses in the new fall styles for men and women if you look at the whole fashion picture. The moods for both sexes are comfortable and easygoing — no pinched-in waists or stiff construction.

Equal attention is paid to all the telling details — the right belt, the subtle combination of textures or patterns and the thoughtful head-to-toe composition of an entire outfit. The hit-or-miss look is out this year for both men and women

He and she are offered Donegal tweeds, tattersall checks, windowpane plaids, camel hair, cordury and trench coats or capes that reverse from flannel or tweed to waterproof poplin. Sweaters in bold geometrics and chessboard checks, in bulky yarns with deep shawl collars, in space-knit stripes, are in for both males and females.

But here the similarities end. The point is reached when you have to say that essentially fall fashions for men and for women are miles apart.

THE LINES FOR WOMEN have changed radically — going longer, fuller, lighter in weight and in a new direction — away from the body.

But men's fashions stick to the same silhouette as before. For them, it's the high, tight armhole, the molded waist and the European-style shirt also known as the body shirt for the close way it fits.

The answer to "What's new?" at the Men's Fashion Association (MFA) press weekend recently at Spring Lake, N.J., came down to vests, Norfolk jackets and wing collars with butterfly black ties for formal dinner wear.

SINCE VESTS and belted Norfolk jackets have not exactly been in limbo lately, that leaves wing collars to make the headlines, provided the wing collar gains acceptance. If Vice-President Gerald R. Ford can wear a Gaylord Ravenal Show Boat jacket to his son's wedding, the wing collar with dinner clothes may have a chance at that.

To have the appearance of a gentlemen is, somehow, everything in current menswear — curious at a time when "lady" is considered an opprobrious term. You would not catch a women's fashion designer calling his new line the "lady look." He would know that would be an invitation to bankruptcy.

Tom Fallon, who showed a handsome collection of leather and leather-trimmed coats and suits last month, alluded to how well-turned-out a gentleman would be in his designs. So much so that Robert L. Green, Playboy magazine's fashion director, couldn't resist quipping, "Or even if you're common as dirt."

'COUPLES DRESSING' is still very much a fashion factor, according to leading designers of sportswear for men and women.

Also, for the would-be gentleman, there are chalk-stripe and pin-stripe suits redolent of Wall Street Bankers.

A SECOND TYPE of suit that continues is the body-fit European which comes with either high-tailored shoulders or softer, slopier shoulders. There are deep vents in black or at the sides of the jacket. This suit is aimed at the young or at the with-it mature man who has kept in shape.

For the man whose fall buying will not extend beyond some new shirts and a business suit or two, a three piece suit with a waistcoat should be considered. The vest can match or contrast and some, being reversible, will do both. Earthy colors — russet browns, brick, forest and bottle green, camel and heather mixtures — are in.

Pair Direction

Junior sportswear will be directed in twos this season. The pulled together effect of a big, full skirt with matching top is a signal of new sophistication for the holidays, said Women's Wear Daily.

Music Chest Members To Toast 1974 Season

By MOLLY MARIN

MUSIC CHEST board members and other Marin music lovers will drink a champagne toast to the conclusion of another successful Music Chest season Sunday at the Ross home of Mrs. John A. Lesoine, president of the organization. Mrs. Lesoine has included on her guest list the winners of Music Chest ballet and music scholarships whose names will have been made public during the afternoon concert of Cuban pianist Horacio Gutierrez at the Veterans Memorial Auditorium. Gutierrez' concert is the final one of the 1974 summer series.

Mrs. Herbert S. Salisbury was honored at a family dinner Sunday on the occasion of her 90th birthday. The party was held at her San Rafael residence. She is the widow of the late Herbert S. Salisbury, well-known in Marin as a geologist and for his interest in and mapping of many Indian burial mounds in the county.

Attending the party were her two sisters, Mrs. Harry Striblen of Chicago and Mrs. John Pennell of Independence, Mo.; her three children and their spouses, Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Salisbury of Belmont, Mass., and Mr. and Mrs. Scott Salisbury and Mr. and Mrs. George Wehrheim of San Anselmo. Also attending were her nine grandchildren and four of her eight great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Salisbury was presented with many gifts including a bouquet of her favorite flower, yellow roses, from three nieces who could not attend: Dorothy Dean, Mrs. Jess Brooks and Mrs. Dean Jacob, all of Carthage, Ill.

Her sisters also hosted Mrs. Salisbury at a luncheon Tuesday at the Alta Mira Hotel in Sausalito.

The City of Petaluma hosted a party Sunday at the home of Mayor Helen Putnam to help the Coast Guard celebrate its 184th birthday and to thank members of the Coast Guard Training Center at Two Rock.

Capt. William Kirkley, commander of the training center, said the personnel held their own barbecue Friday for about 800 coast guard and civilian personnel and their families.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Maybe It's Time For Waves Instead Of Peace Offerings

DEAR HELEN:

We're very close next-door neighbors. Our kids get along great, the two husbands are best friends and we wives have shared morning coffee for more than five years.

Both men are wonderful providers but my husband has always had affairs with women. Since he'd never leave me, I accept them.

Another neighbor told me she saw my husband sneaking into this woman's side door when her husband was off working his swing shift. CUT ABOVE THE

ALL THOSE CUTS OF MEAT will no longer be a mystery to the supermarket shopper; a nationwide program of uniform meat labeling is on the way!

MEAT IDENTIFICATION

Misleading Labels Removed

By MARTIN SKALA
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

You don't have to be a home economics major to sort your way through the maze of fresh-meat labels at the local supermarket.

That is the message food chains are trying to convey to consumers as they gear up for a nationwide program of uniform meat labeling.

WIDESPREAD ADOPTION of a new meat identity code, eliminating some 700 popular but often misleading names for fresh cuts of meat, is expected to reduce consumer confusion and help thousands of families stretch their food budgets, says David H. Stroud, president of the National Live Stock and Meat Board.

Such fanciful terms as "his and hers," "penthouse" and "horseshoe," each describing a simple cut of round beef, will largely disappear from meat counters, as a result of the industrywide cooperation to standardize meat terms.

The standardization effort boils down more than 1,000 retail meat names into a group of 300 standard cuts, with each label designating the species (beef, lamb, veal, pork), the wholesale cut (chuck, loin) and the common retail name of the cut (roast, chops.).

TO BE CORRECTLY labeled, ground beef — the meat mainstay of most American diets — must contain the lean-to-fat ratio, expressed as a percentage. The new standards specify that ground beef should be a minimum of 70 per cent lean meat, with no trimmings of pork or veal added.

Reaction to the meat board's program, which was launched some months ago after considerable prodding from consumer groups, is "extremely favorable," Stroud reports. Before the end of the year he expects most large grocery chains to employ the uniform label descriptions, either voluntarily or because of state requirements.

Many consumer-protection officials are enthusiastic about the labeling guidelines and some states, including California, Minnesota and Ohio, have made them mandatory for all retailers. Arizona, Pennsylvania and Rhode Island have taken over the industry's program on a voluntary basis and state officials are urging all food stores to comply with the guidelines.

MANY SUPERMARKETS are combining a change in labeling practices with a stepped-up consumer-education effort. Several million meat-board booklets describing the new identification system, together with recommended cooking methods, have been distributed free.

Besides reaping consumer good will, some stores report that customers are buying a greater variety of meat cuts because they are better informed. Many more affluent consumers are buying cuts of meat they once avoided in the mistaken belief that they were from the least desirable parts of the carcass.

WHILE APPLAUDING the industry's own self-regulatory efforts, consumer advocates stress the importance of tough enforcement of meat-labeling laws.

A recent inspection of 71 food stores in 33 cities by the New Jersey Department of Consumer Affairs turned up some 4,000 meat labeling violations. Most of them were corrected within 24 hours, however, and did not involve deliberate attempts to deceive consumers.

ON BEING BLACK

Sex Talk Should Be Part Of Maturation Lectures

By SANDRA HAGGERTY
(Distributed by Los Angeles Times Syndicate)

Last spring my 11-year-old daughter and I attended the public school's "maturation" program. In a two-hour session the word sex was never mentioned. Kendall shrugged her shoulders and whispered, "I guess Utahans don't use the word sex in their vocabularies."

But surely they know about it (sex) as evidenced by large families and increasing population.

Sex education programs may differ according to locality, but obviously sex is pretty much the same for everyone, everywhere.

CURRENTLY, VD (the modern plague) is at epidemic levels in this country. It is particularly prevalent among teeny boppers who very likely have been exposed to "maturation" programs which gave them no more vital information than a complimentary sanitary napkin and a flower-covered booklet showing a diagram of the female reproductive organs. (Boys receive a diagram of the male reproductive organs and vague information about seminal emissions.) Of the estimated 7,000 new cases of VD contracted every day, more than 1,700 are among teen-agers.

There is a popular misconception that our young people are better informed than previous generations. This simply is not so. Youngsters must be given accurate, straightforward and honest information about sex in the home and in the schools.

Parents must accept the fact that there is an earlier participation in sexual activity by today's young. (Doctors have recorded VD cases in 10 and 11-year-olds.) Young people must be educated about the "peripheral benefits" (babies and VD) of sexual activity. Equally important, they must have information which will help them place their sexuality in proper perspective to their total being.

BLACK PARENTS have an added dimension in dispensing sex information to their children. Many wonder how they should deal with the Black Sexuality Myth which is "alive and well" in this country.

Even though syphilis and gonorrhea are the major VD culprits, there are a number of other sexually related medical problems that must be illuminated. Urinary tract infection, primarily cystitis, is one. It occurs mostly in women between puberty and age 45. It is commonly treated with a sulfa drug.

Of importance to black people is the fact that 10 per cent to 14 per cent of American blacks have an inherited deficiency of a blood enzyme called glucose-6-phosphate-dehydrogenase (G6PD). In such people, sulfa drugs cause a serious form of hemolytic anemia, a disease in which the red blood cells burst and die. Sulfa-induced hemolytic anemia can be fatal. As a precaution, a test for this deficiency should be conducted before the administration of sulfa drugs. Black youngsters should have this information presented to them.

Sex is a part of the "maturation" process and VD is a part of the sexual process. Both can be dealt with satisfactorily. The answer lies in illumination and education.

HELEN HELP US!

Maybe It's Time For Waves Instead Of Peace Offerings

DEAR HELEN:

We're very close next-door neighbors. Our kids get along great, the two husbands are best friends and we wives have shared morning coffee for more than five years.

Both men are wonderful providers but my husband has always had affairs with women. Since he'd never leave me, I accept them.

Another neighbor told me she saw my husband sneaking into this woman's side door when her husband was off working his swing shift. After this happened several times (my husband told me he was at meetings), I asked my friend pointblank, over coffee, and she didn't deny it. I wish I'd just pretended not to know as I don't want o break up the men's friendships or separate the kids. But how do I act when my husband and his girlfriend know I know?

And how do you treat a close neighbor who is having an affair with your husband? — NOT A WAVE-MAKER

DEAR NOT:

To ipecac in her morning coffee, perhaps?

Seriously, I'd warn loverboy and his great and good neighbor that it's almost showdown time, what with several people threatening to reveal the affair to the cuckolded husband.

If that doesn't cool it, well, isn't it time you made waves, not peace? — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Was it in your column long ago I read about a shoe exchange for people who need just one shoe, such as amputees; or people who have foot problems? Because of a birth defect, my left foot and leg are smaller than the right. I must buy two pairs of shoes each time and could give the odd ones to the exchange if I had the address. Could you print it? — SMALL FOOT

Responding to "Shorty" who wonders if he dare marry a taller girl, I've been married almost three years to a man who is not quite 5 feet 2. I'm 5 feet 5. I'm 20, he's 24.

Joe has gotten kidded all his life. I get teased too, like, "How do you like bending down to kiss your husband?"

My husband may be short but he is taller than many six-footers I know and I'd rather be married to him than two John Waynes rolled into one.

Two Senators Don't Like Belt Buzzers

By LUCIA MOUAT
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

WASHINGTON — You slide into the driver's seat of your 1974 car and try to turn the ignition key. Nothing. You cannot even drive out of the driveway until you fasten that seat belt.

Later when you stop at a gas station and unbuckle the belt-harness to reach for your wallet, a buzzer reminds you that you're not strapped in.

Not that the two frown on seat belts. Both say they think motorists should wear them. What they don't like is the denial of any freedom of choice in an area where the motorist's own personal safety is all that's at stake — not that of another driver.

Senator Buckley, who likens the buzzer sound to that of chalk squeaking across a blackboard, terms the mandatory buckle requirements "a blatant example of bureaucratic idiocy."

Backing up their views with action, the New York and Missouri senators are sponsoring a bill which would make either or both the buzzer and the ignition interlock optional instead of mandatory equipment.

They plan to tack it onto a public works bill due to come up on the Senate floor in a week or two.

So far, Senators Buckley and Eagleton have nine cosponsors for their bill and a growing pile of largely supportive mail. They estimate the cost of the interlock and buzzer — if Congress deems that the devices be optional — at about $50.

A spokesman for the American Automobile Association (AAA) told the Monitor that more studies were needed before considering any such legislation. While the AAA has always recommended voluntary, not compulstory, use of seat belts, ignition interlock definitely had "some merits" and has increased belt-harness use significantly, the spokesman said.

It has long been known that, despite increasing government pressure over the last decade, motorists have not taken to seat belts to the degree which safety advocates had hoped.

In the face of what auto-safety experts regard as compelling reasons — they say 10,000 to 20,000 more lives could be saved each year if all drivers and passengers would buckle up — many motorists have shown they are willing to go to some lengths to avoid being strapped in.

A recent study done for the nongovernmental Insurance Institute for Highway Safety indicates 41 percent of the owners of '74 cars have devised ways to get around the warning system and ignition interlock without wearing the belt-harness.

A 1973 Gallup Poll estimated that 30 percent of all motorists wear seat belts. Those with college educations and Westerners were most prone to do so.

Though compliance statistics are not very encouraging, belt proponents remain hopeful that in time all motorists will see the wisdom of bukcling up. American Safety Belt Council president Charles H. Pulley has described belt usage as mainly a matter of "habit."

However, over the years the once polite invitation to wear seat belts for one's own safety has been shifting toward a command performance. It is that trend to which the two senators object.

Ten years ago the government first required at least two front lap belts be installed on all new cars. Now buckling is linked to buzzers and ignitions. There is a strong move under way to get states to make belt use mandatory and levy a fine on motorists who fail to comply.

MUSIC REVIEW

'Consumate Artistry' Marks Musicians' Recital Of Sonatas

By SUSAN McCLEES BLACK

Consumate artistry was the point of departure last night at the Forest Meadows Center of the Arts festival in the sonata recital of violinist Leonard Sorkin and pianist James Tocco.

Tocco, a young man and winner of the 1973 Munich International Music Competition, and Sorkin, first violinist of the Fine Arts Quartet which he founded in Wisconsin, were a beautifully matched duo who delivered a virtually flawless performance of the three Brahms sonatas for violin and piano: Sonata in G Major, op. 78, Sonata in A Major, op. 100, and Sonata in D Minor, op. 108.

Sonatas give the performers no place to hide and the first sonata, in G, established that Sorkin and Tocco thrive on this kind of exposed playing. Sorkin's broad phrases and rich vibrato brought out the majesty of this sonata. Tocco's technique spanned a diverse and sensitive range of expression.

The second sonata, in A, gave a wider, more varied look at their capabilities. The first movement was a full, controlled allegro. The second movement was an enchanting adagio followed by a light scherzo that had some delightful passages contrasting a relatively legato violin with a capricious pattering piano. The last movement was a very satisfying allegretto grazioso.

The last sonata, in D minor, while not written for technical display, works through a variety of moods in its four movements and afforded the audience further perspectives of the performers. Having sustained a sparkling performance thus far, they played through this piece in a crescendo of energy climaxing with an exacting third movement containing some fast paced exchanges between performers and a demanding and vibrant fourth that gave a smashing finish to the program. The ensemble was marvelous, precise yet flexible.

At the conclusion of the performance, the audience gave Sorkin and Tocco a standing ovation. The performers responded with an encore of a Brahms scherzo that had a pervading first theme consisting of an alternating duple and triple pluse. It was a final treat in a rewarding evening.

Concluding special events in the festival are:

Today at 7:30 p.m. in Angelico Hall — Dance concert given by the participants of the craft of choreography conference.

Tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. — Chamber ensembles presented by Forest Meadows student musicians.

Sunday at 1:30 p.m. — Closing concert of the festival performed by the chorus and orchestra of the Forest Meadows Center of the Arts.

Phone Calls Drop While Nixon Talks

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Pacific Telephone Co. reported last night that calls originating in California dropped 97 ¾ per cent during President Nixon's 15-minute resignation speech.

But after the speech there was a 220 per cent increase in calls with most going to Washington, presumably to the White House and congressional offices.

800 Die In Flood

DACCA (UPI) — Nearly 800 persons are officially listed as dead in the worst floods to hit Bangladesh in 20 years with nearly two-thirds of the nation affected by the rising waters. Unofficial estimates put the toll between 1,500 and 3,000.

Break-In Guard Wants Honesty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The man who discovered the Watergate break-in says no one, not even a president, is exempt from honesty.

Frank Wills, now unemployed, was the security guard at the Watergate office building the early morning of June 17, 1972. He discovered tape on a door lock and called police.

Speaking through a friend yesterday, Wills said:

"No position is too high —if you are wrong, you are wrong, especially if you are elected by a majority of the U.S. citizens and especially when they elect you to be sincere, honest and forthright."

Cotati Has Planning Director

The City of Cotati's first full time planning director will start work Monday, City Mgr. Robert A. Switzer said yesterday.

Mrs. Boehlje, 26, will receive $1,285 a month in the new post, Switzer said. Mark Thysen, who has been Cotati's city planner but not planning director, will go on part-time status at his own request, Switzer said.

Mrs. Boehlje is leaving a city planning post in Napa for her new job. She is a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley, with a master's degree in planning.

She and her husband plan to move to Petaluma in the near future. They have no children.

Milk Hearing Set

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — District Judge Tom Blackwell has ordered a hearing Oct. 1 to consider the state's request for a temporary injunction banning Associated Milk Producers Inc. from price fixing, illegal restraints of trade and unlawful kickbacks.

San Rafael Schools Tax Vote Possible

The San Rafael Board of Education, forced to dip into reserve funds to finance a $13 million budget for 1974-75, may place a tax increase measure on the ballot next spring, the city schools administration said yesterday.

Supt. Donald Leisey, saying he is not "totally optimistic" about passage of such a measure, said the board may have to ballot it anyway.

"It's a real possibility," he said, adding he did not know how much of an increase in tax revenues is needed to ease the school system's financial woes.

The board, confronted with the propsect of a tax election Tuesday, made no comment on the matter but instructed Leisey to exercise "strict budget controls" to reduce deficit spending.

The district's $13,160,928 budget will require spending $911,620 of the $1,447,804 reserve fund, according to the superintendent.

Expenditures are up 13 per cent while income has remained about the same, he explained.

He said the board must decide next fall whether or not to present a tax measure to voters to finance the 1975-76 spending program. Another alternative, he said, is "drastically reducing" the education program through staff cuts, among other things.

Eighty-five per cent of the $13 million budget goes for salaries and fringe benefits, he said.

Bar Group Head Sees Challenge

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Robert G. Begam, new vice president of the Association of Trial Lawyers of America, asserts that the entire legal profession is on trial before the court of public opinion because of Watergate.

"Never before in the history of our profession have we been so challenged and in such broad disrepute," the Phoenix, Ariz., attorney said yesterday at the association's annual convention.

Begam pointed out that just about all those indicted for Watergate were lawyers.

MUSIC REVIEW

'Consumate Artistry' Marks Musicians' Recital Of Sonatas

By SUSAN McCLEES BLACK

Consumate artistry was the point of departure last night at the Forest Meadows Center of the Arts festival in the sonata recital of violinist Leonard Sorkin and pianist James Tocco.

Tocco, a young man and winner of the 1973 Munich International Music Competition, and Sorkin, first violinist of the Fine Arts Quartet which he founded in Wisconsin, were a beautifully matched duo who delivered a virtually flawless performance of the three Brahms sonatas for violin and piano: Sonata in G Major, op. 78, Sonata in A Major, op. 100, and Sonata in D Minor, op. 108.

Sonatas give the performers no place to hide and the first sonata, in G, established that Sorkin and Tocco thrive on this kind of exposed playing. Sorkin's broad phrases and rich vibrato brought out the majesty of this sonata. Tocco's technique spanned a diverse and sensitive range of expression.

The second sonata, in A, gave a wider, more varied look at their capabilities. The first movement was a full, controlled allegro. The second movement was an enchanting adagio followed by a light scherzo that had some delightful passages contrasting a relatively legato violin with a capricious pattering piano. The last movement was a very satisfying allegretto grazioso.

The last sonata, in D minor, while not written for technical display, works through a variety of moods in its four movements and afforded the audience further perspectives of the performers. Having sustained a sparkling performance thus far, they played through this piece in a crescendo of energy climaxing with an exacting third movement containing some fast paced exchanges between performers and a demanding and vibrant fourth that gave a smashing finish to the program. The ensemble was marvelous, precise yet flexible.

At the conclusion of the performance, the audience gave Sorkin and Tocco a standing ovation. The performers responded with an encore of a Brahms scherzo that had a pervading first theme consisting of an alternating duple and triple pluse. It was a final treat in a rewarding evening.

Concluding special events in the festival are:

Today at 7:30 p.m. in Angelico Hall — Dance concert given by the participants of the craft of choreography conference.

Tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. — Chamber ensembles presented by Forest Meadows student musicians.

Sunday at 1:30 p.m. — Closing concert of the festival performed by the chorus and orchestra of the Forest Meadows Center of the Arts.

Phone Calls Drop While Nixon Talks

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Pacific Telephone Co. reported last night that calls originating in California dropped 97 ¾ per cent during President Nixon's 15-minute resignation speech.

But after the speech there was a 220 per cent increase in calls with most going to Washington, presumably to the White House and congressional offices.

800 Die In Flood

DACCA (UPI) — Nearly 800 persons are officially listed as dead in the worst floods to hit Bangladesh in 20 years with nearly two-thirds of the nation affected by the rising waters. Unofficial estimates put the toll between 1,500 and 3,000.

Break-In Guard Wants Honesty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The man who discovered the Watergate break-in says no one, not even a president, is exempt from honesty.

Frank Wills, now unemployed, was the security guard at the Watergate office building the early morning of June 17, 1972. He discovered tape on a door lock and called police.

Speaking through a friend yesterday, Wills said:

"No position is too high —if you are wrong, you are wrong, especially if you are elected by a majority of the U.S. citizens and especially when they elect you to be sincere, honest and forthright."

Cotati Has Planning Director

The City of Cotati's first full time planning director will start work Monday, City Mgr. Robert A. Switzer said yesterday.

Mrs. Boehlje, 26, will receive $1,285 a month in the new post, Switzer said. Mark Thysen, who has been Cotati's city planner but not planning director, will go on part-time status at his own request, Switzer said.

Mrs. Boehlje is leaving a city planning post in Napa for her new job. She is a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley, with a master's degree in planning.

She and her husband plan to move to Petaluma in the near future. They have no children.

Milk Hearing Set

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — District Judge Tom Blackwell has ordered a hearing Oct. 1 to consider the state's request for a temporary injunction banning Associated Milk Producers Inc. from price fixing, illegal restraints of trade and unlawful kickbacks.

San Rafael Schools Tax Vote Possible

The San Rafael Board of Education, forced to dip into reserve funds to finance a $13 million budget for 1974-75, may place a tax increase measure on the ballot next spring, the city schools administration said yesterday.

Supt. Donald Leisey, saying he is not "totally optimistic" about passage of such a measure, said the board may have to ballot it anyway.

"It's a real possibility," he said, adding he did not know how much of an increase in tax revenues is needed to ease the school system's financial woes.

The board, confronted with the propsect of a tax election Tuesday, made no comment on the matter but instructed Leisey to exercise "strict budget controls" to reduce deficit spending.

The district's $13,160,928 budget will require spending $911,620 of the $1,447,804 reserve fund, according to the superintendent.

Expenditures are up 13 per cent while income has remained about the same, he explained.

He said the board must decide next fall whether or not to present a tax measure to voters to finance the 1975-76 spending program. Another alternative, he said, is "drastically reducing" the education program through staff cuts, among other things.

Eighty-five per cent of the $13 million budget goes for salaries and fringe benefits, he said.

Bar Group Head Sees Challenge

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Robert G. Begam, new vice president of the Association of Trial Lawyers of America, asserts that the entire legal profession is on trial before the court of public opinion because of Watergate.

"Never before in the history of our profession have we been so challenged and in such broad disrepute," the Phoenix, Ariz., attorney said yesterday at the association's annual convention.

Begam pointed out that just about all those indicted for Watergate were lawyers.

PETALUMA ADOBE

A Look At Rugged Ranch Life

By REBECCA LARSEN

The Petaluma Adobe, once headquarters for the 66,000-acre ranch of General Mariano Vallejo, provides a glimpse of what life was like on the rugged ranches of early California.

Just 25 miles from San Rafael, the adobe is a good place for a picnic stop on the way to another destination or for a half-day visit.

From Highway 101, a short drive along a dusty rural road leads to the adobe, a large, mud brick building, surrounded by rolling grassland.

A few miles away are sprawling Petaluma subdivisions and the busy highway but the immediate vicinity is quiet farmland. So it's easy to squint at the horizon, ignore a few utility towers and imagine what the adobe was like in its heyday.

After parking, visitors cross a tiny bridge over a dried up creek and climb a small rise to the sunny knoll where the adobe stands overlooking the Petaluma Valley.

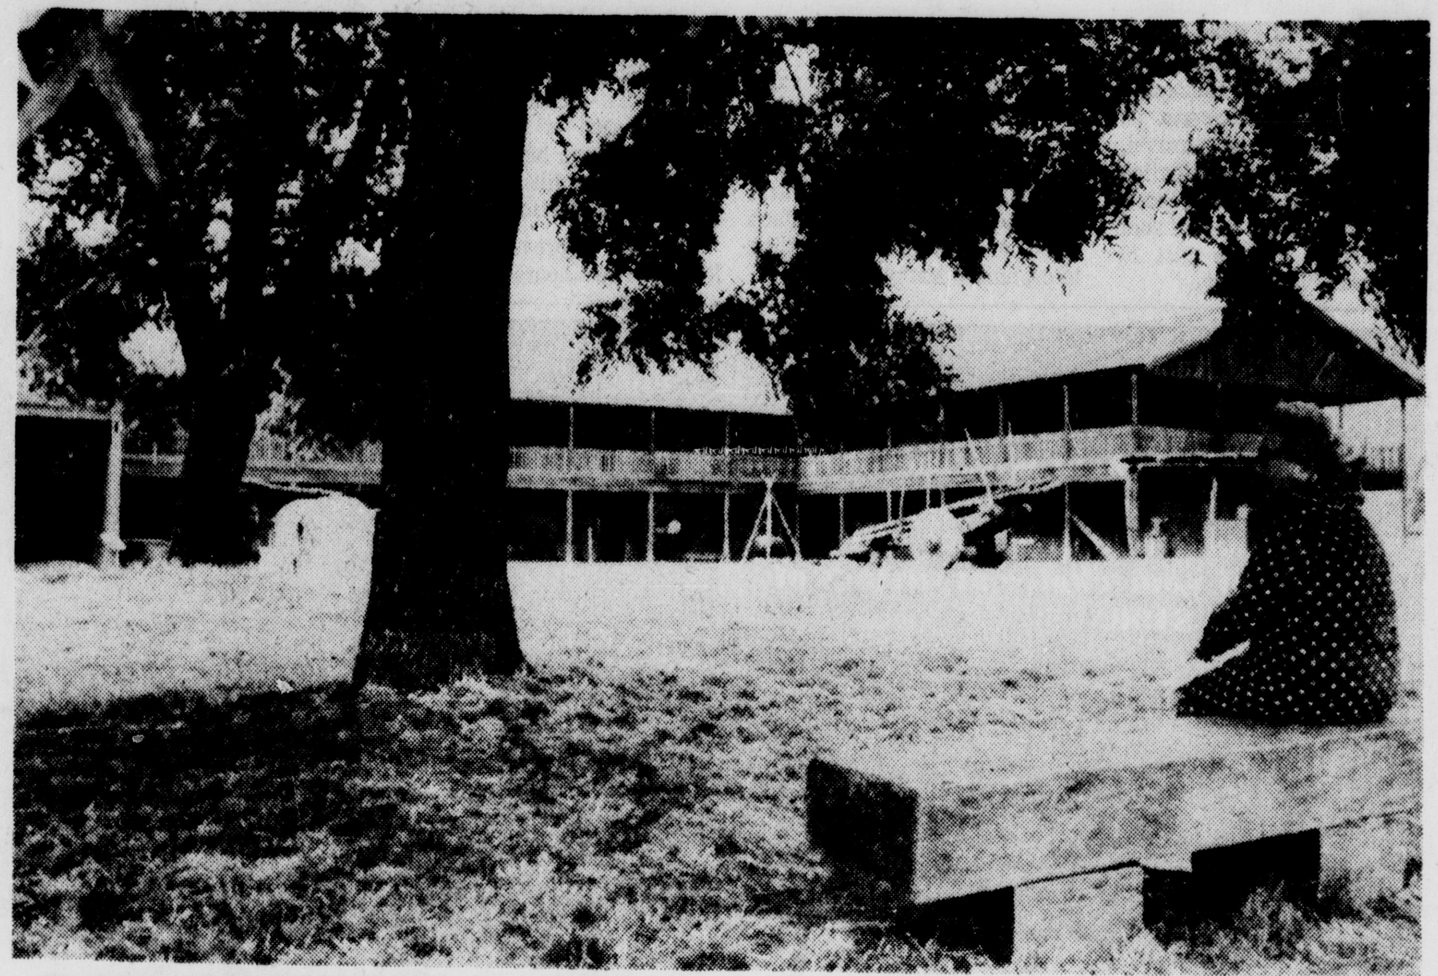
There is a sprinkling of trees around the building and a few grape vines, grown from cuttings from plants brought to California by Spanish pioneers.

The brown adobe is a massive, two-story U-shaped structure, not an architectural masterpiece but impressive nonetheless.

Although the building never was completely finished, it was once twice as large as today and formed a square around an inner courtyard. In the remaining section, which has been partly restored, about 85 per cent of the brick walls and 20 per cent of the woodwork are original.

Visitors probably will marvel that so many of the adobe's original pressed mud bricks, which can be scratched with a fingernail, have managed to survive more than a century of earthquakes, rainfall and human abuse.

The adobe was once the main center for Rancho Petaluma, the farming empire granted to General Vallejo in 1934 by the Mexican government. He began building the adobe two years later.



SHADES OF YESTERDAY — Bernice Reed of Novato relaxes beneath a shady tree as she contemplates a bit of Old California, the Petaluma Adobe of General Mariano Vallejo. Built in the 1830s, the structure was restored in the 1950s and now is both a state park and a national historical landmark.

Vallejo was first the commandant of the Presidio of San Francisco and later was commandant and director of colonization of Northern California.

First stop at the adobe is a center with displays describing the history of the rancho and the era that spawned it. For the 25-cent admission price, an historical brochure is also provided.

Visitors can walk in and out of the adobe interior rooms which contain placards explaining the function of each room. Most of the inside has been furnished with typical furniture and work implements of the day. Rooms are screened off to keep visitors at the threshold.

Downstairs are rooms where grain was stored and ground, where weaving was done and where candles were dipped. Upstairs are the ranch manager's apartment, guest quarters and the rooms the Vallejo family used when not staying at their main home in Sonoma. Most of the rooms are dark and cave-like, a reminder of the hardships of life in early California.

Even the more elegantly-furnished Vallejo apartment, with its chandeliers, carved sofas and tables, strikes the visitor as a crude attempt to bring gentility to the frontier. The bedroom, for example, was something of a dormitory, crowded with beds to accomodate the entire Vallejo family.

The rancho's main function was to raise cattle for tallow and hides. A horned cow and her calf in a nearby corral gives the visitor a feel for that side of ranch life. There are also a donkey, chickens and a goat on the premises.

Vallejo only farmed the rancho for a short time and then began leasing it out to other farmers.

The adobe was not well cared for and began to crumble away until it finally was purchased by the Native Sons of the Golden West. Since 1952 it has been part of the state park system which has conducted its restoration. It is also a national historical landmark.

After the tour, it's time for a picnic on one of the nearby sunny hillsides, perhaps on a blanket or one of the tables provided. It's wise to bring your own food since the closest restaurants and stores are miles away.

The adobe and its park are reached by taking the highway 116 exit from Highway 101 in Petaluma which leads to Casa Grande Road. The landmark is about three miles down Casa Grande. Bicyclists can park their cars near the 101 exit and pedal in. Racks are provided at the park.

The site is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily except for holidays. Admission tickets are also good on the day of purchase for admission to historical buildings on the main square of the City of Sonoma and to Vallejo's home, "Lachryma Montis," just outside the city.

Marin Court Suit Seeks $2 Million

A Mill Valley woman, complaining she was recruited for a phony talk show that turned out to be a coffee commercial, sued for $2 million yesterday.

Carol Simon, who works in the Marin County Personnel Department, said she was fooled into taking a day off from her job and driving through a rainstorm to Hillsborough.

The Marin Superior Court suit said Miss Simon was walking at the Town and Country Village shopping center in Strawberry last November when approached by Young and Rubicam International, an advertising agency, and invited to appear on camera with Mary Tyler Moore and Hope Lange.

She asked if the show involved a coffee survey but was told it did not, according to the suit which does not state how she came to ask.

So she agreed to appear but it was a commercial for Sanka coffee.

Miss Simon's suit, filed by San Rafael attorney Jacobs, asks $1 million damaged for emotional distress, humiliation and insult to her dignity and $1 million exemplary damage.

Named as defendants are Young and Rubicam, General Foods Inc. and Fanny Flagg, who hosts the commercials.

Psychiatric Examination Is Ordered

A psychiatric examination of a young San Franciscan who severely beat a Tiburon woman was ordered yesterday in Marin Superior Court.

Richard Gordon Jimenez, 23, was told to return to the court of Judge Charles Read Best on Sept. 12 for sentencing.

Jimenez pleaded guilty yesterday to feloniously assaulting Barbara B. Taber on Feb. 28 and stealing her stereo, furs, jewelry and car.

During a preliminary hearing, Mrs. Taber testified Jimenez, an acquaintance, beat her so severely she had to be hospitalized 10 days.

She suffered three skull fractures, a broken nose and several broken ribs and required 131 stitches, she said.

Bolinas Drops Constable Plan

A proposal for an elected constable for Bolinas was dropped last night from a community plan being developed by the Bolinas Planning Group, according to group coordinator Rex Rathbun.

Members of the group agreed to work for closer relations with the Marin County sheriff's department rather than elect an independent law enforcement officer, Rathbun said.

Also discussed was a proposal for a lottery system to select applicants for new home construction in the village. Under the community plan, which is still in draft form and subject to change, residential growth would be limited to six new homes a year.

School Board Votes Budget For Nicasio

The Nicasio School District board has adopted a $62,746 budget for 1974-75, relatively unchanged from last years $62,000 spending program.

No change was made Monday when the board held a public hearing on the publication budget, according to Beverly Alberigi, district secretary-bookkeeper.

Mrs. Alberigi said the district cannot estimate its 1974-75 tax rate until it obtains assessed valuation figures from the county. The district's current tax rate is $1.71 per $100 of assessed valuation.

But since assessed valuation throughout the county has increased over last year, the tax rate should be lower than this year, she said.

The final budget is $6,646 higher than the preliminary budget approved in May, and includes a 10 per cent salary increase for all employees for the coming fiscal year.

Errant Attorney Not Entitled To Demand Fees, Judge Rules

An attorney who did not see his client's case through to the end is not entitled to a fee, a Marin Municipal Court judge ruled today in small claims court.

Lawyer William H. Stephens of Sausalito walked out of court with only $42.30, not the $500 he had asked.

Stephens sued Ann Goldberg of Napa, saying she owed him money for working on lawsuits for her involving a child support case and money owed by her ex-husband.

But Mrs. Goldberg countered by telling Judge Gary W. Thomas that Stephens let her down several times and deserved no fee.

Specifically, she said the attorney once assured her he had obtained a delay in a case, but told her to go to court anyway. When she got there, Stephens was the only one not present and no delay had been granted, Mrs. Goldberg said.

On other occasions, he showed up late in court, failed to serve notice of a hearing on an opposing attorney and neglected to obtain a promised financial statement from Mrs. Goldberg's ex-husband, she said.

Finally, due to an illness of his son, Stephens left the case, forcing Mrs. Goldberg to hire another attorney and wait an additional year for the case to reach the top of the court calendar again.

Mrs. Goldberg said she paid a total of $872 to Stephens, including one check for $495.

But the San Rafael law firm of Bagley, Bianchi, Hoskins and Rosenberg, to which Stephens belonged at the time, has been dunning her, claiming she never paid the $495, she said.

She produced a check, endorsed by Stephens, who said he would see that the money was forwarded to his old law partner.

Thomas ruled Mrs. Goldberg owes Stephens not $658, as he claimed, or $500, the small claims court limit, but $42.30, the cost of serving some legal papers on Mrs. Goldberg's ex-husband.

Nixon Names Meskill To Court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Connecticut Gov. Thomas J. Meskill was nominated to the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals by Richard Nixon only hours before Nixon announced he would resign as President.

The nomination yesterday now goes to the Senate Judiciary Committee, which will hold hearings on the lifetime appointment to the court, which includes the states of Connecticut Vermont and New York.

PETALUMA ADOBE

A Look At Rugged Ranch Life

By REBECCA LARSEN

The Petaluma Adobe, once headquarters for the 66,000-acre ranch of General Mariano Vallejo, provides a glimpse of what life was like on the rugged ranches of early California.

Just 25 miles from San Rafael, the adobe is a good place for a picnic stop on the way to another destination or for a half-day visit.

From Highway 101, a short drive along a dusty rural road leads to the adobe, a large, mud brick building, surrounded by rolling grassland.

A few miles away are sprawling Petaluma subdivisions and the busy highway but the immediate vicinity is quiet farmland. So it's easy to squint at the horizon, ignore a few utility towers and imagine what the adobe was like in its heyday.

After parking, visitors cross a tiny bridge over a dried up creek and climb a small rise to the sunny knoll where the adobe stands overlooking the Petaluma Valley.

There is a sprinkling of trees around the building and a few grape vines, grown from cuttings from plants brought to California by Spanish pioneers.

The brown adobe is a massive, two-story U-shaped structure, not an architectural masterpiece but impressive nonetheless.

Although the building never was completely finished, it was once twice as large as today and formed a square around an inner courtyard. In the remaining section, which has been partly restored, about 85 per cent of the brick walls and 20 per cent of the woodwork are original.

Visitors probably will marvel that so many of the adobe's original pressed mud bricks, which can be scratched with a fingernail, have managed to survive more than a century of earthquakes, rainfall and human abuse.

The adobe was once the main center for Rancho Petaluma, the farming empire granted to General Vallejo in 1934 by the Mexican government. He began building the adobe two years later.

Vallejo was first the commandant of the Presidio of San Francisco and later was commandant and director of colonization of Northern California.

First stop at the adobe is a center with displays describing the history of the rancho and the era that spawned it. For the 25-cent admission price, an historical brochure is also provided.

Visitors can walk in and out of the adobe interior rooms which contain placards explaining the function of each room. Most of the inside has been furnished with typical furniture and work implements of the day. Rooms are screened off to keep visitors at the threshold.

Downstairs are rooms where grain was stored and ground, where weaving was done and where candles were dipped. Upstairs are the ranch manager's apartment, guest quarters and the rooms the Vallejo family used when not staying at their main home in Sonoma. Most of the rooms are dark and cave-like, a reminder of the hardships of life in early California.

Even the more elegantly-furnished Vallejo apartment, with its chandeliers, carved sofas and tables, strikes the visitor as a crude attempt to bring gentility to the frontier. The bedroom, for example, was something of a dormitory, crowded with beds to accomodate the entire Vallejo family.

The rancho's main function was to raise cattle for tallow and hides. A horned cow and her calf in a nearby corral gives the visitor a feel for that side of ranch life. There are also a donkey, chickens and a goat on the premises.

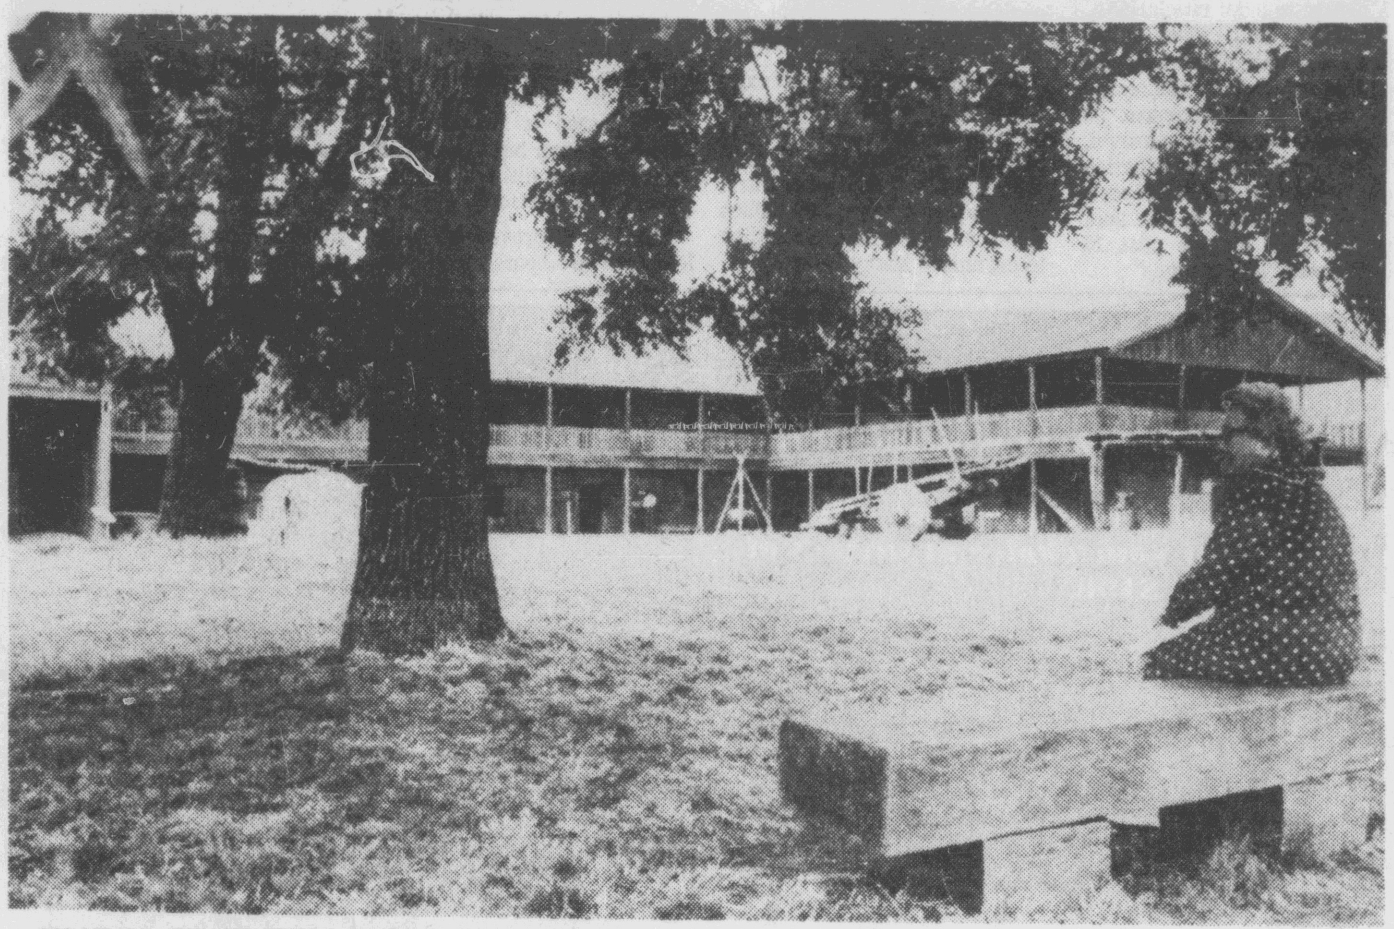
Vallejo only farmed the rancho for a short time and then began leasing it out to other farmers.

The adobe was not well cared for and began to crumble away until it finally was purchased by the Native Sons of the Golden West. Since 1952 it has been part of the state park system which has conducted its restoration. It is also a national historical landmark.

After the tour, it's time for a picnic on one of the nearby sunny hillsides, perhaps on a blanket or one of the tables provided. It's wise to bring your own food since the closest restaurants and stores are miles away.

The adobe and its park are reached by taking the highway 116 exit from Highway 101 in Petaluma which leads to Casa Grande Road. The landmark is about three miles down Casa Grande. Bicyclists can park their cars near the 101 exit and pedal in. Racks are provided at the park.

The site is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily except for holidays. Admission tickets are also good on the day of purchase for admission to historical buildings on the main square of the City of Sonoma and to Vallejo's home, "Lachryma Montis," just outside the city.



SHADES OF YESTERDAY — Bernice Reed of Novato relaxes beneath a shady tree as she contemplates a bit of Old California, the Petaluma Adobe of General Mariano Vallejo. Built in the 1830s, the structure was restored in the 1950s and now is both a state park and a national historical landmark.

Nixon's press secretary

Ziegler Gives Press Applause In Farewell

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ronald L. Ziegler, President Nixon's controversial press secretary, bowed out last night with an accolade for the "diversity and strength of the American free press."

In an emotional valedictory from the podium in the White House press center where he had stood under fire so often for the past 5-½ years, Ziegler told reporters, "We've been through many difficult times together and historic times. Whatever our differences, I know there are no simple answers.

"I take away a deep sense of respect for the diversity and strength of this country's freedom of expression and for all of you in the press."

"It's been an honor to be here," he added, his voice breaking.

"I've been proud to be President Nixon's press secretary over he last 5-½ years.

"I've tried to be professional and I've never underestimated the energy or intelligence" that the press brings to its job.

Ziegler, 34, was the youngest press secretary in White House history.

He began his career as a press spokesman during Nixon's 1968 presidential campaign and took the press secretary's post after the election.

He fared well until the reelection campaign of 1972 when he found himself lashing back, mainly at the Eastern press for Watergate scandal revelations.

In April, 1973, when Nixon forced the resignations of his two top aides, H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman as Watergate began to unravel, Ziegler, with some humiliation had to come out and tell reporters that everything he had said on Watergate for the past 10 months was "inoperative."

The word "inoperative' stuck with him the rest of the way.

But Nixon absolved Ziegler of any involvement in Watergate, and gave him the additional title of assistant to to the President.

Carnival Slated

A children's carnival to raise money for the Muscular Dystrophy Association of America will be held tomorrow from 12:30 to 4:30 p.m. at Belvedere Park, San Rafael Avenue and Beach Road in Belvedere, according to organizer Kathy O'Grady.

Campaign Reform Bill Is Approved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Almost unnoticed amid the furor of the President Nixon's resignation, the House overwhelmingly passed a campaign financing reform bill to halt fund raising abuses like those in 1972 presidential election.

The bill, approved 355 to 48 less than two hours before Nixon announced his resignation, would set limits on political contributions, restrict candidate spending, provide federal subsidies for presidential conventions, elections and primaries, and establish a new six-man board to enforce the new campaign rules.

The bill now goes to a conference committee who will reconcile differences with a measure already passed by the Senate.

The bill limits Presidential candidates to $10 million total expenditures for a primary and $20 million in a general election. The entire $20 million for general election expenditures would come from a fund financed by the $1 tax checkoff o federal income tax returns.

Night Clerk Stares Down Hotel Burglar

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — "Go ahead and shoot if you want to," William G. Brammer, night clerk at the Pedicord Hotel told a would-be robber pointing a gun at him yesterday, demanding money, but getting no cooperation.

The startled bandit, in his 20s, ran from the hotel without a cent. Brammer is 75 years old.

Terra Linda Publisher Is Retiring

Eric Colby, publisher of the weekly Terra Linda News for the last 11 years, has announced his retirement from the newspaper post.

"I have been in this business for 11 years and I'm retiring," said the 37-year-old Colby, declining to elaborate on the move.

Named acting publisher of the Terra Linda News is Stuart Strong, 59, of Berkeley, the newspaper's former general manager. Strong, a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley, joined the paper in 1966 as a circulation, advertising and promotional consultant.

Strong previously has held a number of newspaper jobs, including a stint as night circulation manager of the San Francisco Examiner.

Strong also will act as publisher of the weekly San Rafael Pointer, a sister publication of the Terra Linda News.

Escape Tolls Are Plastered To Inmate

They said he suffered the broken ankle in a prior escape attempt.

RONALD L. ZIEGLER
Nixon's press secretary

Ziegler Gives Press Applause In Farewell

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ronald L. Ziegler, President Nixon's controversial press secretary, bowed out last night with an accolade for the "diversity and strength of the American free press."

In an emotional valedictory from the podium in the White House press center where he had stood under fire so often for the past 5-½ years, Ziegler told reporters, "We've been through many difficult times together and historic times. Whatever our differences, I know there are no simple answers.

"I take away a deep sense of respect for the diversity and strength of this country's freedom of expression and for all of you in the press."

"It's been an honor to be here," he added, his voice breaking.

"I've been proud to be President Nixon's press secretary over he last 5-½ years.

"I've tried to be professional and I've never underestimated the energy or intelligence" that the press brings to its job.

Ziegler, 34, was the youngest press secretary in White House history.

He began his career as a press spokesman during Nixon's 1968 presidential campaign and took the press secretary's post after the election.

He fared well until the reelection campaign of 1972 when he found himself lashing back, mainly at the Eastern press for Watergate scandal revelations.

In April, 1973, when Nixon forced the resignations of his two top aides, H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman as Watergate began to unravel, Ziegler, with some humiliation had to come out and tell reporters that everything he had said on Watergate for the past 10 months was "inoperative."

The word "inoperative' stuck with him the rest of the way.

But Nixon absolved Ziegler of any involvement in Watergate, and gave him the additional title of assistant to to the President.

Carnival Slated

A children's carnival to raise money for the Muscular Dystrophy Association of America will be held tomorrow from 12:30 to 4:30 p.m. at Belvedere Park, San Rafael Avenue and Beach Road in Belvedere, according to organizer Kathy O'Grady.

Campaign Reform Bill Is Approved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Almost unnoticed amid the furor of the President Nixon's resignation, the House overwhelmingly passed a campaign financing reform bill to halt fund raising abuses like those in 1972 presidential election.

The bill, approved 355 to 48 less than two hours before Nixon announced his resignation, would set limits on political contributions, restrict candidate spending, provide federal subsidies for presidential conventions, elections and primaries, and establish a new six-man board to enforce the new campaign rules.

The bill now goes to a conference committee who will reconcile differences with a measure already passed by the Senate.

The bill limits Presidential candidates to $10 million total expenditures for a primary and $20 million in a general election. The entire $20 million for general election expenditures would come from a fund financed by the $1 tax checkoff o federal income tax returns.

Night Clerk Stares Down Hotel Burglar

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — "Go ahead and shoot if you want to," William G. Brammer, night clerk at the Pedicord Hotel told a would-be robber pointing a gun at him yesterday, demanding money, but getting no cooperation.

The startled bandit, in his 20s, ran from the hotel without a cent. Brammer is 75 years old.

Terra Linda Publisher Is Retiring

Eric Colby, publisher of the weekly Terra Linda News for the last 11 years, has announced his retirement from the newspaper post.

"I have been in this business for 11 years and I'm retiring," said the 37-year-old Colby, declining to elaborate on the move.

Named acting publisher of the Terra Linda News is Stuart Strong, 59, of Berkeley, the newspaper's former general manager. Strong, a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley, joined the paper in 1966 as a circulation, advertising and promotional consultant.

Strong previously has held a number of newspaper jobs, including a stint as night circulation manager of the San Francisco Examiner.

Strong also will act as publisher of the weekly San Rafael Pointer, a sister publication of the Terra Linda News.

Escape Tolls Are Plastered To Inmate

FAIRFIELD (UPI) — Solano County jailers found escape tools, a cutting wire and pliers, in the ankle cast of inmate Wilbur K. Perryman and halted his attempt to saw through his bars.

They said he suffered the broken ankle in a prior escape attempt.

CHALKING A FEW LAST TIRES — Mill Valley's parking enforcement officer Molly MacGowan marks the tire of a motorist who is likely to get tagged if he doesn't watch out. In a few weeks, Molly will give up her route for ranch life in Northern California.

Meter Maid Will Exchange Her Uniform For Overalls

By REBECCA LARSEN

Molly the meter maid is leaving Mill Valley.

However, that doesn't mean that drivers won't get tickets anymore if they don't drop nickels in their meters.

But as of the first week in September, their citations won't be made out by Molly MacGowan, who's been writing those tickets since 1967.

Actually, Mrs. MacGowan doesn't like to be called a meter maid, she's really the city's parking enforcement officer. "Meter maids have little or no knowledge of the function of parking meters but I can repair the meters and collect the money too," she said.

On various occasions she also serves as radio dispatcher, police matron, clerk and police department tour guide.

At one time or another most people who have been in downtown Mill Valley on a weekday probably have seen Mrs. MacGowan in banks, spit curls and blue uniform, cruising the streets in her yellow buggy on motorcycle wheels.

At the end of August, she and her 5-year-old daughter, Ginger, are moving to her mother-in-law's cattle ranch in Etna, Siskiyou County. Her husband, Jack, is already there.

Jack MacGowan recently developed an arthritic-like disease that caused numbing of his hands and his doctor advised him to give up city life, smoking and drinking and to get away from it all for awhile.

So the MacGowans decided to close up his Texaco station in San Rafael and head for the ranch for at least a year.

Mrs. MacGowan had hoped to take a leave of absence but the city turned her down.

But the MacGowans are renting rather than selling their Mill Valley home in hopes of returning someday.

It will be a big change of pace for Mrs. MacGowan to switch from meters, cars and motorcycles to chickens and cows and the wide open sapces.

"I love my job and I'm very happy and content but you have to love your family more," she said.

Big changes in lifestyle are nothing new to her.

When she came to Mill Valley after her marriage, she gave up eight years of fast-paced international travel as a chorus line skater in the Ice Follies and Holiday on Ice.

"All my friends in ice skating said then that I would never be able to stand it, that I'd have to come back. But I can adjust to change more rapidly than most," she said.

One thing she'll really miss, Mrs. MacGowan said, is the regular chance to skate at a San Francisco rink. "I guess we'll have to build our own rink up in Etna."

Was she a strict, law-and-order-type meter maid during her Mill Valley years?

Probably, she admits.

"It's my philosophy that if you go up to a meter and break the law by not putting coins in, then you deserve a ticket. Before I got this job, I was like everyone else. I used to think, 'catch me if you can.' But on the other side, I can see that meters really are there to help in circulating traffic."

They also pick up a tidy bit of change for the city.

Mrs. MacGowan, for example, has collected some $30,000 annually from the meters alone.

And that doesn't count the parking fines from the thousands of tickets she's written while patroling the highways and byways of Mill Valley watching for little red "expired" flags.

Golden Gate Board Ignores A Report

Golden Gate Bridge District directors yesterday thanked an organization of accountants for criticizing the district's long-range financial projections, then dismissed the matter.

The Accountants for the Public Interest, a nonprofit national organization, had objected last month that the projection gives directors too little information to tell them the impact of major expenditures on future finances.

The finance-auditing committee listened to a brief presentation by the organization, but accepted its staff's rebuttal that the projection is reliable and that a more detailed version probably would not justify the huge extra work.

The district staff defended its financial projections by pointing to the results of last fiscal year's budget, when bus transit expenditures of $8.8 million were seven tenths of one per cent under budget and total expenditures were 5.9 per cent under budget.

The committee also received a report that new steel cables being put on the span will last 60 to 80 years, roughly twice as long as the original ones, because of thicker galvanizing.

In other business, directors recommended addition to antiskid devices to 30 new buses on order, bringing their cost to $63,877 apiece.

Ross Town Council Adopts A $48,105 Budget For Year

The Ross Town Council last night adopted a $407,780 budget for 1974-75, up $48,105 from the past year's.

Major increase was for employee salaries, a 7.8 per cent raise. Town attorney and town clerk will receive $5,000 each, an $800 raise.

The tax rate, however, will roll back to the 1970-71 level at $1.66 per $100 assessed valuation, noted Councilman John H. Chase, explaining that increased assessed valuation of Ross property will raise tax bills sufficiently to allow the rate decrease.

"We're saved again by new construction of homes and reevaluation of property," he said prior to the budget vote.

Salary and retirement raises account for much of the budget increase, but Chase added that police and fire department gasoline was budgeted 50 per cent higher than last year.

Major budget items include police department, $93,253, up $13,006; fire department, $65,317, up $3,253; general government, $59,317, up $4.092; parks and boulevards, $56,117, up $3,440; street department, $39,656, up $9,283; capital expenditures from reserve fund, $29,270, down $13,573; and storm drains and flood control, $25,599, up $2,675.

The council withheld approval of the tax rate until it receives final figures from the county assessor's office.

The Ross Town Council also:

TOWN PARK — Approved a tentative master plan for a 1.7 acre town park with sports courts east of the Ross Post Office, to apply to the Marin Municipal Water District for a meter permit before an Oct. 31 deadline.

PAVING — Approved recommendation of Town Engineer Roy H. Hoffman to pave Wellington, Baywood and Madera avenues in Winship Park and Laurel Grove Avenue from Sir Francis Drake Boulevard to Skyland Way. It called for bids before the next meeting.

THROWAWAYS — Adopted an ordinance to ban house-to-house distribution of unsolicited advertising circulars and shopping newspapers.

HOMEWIRING — Introduced an ordinance to ban home electrical wiring by amateurs.

PARK BOND — Refused State Park Bond Issue funds, designating that the town's share go to the county.

MURKY CREEK — Requested a letter be sent to the Marin Municipal Water District to investigate source of gray sludge in Corte Madera Creek, on a resident's complaint.

NEXT MEETING — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Aug. 19 at town hall to approve tax rate.

Plans Rejected By Design Board

The Tamalpais Design Review Board last night rejected plans by a Mill Valley construction firm for 13 condominium townhouses on Shoreline Highway west of Pine Hill Road.

The board agreed that the project proposed by Broughton-Horne Co. is too dense and suggested that it be reduced to eight units, according to board member Curry Eckelhoff.

In other business, the board approved plans by Dr. Elliott Brender for a 16-foot-diameter geodesic dome to be built on three acres at the end of Midvale Avenue. The dome will be used as a greenhouse.

Petaluma School Budget Adopted

Budgets totaling more than $12.3 million for the Petaluma high school and elementary districts have been adopted by the Petaluma Board of Education.

District business officials estimated yesterday that the board's action Wednesday night will mean a tax rate of $2.21 per $100 assessed valution in the elementary district, an increase of 35 cents over last year's rate.

In the high school district the rate is expected to be $1.97 per $100 assessed valuation, down seven cents from last year's rate of $2.04. The figures are subject to change when the final property assessment rolls are received.

As approved, the high school district budget is $9,185,171, compared with $7,646,428 last year. The elementary district budget is $3,129,221, compared with $3,100,539, last year, according to Supt. Lesly H. Meyer.

The bulk of the budget increase will be financed by increased federal and state revenues plus increased assessed valuation on local property, district officials said.

There was little debate as the budget was adopted during a routine business meeting.

The Petaluma Board of Education also:

KELLER — Approved promotion of Mathew Keller, dean at Petaluma High School, to vice principal at Rancho Cotate High School. Keller is a 13-year veteran in the district's math and science departments.

COMMITTEES — Appointed advisory committees to help board members formulate spending if a proposed tax rate maximum increase measure is approved by the voters Nov. 5, the high school panel will include teachers Thelma Dungan, Steve Curtin, Sharon Graham, parents Ned McFaddenn, Betty Wilson and Sandra Orme, classified staff representative Clara Miyano and a student to be named later; the elementary committee to include teachers Leonard Svinth, Helen Kole, Bud Heth, parents Beryl Skuse, Carmen Harris, Shirley MacDonald, Kathleen Buchholz, Marie Mogel and Craig Miller and classified representative Joseph Infanger.

Novato Planners Slate Meeting

The Novato Planning Commission will have a public hearing on plans for a neighborhood shopping center at San Marin and San Andreas drives at 8 p.m. Monday at the Novato Community House.

The commission also will consider a tentative map of a nine-lot subdivision at the end of Hickox Road.

Only Mazda and the cars from Rolls-Royce have engines warranted for 50,000 miles or 3 years. Ever wondered why yours doesn't?

Mazda is so sure of its rotary engine that we guarantee it with a warranty only the cars from Rolls Royce can match.*

Why are we so sure?

To begin with, it's so much simpler than a piston engine. It has fewer moving parts, so there's less to go wrong.

And it's a proven engine. Today, there are over three-quarter of a million rotary-engine Mazdas on the roads of the world.

Why don't other piston-engine cars offer a warranty as long as ours?

* Mazda's non-transferable warranty is free on all new rotary-engine Mazdas sold on or after March 26, 1974. Mazda warrants that the basic engine block and internal parts will be free of defects, with normal use and prescribed maintenance, for 50,000 miles or 3 years, whichever occurs first, or Mazda will fix it free.

On various occasions she also serves as radio dispatcher, police matron, clerk and police department tour guide.

At one time or another most people who have been in downtown Mill Valley on a weekday probably have seen Mrs. MacGowan in banks, spit curls and blue uniform, cruising the streets in her yellow buggy on motorcycle wheels.

At the end of August, she and her 5-year-old daughter, Ginger, are moving to her mother-in-law's cattle ranch in Etna, Siskiyou County. Her husband, Jack, is already there.

Jack MacGowan recently developed an arthritic-like disease that caused numbing of his hands and his doctor advised him to give up city life, smoking and drinking and to get away from it all for awhile.

So the MacGowans decided to close up his Texaco station in San Rafael and head for the ranch for at least a year.

Mrs. MacGowan had hoped to take a leave of absence but the city turned her down.

But the MacGowans are renting rather than selling their Mill Valley home in hopes of returning someday.

It will be a big change of pace for Mrs. MacGowan to switch from meters, cars and motorcycles to chickens and cows and the wide open sapces.

"I love my job and I'm very happy and content but you have to love your family more," she said.

Big changes in lifestyle are nothing new to her.

When she came to Mill Valley after her marriage, she gave up eight years of fast-paced international travel as a chorus line skater in the Ice Follies and Holiday on Ice.

"All my friends in ice skating said then that I would never be able to stand it, that I'd have to come back. But I can adjust to change more rapidly than most," she said.

One thing she'll really miss, Mrs. MacGowan said, is the regular chance to skate at a San Francisco rink. "I guess we'll have to build our own rink up in Etna."

Was she a strict, law-and-order-type meter maid during her Mill Valley years?

Probably, she admits.

"It's my philosophy that if you go up to a meter and break the law by not putting coins in, then you deserve a ticket. Before I got this job, I was like everyone else. I used to think, 'catch me if you can.' But on the other side, I can see that meters really are there to help in circulating traffic."

They also pick up a tidy bit of change for the city.

Mrs. MacGowan, for example, has collected some $30,000 annually from the meters alone.

And that doesn't count the parking fines from the thousands of tickets she's written while patroling the highways and byways of Mill Valley watching for little red "expired" flags.

Golden Gate Board Ignores A Report

Golden Gate Bridge District directors yesterday thanked an organization of accountants for criticizing the district's long-range financial projections, then dismissed the matter.

The Accountants for the Public Interest, a nonprofit national organization, had objected last month that the projection gives directors too little information to tell them the impact of major expenditures on future finances.

The finance-auditing committee listened to a brief presentation by the organization, but accepted its staff's rebuttal that the projection is reliable and that a more detailed version probably would not justify the huge extra work.

The district staff defended its financial projections by pointing to the results of last fiscal year's budget, when bus transit expenditures of $8.8 million were seven tenths of one per cent under budget and total expenditures were 5.9 per cent under budget.

The committee also received a report that new steel cables being put on the span will last 60 to 80 years, roughly twice as long as the original ones, because of thicker galvanizing.

In other business, directors recommended addition to antiskid devices to 30 new buses on order, bringing their cost to $63,877 apiece.

Only Mazda and the cars from Rolls-Royce have engines warranted for 50,000 miles or 3 years. Ever wondered why yours doesn't?

Mazda is so sure of its rotary engine that we guarantee it with a warranty only the cars from Rolls Royce can match.*

Why are we so sure?

To begin with, it's so much simpler than a piston engine. It has fewer moving parts, so there's less to go wrong.

And it's a proven engine. Today, there are over three-quarter of a million rotary-engine Mazdas on the roads of the world.

Why don't other piston-engine cars offer a warranty as long as ours?

*Mazda's non-transferable warranty is free on all new rotary-engine Mazdas sold on or after March 26, 1974. Mazda warrants that the basic engine block and internal parts will be free of defects, with normal use and prescribed maintenance, for 50,000 miles or 3 years, whichever occurs first, or Mazda will fix it free.

No. 1222 Aug. 9, 16, 23, 30, 1974

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Any individual, firm or agency who plans to build or place a structure in, on, under, or over the navigable waters of the United States must first obtain a permit from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. Such Permits are also required for any dredging, filling, or dredge disposal in navigable waters. Regulations governing the administrative procedures on permits for activities in navigable or ocean waters were published in the Federal Register on April 3, 1974 as 33 CFR 209.120.

Navigable waters are any waters which are, have been, or can be used for commercial or navigation purposes. Federal permit authority extends over the entire surface of such a water body. Thus, any work in areas presently or formerly subject to tidal action (below the plane of mean higher high water, including unfilled areas behind dikes) or below the ordinary high water mark of rivers and streams may require a Corps permit.

The Federal Corps of Engineers permit is required in addition to any State or local permits. Private ownership of land under or beside the water has no effect on the requirement. If work is done in navigable waters as described above without a permit from the Corps, civil or criminal actions (including removal) can be instituted pursuant to 33 U. S. Code Secs. 406, 407, and 1319. Any questions regarding permits for work in navigable waters may be directed to the Regulatory Functions Branch, San Francisco District, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, 100 McAllister Street, San Francisco 94102, telephone: (415) 556-5178 or 556-5489.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Any individual, firm or agency who plans to build or place a structure in, on, under, or over the navigable waters of the United States must first obtain a permit from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. Such Permits are also required for any dredging, filling, or dredge disposal in navigable waters. Regulations governing the administrative procedures on permits for activities in navigable or ocean waters were published in the Federal Register on April 3, 1974 as 33 CFR 209.120.

Navigable waters are any waters which are, have been, or can be used for commercial or navigation purposes. Federal permit authority extends over the entire surface of such a water body. Thus, any work in areas presently or formerly subject to tidal action (below the plane of mean higher high water, including unfilled areas behind dikes) or below the ordinary high water mark of rivers and streams may require a Corps permit.

The Federal Corps of Engineers permit is required in addition to any State or local permits. Private ownership of land under or beside the water has no effect on the requirement. If work is done in navigable waters as described above without a permit from the Corps, civil or criminal actions (including removal) can be instituted pursuant to 33 U. S. Code Secs. 406, 407, and 1319. Any questions regarding permits for work in navigable waters may be directed to the Regulatory Functions Branch, San Francisco District, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, 100 McAllister Street, San Francisco 94102, telephone: (415) 556-5178 or 556-5489.

THE ROAD WAS FULL OF TWISTED TRUCK

When a truck about a half-block long overturns on a busy freeway approach, it is bound to attract at least a small crowd of onlookers like the people shown here at this crash scene on the overpass south of San Rafael, between Highway 101 and Highway 17. The California Highway Patrol said the rig, filled with steel scraps went into a skid shortly after 7 p.m., yesterday struck a cement wall and overturned. Truck driver Benito Tanuz, 20, of El Cerrito was not injured in the accident.

Dollar Drops On World Markets

LONDON (UPI) — The dollar declined slightly on world markets today as traders realized profits piled up when the currency rose in anticipation of President Nixon's resignation. The price of gold improved.

It dropped to 2.59 marks in Frankfurt compared with 2.5975 marks last night. It slipped in Zurich to 2.9590 Swiss francs compared with 2.9790 Swiss francs yesterday. It also inched marginally downward in London, Tokyo and Brussels.

Mill Valley Board Asks For Help

The Mill Valley Library Board last night asked the city's art commission to help choose and present art exhibits hung in the library gallery, according to head librarian Thelma Percy.

She said that in the past the library has not screened the artwork hung in the gallery but the board now would like the art commission to help set standards for choosing among pieces of art.

Upgrading Of Amtrak Approved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has approved legislation to upgrade the nation's rail passenger service (Amtrak), including the addition of basic Amtrak service to five states ignored when the system first began operating.

On a voice vote, the Senate yesterday amended the Amtrak legislation to extend passenger service to Boise, Idaho, Sioux Falls, S.D., Manchester, N.H., Portland, Maine, and Des Moines, Iowa.

The amendment's sponsor, Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, estimated it will cost $14.7 million to institute Amtrak service to Boise and $23.2 million to implement the other routes.

Another key amendment to the bill, which is expected to cost at least $265 million, will reduce the cost states must absorb to have additional Amtrak service. The amendment, by Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., will cut from two-thirds to one-third the losses from the line that must be paid by the states.

Included in the legislation, passed 75-13 and sent to a conference committee, are a number of changes to force the Department of Transportation to study better methods of serving all parts of the country, especially rural areas. Sponsors said they hope to integrate other modes of transportation, including bus lines, into the Amtrak system.

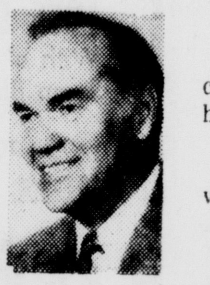
HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

For Most Pleasure Its Best To Plan Retirement Early



Retirement is becoming a way of life for many of the 10 per cent of our population over 65. But the sudden shift in lifestyle will be less traumatic if the retiree knows what to expect and how to get the most out of his last years, which is why it is important to start retirement plans early.

Retirement today means many different things to different people. The pessimist sees it as a termination; the optimist views it as a beginning; harassed executives usually welcome the period as an end to corporate responsibility. For the majority, however, it offers a chance to refine and develop individual interests and talents to find a second occupation or to turn a hobby into a well-paying business.

NONE OF THESE options is possible if the person is in poor health or has a chronic ailment. Unforeseen social, economic and emotional changes are always possibility, as are the same problems a person suffered from during his working life. This should be emphasized because personality problems, feelings of inferiority, mood disorders and other difficulties may ruin an otherwise happy period of life. Depression and boredom should absolutely be avoided. Be reamining active many retirement problems can be solved.

Planning for retirement should begin when the individual is in his early 50s. Many people who have planned ahead often leave their jobs before the mandatory retirement date. In some industries, management sets up counseling classes for these people. Almost everyone has a number of interests, but he or she must be encouraged to pursue them full-time after retirement.

OLDER PEOPLE are more than capable of functioning as important and useful members of society. Perhaps they feel too insecure to actively participate, but when encouraged and given the opportunity to work at their own pace, they usually surprise the younger generation.

SLOW TO WALK

T.E. writes: My first baby walked at 9 months, but the second baby who is now 15 months old has not started. Do you think it is because he has flat feet?

REPLY

Before they start walking, most children appear to have flat feet. But since most youngsters start walking before 15 months, who don't you get first-hand information on your child's physical and mental progress, along with the condition of his feet.

FAD NOTION

I.E. writes: Does white sugar dissolve the vital calcium in the body?

REPLY

No, despite propaganda of food faddists who advocate (and often sell) unrefined foods.

SALT, DIURETICS, EDEMA

J.T.M. writes: Can edema be cured through a low-salt diet?

REPLY

Yes, but it might take three or more months to do the job. Our modern diuretics act within a few days by encouraging the kidneys to eliminate salt from the body. In addition, digitalis may be needed when edema is caused by heart trouble.

MARRIAGE BLOOD TEST

B.L. writes: Is the blood test you have to take before marriage painful?

REPLY

A needle is inserted into a vein in the forearm to obtain a teaspoonful of blood. It stings for a moment, but few people complain.

VEGETABLE WATER

R. writes: I drink the water I cook vegetables in. Can this be harmful in any way?

REPLY

No. This water is loaded with vitamins.

ANTIBIOTIC ALLERGY

V.L. writes: Can a 5-year-old who is allergic to antibiotics and sulfa drugs survive to adulthood? What can we give him if he develops a severe infection?

REPLY

Yes, he certainly can survive. If you are a young mother, I can understand why you asked this question. Millions of persons lived to adulthood before World War II, when these wonder drugs became available. Not everyone died of infections back in those days, although patients who developed pneumonia or meningitis did have a rough time. Drugs to counteract reactions can be given if antibiotics or sulfa drugs are absolutely needed. And there is a good possibility that during his lifetime there will be many new antibiotics and antiseptics on the market that will not produce in him an allergic reaction.

HER ANKLES SWELL

Miss W. writes: I'm heavy, and my ankles swell after being on my feet all day. I sleep with my legs elevated on a cushion. Is this a safe thing to do?

REPLY

Yes, but it will not prevent swelling during the day. This symptom deserves investigation, even though the cause may never be found since many stout people are bothered by it. On the other hand, it may stem from a cardiac, liver or kidney disorder, or from a vein abnormality.

SACCHARIN

REPLY

Any food substance containing as little as one calorie theoretically adds to your weight. And, in this respect, all low-caloric food cannot be considered weight reducers.

DIGITALIS

REPLY

Yes, provided the rapid pulse is caused by a failing heart. Never exercise when the pulse at rest is 120.

Dr. Van Dellen welcomes reader questions. While he cannot reply to them individually, he will answer those of general interest in his column. Write to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

Israeli Warplanes Attack Tent Camp

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Israeli warplanes swept into southern Lebanon today and struck at a tent camp used by Arab guerrillas as a concentration and supply point, the Israeli military command announced.

The air attacks were the second in three days. Israeli planes hit targets in the same area on Wednesday, killing two Lebanese civilians and woundin at least 17 others.

There was no immediate report of casualties in the strike today.

Arab newsmen in the region said today's air attacks concentrated on the hills and farming areas around the villages of Rashaya el-Fukha and Khreibe —the same section which were hit in two separate raids Wednesday.

The military command in Tel Aviv said the Israeli warplanes struck for 15 minutes at the camp and two houses in Rashaya el-Fukha. It said the camp and houses "are known to be a supply and concentration point" for the guerrillas.

The command said all planes returned safely.

The Wednesday raids came less than 24 hours after armed infiltrators from Lebanon kidnaped four Israeli Druze villagers. An armored Israeli patrol crossed into Lebanon in pursuit and returned with six Lebanese captives.

The Israeli command said the Druze had been taken to the two houses hit in the raid today.

Israeli political leaders have become increasingly vocal in warnings to the Arab world that Israel is prepared to meet another Middle East war in the face of continuing weapons buildups, especially by Syria.

"We must prepare (for war) in the face of these threats," Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin said Tuesday.

Belvedere Plans Selection Of New Manager

The City of Belvedere will take applications until Sept. 1 for candidates for city manager and hopes to choose a replacement for William L. Cavalli by Oct. 1, Vice Mayor Thomas S. Price said today.

Price and Councilman Stuart C. Cullen will review resumes to pick finalists who then will be interviewed by the city council after Sept. 1.

Price said he doubted whether those interviews would be held publicly.

Resumes of the top candidates interviewed recently for the city manager posts in San Anselmo and Fairfax also are being reviewed, Price said.

THE ROAD WAS FULL OF TWISTED TRUCK

When a truck about a half-block long overturns on a busy freeway approach, it is bound to attract at least a small crowd of onlookers like the people shown here at this crash scene on the overpass south of San Rafael, between Highway 101 and Highway 17. The California Highway Patrol said the rig, filled with steel scraps went into a skid shortly after 7 p.m., yesterday struck a cement wall and overturned. Truck driver Benito Tanuz, 20, of El Cerrito was not injured in the accident.

Dollar Drops On World Markets

LONDON (UPI) — The dollar declined slightly on world markets today as traders realized profits piled up when the currency rose in anticipation of President Nixon's resignation. The price of gold improved.

It dropped to 2.59 marks in Frankfurt compared with 2.5975 marks last night. It slipped in Zurich to 2.9590 Swiss francs compared with 2.9790 Swiss francs yesterday. It also inched marginally downward in London, Tokyo and Brussels.

Mill Valley Board Asks For Help

The Mill Valley Library Board last night asked the city's art commission to help choose and present art exhibits hung in the library gallery, according to head librarian Thelma Percy.

She said that in the past the library has not screened the artwork hung in the gallery but the board now would like the art commission to help set standards for choosing among pieces of art.

Upgrading Of Amtrak Approved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has approved legislation to upgrade the nation's rail passenger service (Amtrak), including the addition of basic Amtrak service to five states ignored when the system first began operating.

On a voice vote, the Senate yesterday amended the Amtrak legislation to extend passenger service to Boise, Idaho, Sioux Falls, S.D., Manchester, N.H., Portland, Maine, and Des Moines, Iowa.

The amendment's sponsor, Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, estimated it will cost $14.7 million to institute Amtrak service to Boise and $23.2 million to implement the other routes.

Another key amendment to the bill, which is expected to cost at least $265 million, will reduce the cost states must absorb to have additional Amtrak service. The amendment, by Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., will cut from two-thirds to one-third the losses from the line that must be paid by the states.

Included in the legislation, passed 75-13 and sent to a conference committee, are a number of changes to force the Department of Transportation to study better methods of serving all parts of the country, especially rural areas. Sponsors said they hope to integrate other modes of transportation, including bus lines, into the Amtrak system.

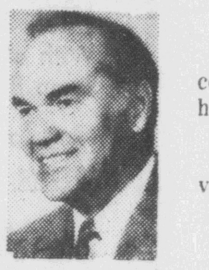
HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

For Most Pleasure Its Best To Plan Retirement Early



Retirement is becoming a way of life for many of the 10 per cent of our population over 65. But the sudden shift in lifestyle will be less traumatic if the retiree knows what to expect and how to get the most out of his last years, which is why it is important to start retirement plans early.

Retirement today means many different things to different people. The pessimist sees it as a termination; the optimist views it as a beginning; harassed executives usually welcome the period as an end to corporate responsibility. For the majority, however, it offers a chance to refine and develop individual interests and talents to find a second occupation or to turn a hobby into a well-paying business.

NONE OF THESE options is possible if the person is in poor health or has a chronic ailment. Unforeseen social, economic and emotional changes are always possibility, as are the same problems a person suffered from during his working life. This should be emphasized because personality problems, feelings of inferiority, mood disorders and other difficulties may ruin an otherwise happy period of life. Depression and boredom should absolutely be avoided. Be reamining active many retirement problems can be solved.

Planning for retirement should begin when the individual is in his early 50s. Many people who have planned ahead often leave their jobs before the mandatory retirement date. In some industries, management sets up counseling classes for these people. Almost everyone has a number of interests, but he or she must be encouraged to pursue them full-time after retirement.

OLDER PEOPLE are more than capable of functioning as important and useful members of society. Perhaps they feel too insecure to actively participate, but when encouraged and given the opportunity to work at their own pace, they usually surprise the younger generation.

SLOW TO WALK

T.E. writes: My first baby walked at 9 months, but the second baby who is now 15 months old has not started. Do you think it is because he has flat feet?

REPLY

Before they start walking, most children appear to have flat feet. But since most youngsters start walking before 15 months, who don't you get first-hand information on your child's physical and mental progress, along with the condition of his feet.

FAD NOTION

I.E. writes: Does white sugar dissolve the vital calcium in the body?

REPLY

No, despite propaganda of food faddists who advocate (and often sell) unrefined foods.

SALT, DIURETICS, EDEMA

J.T.M. writes: Can edema be cured through a low-salt diet?

REPLY

Yes, but it might take three or more months to do the job. Our modern diuretics act within a few days by encouraging the kidneys to eliminate salt from the body. In addition, digitalis may be needed when edema is caused by heart trouble.

MARRIAGE BLOOD TEST

B.L. writes: Is the blood test you have to take before marriage painful?

REPLY

A needle is inserted into a vein in the forearm to obtain a teaspoonful of blood. It stings for a moment, but few people complain.

VEGETABLE WATER

R. writes: I drink the water I cook vegetables in. Can this be harmful in any way?

REPLY

No. This water is loaded with vitamins.

ANTIBIOTIC ALLERGY

V.L. writes: Can a 5-year-old who is allergic to antibiotics and sulfa drugs survive to adulthood? What can we give him if he develops a severe infection?

REPLY

Yes, he certainly can survive. If you are a young mother, I can understand why you asked this question. Millions of persons lived to adulthood before World War II, when these wonder drugs became available. Not everyone died of infections back in those days, although patients who developed pneumonia or meningitis did have a rough time. Drugs to counteract reactions can be given if antibiotics or sulfa drugs are absolutely needed. And there is a good possibility that during his lifetime there will be many new antibiotics and antiseptics on the market that will not produce in him an allergic reaction.

HER ANKLES SWELL

Miss W. writes: I'm heavy, and my ankles swell after being on my feet all day. I sleep with my legs elevated on a cushion. Is this a safe thing to do?

REPLY

Yes, but it will not prevent swelling during the day. This symptom deserves investigation, even though the cause may never be found since many stout people are bothered by it. On the other hand, it may stem from a cardiac, liver or kidney disorder, or from a vein abnormality.

SACCHARIN

REPLY

Any food substance containing as little as one calorie theoretically adds to your weight. And, in this respect, all low-caloric food cannot be considered weight reducers.

DIGITALIS

REPLY

Yes, provided the rapid pulse is caused by a failing heart. Never exercise when the pulse at rest is 120.

Dr. Van Dellen welcomes reader questions. While he cannot reply to them individually, he will answer those of general interest in his column. Write to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

Israeli Warplanes Attack Tent Camp

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Israeli warplanes swept into southern Lebanon today and struck at a tent camp used by Arab guerrillas as a concentration and supply point, the Israeli military command announced.

The air attacks were the second in three days. Israeli planes hit targets in the same area on Wednesday, killing two Lebanese civilians and woundin at least 17 others.

There was no immediate report of casualties in the strike today.

Arab newsmen in the region said today's air attacks concentrated on the hills and farming areas around the villages of Rashaya el-Fukha and Khreibe—the same section which were hit in two separate raids Wednesday.

The military command in Tel Aviv said the Israeli warplanes struck for 15 minutes at the camp and two houses in Rashaya el-Fukha. It said the camp and houses "are known to be a supply and concentration point" for the guerrillas.

The command said all planes returned safely.

The Wednesday raids came less than 24 hours after armed infiltrators from Lebanon kidnaped four Israeli Druze villagers. An armored Israeli patrol crossed into Lebanon in pursuit and returned with six Lebanese captives.

The Israeli command said the Druze had been taken to the two houses hit in the raid today.

Israeli political leaders have become increasingly vocal in warnings to the Arab world that Israel is prepared to meet another Middle East war in the face of continuing weapons buildups, especially by Syria.

"We must prepare (for war) in the face of these threats," Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin said Tuesday.

Belvedere Plans Selection Of New Manager

The City of Belvedere will take applications until Sept. 1 for candidates for city manager and hopes to choose a replacement for William L. Cavalli by Oct. 1, Vice Mayor Thomas S. Price said today.

Price and Councilman Stuart C. Cullen will review resumes to pick finalists who then will be interviewed by the city council after Sept. 1.

Price said he doubted whether those interviews would be held publicly.

Resumes of the top candidates interviewed recently for the city manager posts in San Anselmo and Fairfax also are being reviewed, Price said.

It's Hockey Time In Marin County

It's time for the Marin Amateur Hockey Club to start its operations for the 1974-75 season and it's no simple thing for the parents and other adults involved.

The yearly cost, for instance, is $15,000. The money has to be raised each year, so there's always a fund raiser or two going on to supplement the yearly charge to families with children in the program.

Cost to parents in Little League programs is usually $20 per child. Cost in the ice hockey program is $90.

A MAJOR REASON for the higher expenses in junior hockey programs is the cost for ice time, the money needed to pay an owner of an ice arena to close its doors to the public to allow kids practice time. There is no way ice time can come cheap in California.

From September through February, the teams of the Marin Amateur Hockey Club practice on Saturdays on their home ice at Raydine's Ice Rink in Corte Madera. Their home games are played at Raydine's on Sundays.

"IT'S EXPENSIVE," says club president Richard Popson, of Mill Valley, an advertising executive in San Francisco. "There's the cost of ice time, insurance and use of team equipment."

Among the fund raisers are sales at the Sausalito Flea Market, selling T-shirts and jackets, skate swaps, and collecting proceeds from a performance of the Ross Valley Players.

Despite all the hard work by the officers and parents of the hockey club, Popson feels there is a lack of public awareness that such a program even exists.

There is a reason for this. The average fan can see kids playing baseball on just about any diamond in Marin County on his trip to the super market. The kids are out in the open for all to see. Unless you drive to Raydine's on Saturday or Sunday, there is no hockey to be seen. It's different in cold climate areas where there are kids hockey games on frozen over lakes. Here in California, junior ice hockey will remain a secluded sport.

THERE ARE six teams in the Marin program, ranging from 8-year-old Mites to 14-year-old bantams. In between are 10-year-old squirts and 12-year-old peewees. They compete in the Northern California Junior Hockey Association and play 24-game schedules from mid-September through February, traveling in an area from San Jose to Sacramento.

So far it's a "boys only" program, but that is not to say the girls will remain left out.

"We're in the process of trying to find out how many girls are interested," said Popson, adding that if girls were involved it would be on separate teams since ice hockey is a contact sport.

LITTLE LEAGUE lost its fight to bar girls from competing but hockey and baseball are entirely different sports. The hockey people hope they don't get involved in a similar situation.

"If the situation arose, I don't know how I would handle it. That's one problem we don't have yet," said Popson. And additional problems are something the hockey prez can do without.

Rozelle's Role Is Prolonging Strike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The role of National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle in dealing with player grievances has become a major stumbling block in the negotiations in the 40-day old pro football strike.

As negotiations resumed today, Rozelle's authority and several other "freedom issue" demands by the striking players apparently hold the key to settlement of the prolonged sports deadlock.

The government's chief labor mediator, W.J. Usery Jr., called the NFL players and owners together for a joint session at 10:30 A.M.(EDT) after he conducted an intensive 12 hours of talks yesterday.

"I'm going to make every effort in the hope that an agreement can be consummated today," Usery said before the session.

He said, however, "there still are some serious problems to be solved."

Apparently the major hangup around settling the strike seems to rest more on the owners side than the players, according to some sources. Throughout yesterday, Usery shuttled from the headquarters of the NFL Players Association to the hotel where the owner's Management Council is staying trying to resolve their differences.

"I think progress is being made." Usery told newsmen.

At the conclusion of the long bargaining talks of Wednesday, Usery said he intended to bring both sides back to the bargaining table, but spent most of the day meeting separately with both sides in an informal campaign to achieve a settlement.

A major hitch shaped up over the union's submission of a legal draft of a proposed new player contract agreement that the owners viewed as presenting entirely new demands.

It was learned that the language of the new standard contract would call for a full year's pay to a player who was unable to play because of disability or found his career ended by being cut. Another provision in the contract would specify that if a franchise was moved from one city to another, every member of the club would be free to negotiate a new contract.

There were these other strike developments:

—The Washington Redskins disclosed that 6,152 ticket holders have asked for refunds for their game with Houston Friday night. This was approximately one-third of the 19,600 tickets sold in advance. The opening pre-season game between the Redskins and New England Patriots last Friday drew only 16,403 paying customers—the smallest pro football crowd in the 14-year history of Robert F. Kennedy stadium.

—Veterans continued to drift back to training camps. Foremost among them was quarterback Joe Ferguson of the Buffalo Bills. Others reporting yesterday included defensive lineman Joe Jackson with the New York Jets and running back Reece Morrison with the San Diego Chargers.

—And some veterans drifted out as 13 Cleveland players walked out together and Pete Athas and Rocky Thompson, who joined the New York Giants two days ago, suddenly disappeared yesterday.

Mild Applause Is Mixed With Scattering Of Boos

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

President Nixon's resignation announcement last night was greeted with generally mild applause mixed with a few boos in sports arenas around the country.

Correspondents at five major league baseball games and a World Football League game in Jacksonville, Fla., agreed that the cheers out-numbered the boos. But they agreed the cheers were only a little more or less than had a home run been hit.

The WFL game between the Hawaiians and Jacksonville Sharks was held up about 15 minutes for the president's speech which was broadcast over a loud-speaker atop the scoreboard. The crowd broke into long, sustained applause when Nixon announced his resignation.

In Houston, the crowd attending the Atlanta-Houston baseball game applauded mildly when Nixon made the announcement and there were some boos when the president said Vice President Gerald Ford would be sworn in at noon Friday.

"A baseball game seems insignificant at this time," commented Bob Rowland, a fan at the Atlanta-Houston game. "But my two children would have killed me if I hadn't come."

There was a smattering of applause at the moment of the announcement in Kansas City and Detroit. In Arlington, Tex., and Pittsburgh, reporters said the applause was obvious but not boisterous.

Many fans listened to Nixon's speech on transistor radios while others left their seats to listen to the speech in their cars.

Marinwood Seeks Trip To Series

SANTA ANA — A victory tonight against a team they have already beaten once will send Marinwood-Lucas Valley to Gary, Ind., for the Senior Little League World Series.

Pat Lee, with three wins behind him on the baseball tournament trail, has been named by manager Sesto Lucchi to pitch against Lennox, Los Angeles County, tonight at 7:30. Lennox, which lost to Marinwood Wednesday, 2-1 in extra innings, defeated Portland, Ore., 4-1 last night to stay alive in the double-elimination, western regionals. Portland and Las Vegas have been eliminated.

As the only undefeated team in the tourney, Marinwood has two shots at the title to one for Lennox. Should Marinwood lose tonight, the teams will play a final game tomorrow.

Lee is well-rested. His last appearance was a complete game win over Lincoln Glen of San Jose in the Division II tournament last week at Cupertino.

A's Rudi Dislikes But Accepts Label

Underrated Standout Paces A's Triumph

Rudi puts up with that tag but that doesn't mean he has to like it.

"I get tired of getting ink (newspaper coverage) about the fact that I don't get ink," the Oakland left fielder said last night after he had driven in five runs during the A's 10-2 rout of Texas.

"I hear that everywhere I go. I get kind of sick about it. Nobody ever writes about what I do on the field."

He went 4-for-4, including a double (he leads the American League in doubles with 30) and his 13th home run.

"He is not underrated to the guys who know baseball," Dark said. "I hear that about him a lot, but to the guys who follow the game he is certainly not underrated."

Rudi's home run, a solo shot to left, boosted Oakland's lead to 3-0 in the fourth inning last night, and, with the A's leading 6-2 in the sixth, he produced a bases loaded double that drove in three runs.

The victory gave Oakland a 2-1 series edge over Texas, with the A's two wins being onesided affairs. And the tone of last night's defeat left Ranger manager Billy Martin more than upset.

Texas made only one official error, but the Rangers made several other mental errors including shortstop Toby Harrah's decision to throw to the plate with runners on first and third instead of going for what appeared to be a certain inning ending double play ball.

"It was the worst game we have played since I have been managing this ball club," Martin said. "They made all sorts of mental mistakes. I told the players that after the game. And that's not all I told them."

Floyd, Green Are With Him

ANGUISH — Arnold Palmer watched in anguish as his putt failed to drop on the 18th green yesterday during the first round of the PGA Championship at Clemmons, N.C. Palmer, who finished the round two over par, has never won the PGA.

(UPI Telephoto)

CLEMMONS, N.C. (UPI) — John Schlee, a man who studies the stars for favorable signs, Ray Floyd, another of the tour's expectant fathers, and Hubie Green, a winner of money but not major titles, lead the PGA championship going into today's second round following opening 68s.

But just one stroke back, in a group of six which includes defending champion Jack Nicklaus, is that amazing 62-year-old, Samuel Jackson Snead.

Samuel Jackson revelled in the conditions which were suitable for duck shooting but not championship golf and said, "If I'd putted like this I could have won three or four times pretty easily this year."

Snead went out when Tanglewood's 7,050-yard, par 35-35-- 70, course resembled a quagmire following heavy overnight rain. A light drizzle when the first threesome went out did not help conditions, but when the rain stopped Schlee, Floyd and Green made their challenges.

Joining Snead and Nicklaus at 69 were Tom Watson and Leonard Thompson, who won on tour for the first time earlier this year; South African Open Champion Bobby Cole, and Eddie Pearce, a man still waiting to pick up that big check.

The men were bracketed together at even par 70, including Jim Colbert, playoff winner of the American Golf Classic, and Mexico's Vic Regalado, who broke into the winners' circle last week at the Pleasant Valley Classic.

Schlee found eight traps with his driver, but he stayed out of the rough and came home with nines of 35-33. "I can't honestly say I was pleased with my round and at the way I was hitting the ball."

But Schlee putted well, including a monster 40-footer for a deuce at the par-3 seventh, and made four birdies against two bogeys.

"My signs show that this should be a pretty good week for me," said Schlee, a Gemini who is co-author of a book combining astrology and golf. "But if the signs had been bad, I'd just know I'd have to try harder."

The signs were not in Schlee's

A's Rudi Dislikes But Accepts Label

Underrated Standout Paces A's Triumph

Rudi puts up with that tag but that doesn't mean he has to like it.

"I get tired of getting ink (newspaper coverage) about the fact that I don't get ink," the Oakland left fielder said last night after he had driven in five runs during the A's 10-2 rout of Texas.

"I hear that everywhere I go. I get kind of sick about it. Nobody ever writes about what I do on the field."

He went 4-for-4, including a double (he leads the American League in doubles with 30) and his 13th home run.

"He is not underrated to the guys who know baseball," Dark said. "I hear that about him a lot, but to the guys who follow the game he is certainly not underrated."

Rudi's home run, a solo shot to left, boosted Oakland's lead to 3-0 in the fourth inning last night, and, with the A's leading 6-2 in the sixth, he produced a bases loaded double that drove in three runs.

The victory gave Oakland a 2-1 series edge over Texas, with the A's two wins being onesided affairs. And the tone of last night's defeat left Ranger manager Billy Martin more than upset.

Texas made only one official error, but the Rangers made several other mental errors including shortstop Toby Harrah's decision to throw to the plate with runners on first and third instead of going for what appeared to be a certain inning ending double play ball.

"It was the worst game we have played since I have been managing this ball club," Martin said. "They made all sorts of mental mistakes. I told the players that after the game. And that's not all I told them."

Astrology Follower Schlee Shares Lead

Floyd, Green Are With Him

CLEMMONS, N.C. (UPI) — John Schlee, a man who studies the stars for favorable signs, Ray Floyd, another of the tour's expectant fathers, and Hubie Green, a winner of money but not major titles, lead the PGA championship going into today's second round following opening 68s.

But just one stroke back, in a group of six which includes defending champion Jack Nicklaus, is that amazing 62-year-old, Samuel Jackson Snead.

Samuel Jackson revelled in the conditions which were suitable for duck shooting but not championship golf and said, "If I'd putted like this I could have won three or four times pretty easily this year."

Snead went out when Tanglewood's 7,050-yard, par 35-35-- 70, course resembled a quagmire following heavy overnight rain. A light drizzle when the first threesome went out did not help conditions, but when the rain stopped Schlee, Floyd and Green made their challenges.

Joining Snead and Nicklaus at 69 were Tom Watson and Leonard Thompson, who won on tour for the first time earlier this year; South African Open Champion Bobby Cole, and Eddie Pearce, a man still waiting to pick up that big check.

The men were bracketed together at even par 70, including Jim Colbert, playoff winner of the American Golf Classic, and Mexico's Vic Regalado, who broke into the winners' circle last week at the Pleasant Valley Classic.

Schlee found eight traps with his driver, but he stayed out of the rough and came home with nines of 35-33. "I can't honestly say I was pleased with my round and at the way I was hitting the ball."

But Schlee putted well, including a monster 40-footer for a deuce at the par-3 seventh, and made four birdies against two bogeys.

"My signs show that this should be a pretty good week for me," said Schlee, a Gemini who is co-author of a book combining astrology and golf. "But if the signs had been bad, I'd just know I'd have to try harder."

The signs were not in Schlee's

ANGUISH — Arnold Palmer watched in anguish as his putt failed to drop on the 18th green yesterday during the first round of the PGA Championship at Clemmons, N.C. Palmer, who finished the round two over par, has never won the PGA.

Preservationists Cause Die-Off

With deer season now here, a number of questions keep arising as to the status of the fallow and axis deer now located in the Point Reyes National Seashore.

To give you some background, probably 25-30 years ago Dr. Mailliard Ottinger of Inverness brought a few (17 in number) of these deer to his ranch at Inverness where he released them. Since that time, the population of these exotics has reached the 1,000 mark.

In five years, the Fish and Game Department expects the herds to probably reach a population of 2,000 animals. At present, there is no shooting of these deer except for a sample study of a few specimens for diseases, reproductive rates, stomach samples, growth rate, etc.

WHEN IT COMES to deer and the environment, a little knowledge can be a dangerous thing, and when only a little knowledge is applied to a complex biological problem, disastrous results can be expected even from the most well-meaning groups and individuals.

A case in point is the recent die-off of whitetail deer in the Great Swamp National Wildlife Refuge in Morris County, New Jersey. This 5,000-acre low woodland area was once proposed as the spot for a metropolitan jetport.

The local citizenry rose en masse, and the Great Swamp ended up as a national wildlife refuge, and a good one. It's located almost within sight of New York City, and surrounded by urban development and large estates.

The deer herd has prospered on the refuge, and also on private lands. Through this protection the herd has now grown beyond the ability of the land to support it.

Two winters ago the state and federal biologists suggested a controlled hunt to remove about 150 deer to prevent over-browsing on the refuge, crop and shrubbery damage on the outside, and to reduce the number of deer-car accidents around the refuge.

The logic of taking a percentage of the deer to reduce the herd was biologically sound. However, the preservationists rose to the occasion, and through hysterical appeals to "save the deer" and legal maneuvers, they succeeded in getting a court injunction to prevent the hunt.

THE DEER HERD continued to grow unchecked, and this past fall another professional biologist's suggestion was to remove about 150 of the approximately 600 deer in the national refuge. Again, the anti-hunting group, through legal technicalities, succeeded in blocking the hunt.

The day of atonement arrived recently when the refuge and state personnel found seven deer which died of starvation. Observations on the remainder of the herd showed it in poor condition, and census work immediately began to survey the vast refuge for additional dead deer.

Why had the deer died so late in the winter and into early spring? Over-browse and deterioration of the range were the culprits. By carrying an excessive population of whitetail deer on the Great Swamp National Refuge, the deer required more browse than was available to sustain the herd.

Every red cedar tree on the refuge was bare of leaves to a height of five feet. The wild blueberry and other succulent brush was eaten back to the unpalatable stubble. It was obvious to anyone viewing the area that the deer simply could not find enough to eat.

In situations like this, the weaker and smaller deer are first to die, then the herd starts to deteriorate physically, and finally, if conditions become severe enough, the entire herd can be lost!

The simple truth is that if this herd had been reduced in number, as proposed by the biologists, the deer would not have destroyed the range, and a healthy herd would have existed. Should the deer continue to die in Great Swamp, at the rate they did last week, more deer will be lost to the agony of starvation than would have been taken by hunters.

Amateur Ross Boxer To Cuba

Paul Sherry of Ross, a Golden Gloves winner who finished second in this year's national amateur boxing championships, will represent the United States in his weight class at the World Amateur Boxing Championships beginning Aug. 18 in Havana.

Sherry, a 22-year-old broadcasting major at San Francisco State College, was offered the trip to Cuba when Ray Leonard of Palmer Park, Md., winner of the nationals, hurt his hand sparring. Sherry lost a decision to Leonard in the final bout at Knoxville, Tenn., in June.

Sherry won the San Francisco Golden Gloves tournament in April after reaching the finals in two of the preceding three years. He fights at 139 pounds, the junior-welterweight class.

He leaves Sunday for Miami Beach, where the U.S. team will assemble. On Monday they'll fly to Jamaica for a one-day vacation, and on Tuesday they'll arrive in Havana.

Sherry's family is not accompanying him because "Cuba doesn't let anybody in. You've got to be invited by the government to get in there.

"I have no idea what to expect," the softspoken Sherry said yesterday. "This is my first exposure to international competition; I'm just going to go down and see what happens."

Every major country will be represented in the championships, which will run through Aug. 30.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Zisk Thinking About Home Run

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Richie Zisk was thinking home run last night but Jon Matlack was keeping his thoughts to himself.

Zisk tagged Matlack for a game-winning homer in the last of the ninth inning to give the Pittsburgh Pirates a 4-3 victory over the New York Mets and a sweep of their three-game series.

The sweep kept the Pirates within striking distance in the National League East, moving them to within 3½ games of St. Louis. But the losses were costly to the Mets, who are now 9½ games out.

Matlack showed the strain after the game as he told reporters, "You can ask all the questions you want but you won't get any answers — not one word."

Zisk, naturally, was much more talkative and he said he was thinking homer all the way.

"This was one of the very few times that I've gone to the plate thinking homer," Zisk said.

The Pirates are now 55-57 and they think they're ready to make a move in their bid for their fourth division crown in the last five years.

Manager Danny Murtaugh said, "I said all year that we have to get to .500 before we make a move and it feels real good to be this close. Our starting pitching has been all that we could hope for (Jerry Reuss' six-hitter was the team's 36 complete games) and now we're getting the timely hitting."

In the other games, Atlanta blanked Houston 1-0, Montreal edged St. Louis 3-2 in 13 innings and Philadelphia nipped Chicago 2-1.

Expos 3, Cards 2

Hal Breeden's bases-loaded single in the 13th inning handed Montreal the victory over St. Louis. The Expos tied the game in the ninth inning on a two-out single by Barry Foote. Bob Bailey singled and was sacrificed to second to start the 13th inning rally. Two walks then set the stage for Breeden's hit.

Phils 2, Cubs 1

Dave Cash's seventh inning single lifted Philadelphia over Chicago. Ron Schueler pitched six-hit ball for seven innings and Gene Garber finished up for his first save.

Braves 1, Astros 0

Ron Reed pitched a three-hitter and Marty Perez and Darrell Evans hit back-to-back doubles to lead Atlanta to the victory over Houston.

Angels 6, White Sox 4

Lee Stanton and Doug Howard, inserted as pinch-hitters late in the game, drove in four runs with a pair of singles apiece and Frank Robinson chipped in with a pair of doubles to spark the Angels' victory over the White Sox.

Brewers 5, Red Sox 3

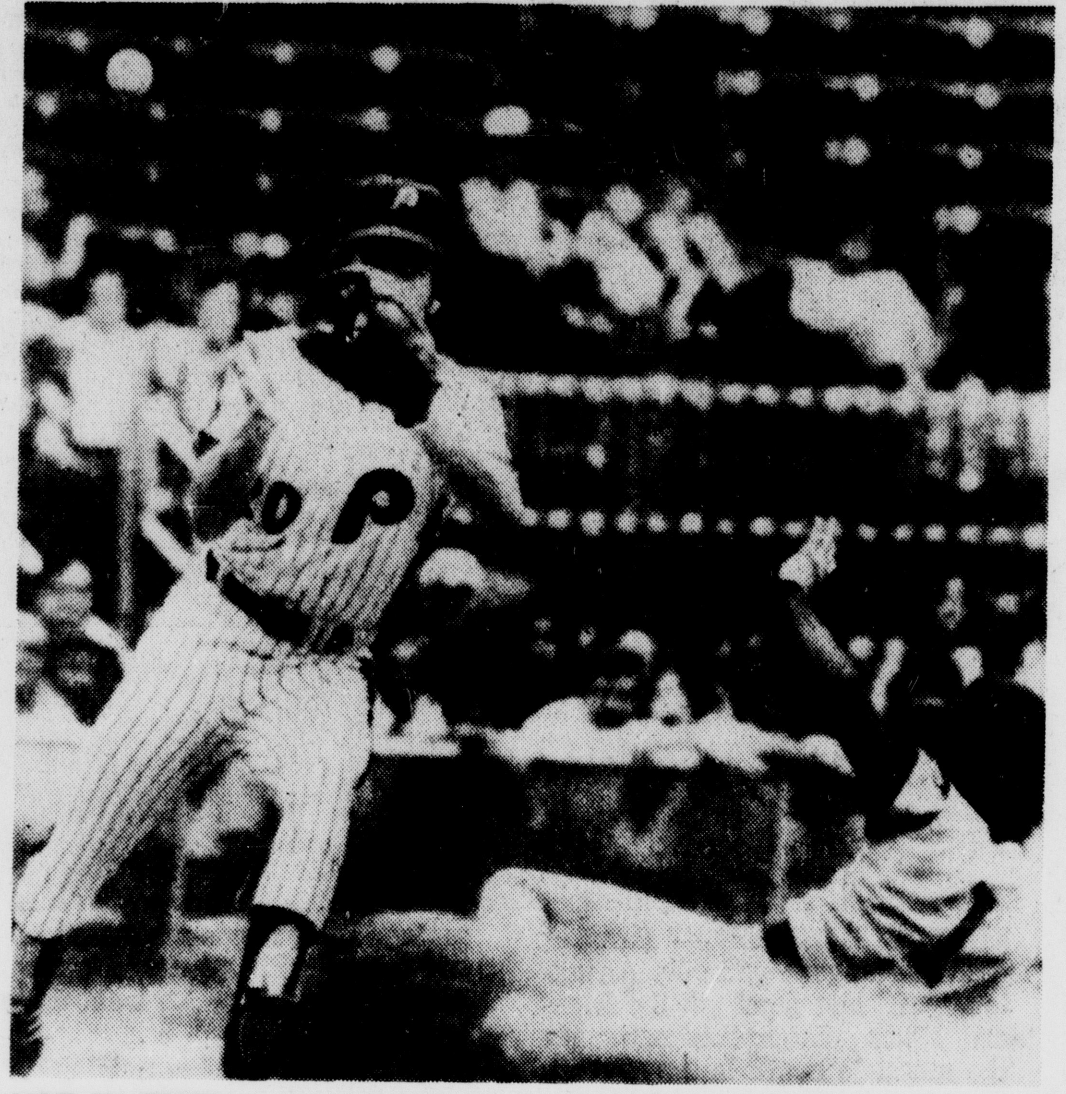
Darrell Porter drove in two runs with a homer and an infield out to pace the Brewers over 17-game winner Luis Tiant and the AL East division-leading Red Sox.

Tigers 4, Indians 3

Errors by pitcher Tom Buskey and first baseman Tom McCraw enabled the Tigers to score three runs with two out in the ninth and defeat the Indians.

Twins 3, Royals 2

Tony Oliva's sacrifice fly scored Rod Carew with none out in the bottom of the 14th and gave the Royals a victory over the Twins.



NOT IN TIME — Jose Cardenal of the Chicago Cubs slid safely into third base ahead of the throw to Phillie third baseman Mike Schmidt in the third inning last night in Philadelphia. Cardenal took the base on a wild pitch by Ron Schueler. (UPI Telephoto)

Golden Gaters To Get Back Star Roy Emerson

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Golden Gaters apparently will have playing coach Roy Emerson back in the lineup should they land in the World Team Tennis playoffs as expected.

Emerson has been gone almost two months from the Gaters since he had made business commitments prior to the founding of the team tennis league. But a spokesman said yesterday it appears the veteran Australian star will be available for playoff action.

The playoffs are scheduled to open in the Oakland arena either Aug. 19 or Aug. 20 against the West Division team with the best record, probably Denver.

Zisk Thinking About Home Run

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Richie Zisk was thinking home run last night but Jon Matlack was keeping his thoughts to himself.

Zisk tagged Matlack for a game-winning homer in the last of the ninth inning to give the Pittsburgh Pirates a 4-3 victory over the New York Mets and a sweep of their three-game series.

The sweep kept the Pirates within striking distance in the National League East, moving them to within 3½ games of St. Louis. But the losses were costly to the Mets, who are now 9½ games out.

Matlack showed the strain after the game as he told reporters, "You can ask all the questions you want but you won't get any answers — not one word."

Zisk, naturally, was much more talkative and he said he was thinking homer all the way.

"This was one of the very few times that I've gone to the plate thinking homer," Zisk said.

The Pirates are now 55-57 and they think they're ready to make a move in their bid for their fourth division crown in the last five years.

Manager Danny Murtaugh said, "I said all year that we have to get to .500 before we make a move and it feels real good to be this close. Our starting pitching has been all that we could hope for (Jerry Reuss' six-hitter was the team's 36 complete games) and now we're getting the timely hitting."

In the other games, Atlanta blanked Houston 1-0, Montreal edged St. Louis 3-2 in 13 innings and Philadelphia nipped Chicago 2-1.

Expos 3, Cards 2

Hal Breeden's bases-loaded single in the 13th inning handed Montreal the victory over St. Louis. The Expos tied the game in the ninth inning on a two-out single by Barry Foote. Bob Bailey singled and was sacrificed to second to start the 13th inning rally. Two walks then set the stage for Breeden's hit.

Phils 2, Cubs 1

Dave Cash's seventh inning single lifted Philadelphia over Chicago. Ron Schueler pitched six-hit ball for seven innings and Gene Garber finished up for his first save.

Braves 1, Astros 0

Ron Reed pitched a three-hitter and Marty Perez and Darrell Evans hit back-to-back doubles to lead Atlanta to the victory over Houston.

Angels 6, White Sox 4

Lee Stanton and Doug Howard, inserted as pinch-hitters late in the game, drove in four runs with a pair of singles apiece and Frank Robinson chipped in with a pair of doubles to spark the Angels' victory over the White Sox.

Brewers 5, Red Sox 3

Darrell Porter drove in two runs with a homer and an infield out to pace the Brewers over 17-game winner Luis Tiant and the AL East division-leading Red Sox.

Tigers 4, Indians 3

Errors by pitcher Tom Buskey and first baseman Tom McCraw enabled the Tigers to score three runs with two out in the ninth and defeat the Indians.

Twins 3, Royals 2

NOT IN TIME — Jose Cardenal of the Chicago Cubs slid safely into third base ahead of the throw to Phillie third baseman Mike Schmidt in the third inning last night in Philadelphia. Cardenal took the base on a wild pitch by Ron Schueler. (UPI Telephoto)

Golden Gaters To Get Back Star Roy Emerson

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Golden Gaters apparently will have playing coach Roy Emerson back in the lineup should they land in the World Team Tennis playoffs as expected.

Emerson has been gone almost two months from the Gaters since he had made business commitments prior to the founding of the team tennis league. But a spokesman said yesterday it appears the veteran Australian star will be available for playoff action.

The playoffs are scheduled to open in the Oakland arena either Aug. 19 or Aug. 20 against the West Division team with the best record, probably Denver.

Major League Expansion Studied

Combined AP & UPI

NEW YORK — Some sample arithmetic, such as one lawsuit plus one irate congressman plus two leagues, adds up to four new major league teams — Seattle, Washington, D.C., New Orleans and Toronto — for the 1976 baseball season.

A lawsuit in Seattle, which wants another franchise by 1976, and Rep. B. F. Sisk (D-Calif.), using the leverage of congressional action in behalf of Washington, D.C., have put the American League in the position of virtually being forced to expand in 1976.

On the last day of the winter meetings here yesterday, the National League took the first step toward joining the AL in a 1976 expansion.

The National League owners unanimously passed the following resolution:

"The National League President (Chub Feeney) has been instructed by the league to appoint a committee to prepare an expansion plan for the league's study to be reported to the league no later than the 1974 winter meetings, with special emphasis on consideration of cities of major league size with stadiums of major league capacity, either now existing, under construction or where commitments for such stadia are available."

In addition to Washington and Seattle, the only two cities currently meeting the resolution's requirements are New Orleans and Toronto.

Floyd, winless since he took the 1969 PGA crown, sacrificed distance for accuracy and 9elected to slide the ball to the right to avoid the rough, a rough77o tough that "no man, even Nicklaus, can get out of it without penalty."

Floyd will become the latest "father" on the tour when his wife presents him with his first born next month, and for this reason he's only played four of the last seven weeks. "But the rest did me good."

He started with a birdie, canning a 12-footer, gave the stroke back at the second but then made two further 20- footers and another from 12-foot during nines of 34-34. A bogey at the 17th cost him the outright lead.

Green, 27, came into the tournament after being "a 100 per cent bum," during a twoweek Florida vacation during which he left his clubs in the locker so he could swim, fish and play tennis.

"I made some putts and I missed some," said the man who already has won three times on the tour this term and over $160,000 to stand second to Miller.

Green birdied two of the last three holes to go with back-to-back birds at the fourth and fifth in nines of 34-34 which included two bogeys. He dropped two 20-footers and two from six-feet.

Major League Expansion Studied

Combined AP & UPI

NEW YORK — Some sample arithmetic, such as one lawsuit plus one irate congressman plus two leagues, adds up to four new major league teams — Seattle, Washington, D.C., New Orleans and Toronto — for the 1976 baseball season.

A lawsuit in Seattle, which wants another franchise by 1976, and Rep. B. F. Sisk (D-Calif.), using the leverage of congressional action in behalf of Washington, D.C., have put the American League in the position of virtually being forced to expand in 1976.

On the last day of the winter meetings here yesterday, the National League took the first step toward joining the AL in a 1976 expansion.

The National League owners unanimously passed the following resolution:

"The National League President (Chub Feeney) has been instructed by the league to appoint a committee to prepare an expansion plan for the league's study to be reported to the league no later than the 1974 winter meetings, with special emphasis on consideration of cities of major league size with stadiums of major league capacity, either now existing, under construction or where commitments for such stadia are available."

In addition to Washington and Seattle, the only two cities currently meeting the resolution's requirements are New Orleans and Toronto.

Golf

SUNNINGDALE, England — Jan Ferraris yesterday fired a one-under-par 71 for the first-round lead in the inaugural European Women's Open Golf.

INDIANAPOLIS — Parisian Gail Chanfreau yesterday defeated fifth-seeded Terry Holladay of La Jolla, Calif. 6-1, 6-2 in the women's third round of the $130,000 U.S. Clay Court Tennis Championships.

BRETTON WOODS, N.H. — Vijay Amritraj, defending champion of the $50,000 New Hampshire International Tennis Tournament, yesterday turned back Patricio Cornejo of Chile 6-3, 6-3.

Hockey

NEW YORK — The New York Rangers of the National Hockey League announced today the appointment of John Halligan as business manager of the team.

Floyd, winless since he took the 1969 PGA crown, sacrificed distance for accuracy and 9elected to slide the ball to the right to avoid the rough, a rough77o tough that "no man, even Nicklaus, can get out of it without penalty."

Floyd will become the latest "father" on the tour when his wife presents him with his first born next month, and for this reason he's only played four of the last seven weeks. "But the rest did me good."

He started with a birdie, canning a 12-footer, gave the stroke back at the second but then made two further 20- footers and another from 12-foot during nines of 34-34. A bogey at the 17th cost him the outright lead.

Green, 27, came into the tournament after being "a 100 per cent bum," during a twoweek Florida vacation during which he left his clubs in the locker so he could swim, fish and play tennis.

"I made some putts and I missed some," said the man who already has won three times on the tour this term and over $160,000 to stand second to Miller.

Green birdied two of the last three holes to go with back-to-back birds at the fourth and fifth in nines of 34-34 which included two bogeys. He dropped two 20-footers and two from six-feet.

SWIM MEET SUNDAY IN MARIN POOL

The Marin Swim League Championships, involving 600 swimmers from all nine teams, will be Sunday in the College of Marin pool.

The youngsters, in age groups from 8 through 17, will be competing for trophies, medals and ribbons.

Marinwood Waterdevils won the regular dual meet season, winning all eight of their dual meets.

Strawberry Scores

The Hall of Famers edged Ancient Mariner, 10-9 in nine innings and the Alto Fire Department beat the Streakers, 11-7 last night in Strawberry Recreation District softball league games.

Triple Play

MacArthur's, with Steve Anderson initiating a triple play, defeated Jack's Untouchables, 12-2, and Independent Electric downed Marin Supply, 21-9 in San Anselmo adult softball league games last night at Memorial Park.

HELEN DOUGLAS
'Anything was justified'

Mrs. Douglas Looked For Senate Trial

FAIRLEE, Vt. (UPI) — Helen Gahagan Douglas, whose political career was cut short by Richard Nixon in 1950, said yesterday she was sorry the impeachment process had not proceeded to its logical conclusion in the U.S. Senate.

Mrs. Douglas, the wife of actor Melvin Douglas lost the 1950 Senate race in California to Nixon who two years later was chosen by Dwight D. Eisenhower as his running mate. The Nixon-Douglas campaign was one of the most bitter in California history, with Nixon tactics allegedly linking Democratic candidate Mrs. Douglas to Communist causes.

Yesterday, she emphasized she was more concerned about the long-range implications of the constitutional crisis.

Mrs. Douglas said an impeachment hearing in the Senate where Nixon would have been found guilty or innocent, "would have educated us as to what a president can do and cannot do; what a congress must do and must not give up . . . if we are to retain our freedom."

She said the continuation of impeachment proceedings would not be to further humiliate Richard Nixon — "that's dumb" — but to help Congress make the necessary corrections to prevent another administration operating above the law "as this administration has."

Mrs. Douglas said the Nixon campaign of 1972 followed the pattern of the California campaign of 1950 as well as Nixon's strategy in that state in a congressional race against Jerry Voorhis and his ill-fated campaign against former Gov. Edmund G. Brown — "anything was justified if it brought success."

Pig Farm Made Into Hog School

FORT WORTH (UPI) — For years A.L. Milner raised hogs on land near downtown Fort Worth despite protests from city officials who said the hog farm was an eyesore that detracted from the city's image.

A jury refused to convict Milner of violating any ordinances and Milner claimed he was a victim of harassment by a motel on a bluff overlooking his hog farm.

Ironically, the city now announced that the U.S. Department of Agriculture will construct a school for swine inspectors on the site of Milner's farm.

Israel Conductor To Head Opera

COLOGNE, Germany (UPI) — Israeli conductor Yuri Ahronovich has become general manager and chief conductor of the Cologne opera.

Before emigrating from the Soviet Union in 1972, Ahronovich directed Radio Moscow's Orchestra. In Israel he headed the Israeli Philharmonic after the late Istvan Kertz.

The moon is between its full stage and last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn. The evening star is Leo.

British author Izaak Walton was born Aug. 9, 1593.

On this day in history:

In 1831, the first train in the United States to be drawn by a steam locomotive made a run between Albany and Schenectady, N.Y.

In 1945, more than half of the Japanese city of Nagaski was destroyed when the United States dropped its second atomic bomb.

In 1970, 54 U.S. citizens were among 99 persons killed when an airliner crashed in Peru.

In 1972, the death toll from Hurricane Agnes was officially set at 118.

A thought for the day: From Izaak Walton's "The Compleat Angler": "I have laid aside business, and gone a-fishing."

Finesse In A Short Suit Should Be Postponed Or Even Forgotten

When your contract seems to depend on a finesse in the trump suit or in the longest side suit, you must usually take the finesse and hope for good luck. But when the finesse is in a short suit you may be able to put it off or even do without it altogether.

South's slam seems to depend on the club finesse. If West opens a club, South must try the finesse at once — going down when the finesse loses. When West makes a more favorable opening lead, South has another chance.

South wins the diamond with the king, draws trumps with the king and queen, and cashes the rest of his high cards in the red suits. The next step is to lead a trump to dummy's ace and return a heart from dummy.

When East follows suit with the jack of hearts, South should discard a club instead of ruffing. This discard cannot cost anything, for South must lose a club trick sooner or later even if the club finesse should win.

What would South do if East held the last heart and could safely lead it? Or what would South do if West had Q-10 of hearts instead of Q-7, so that he could safely overtake the jack of hearts and take East out of the end play?

South would then fall back on the club finesse. He would be no worse off for having tried the end play. The end play is a free ride. If it works, the slam is assured.

HELEN DOUGLAS
'Anything was justified'

Mrs. Douglas Looked For Senate Trial

FAIRLEE, Vt. (UPI) — Helen Gahagan Douglas, whose political career was cut short by Richard Nixon in 1950, said yesterday she was sorry the impeachment process had not proceeded to its logical conclusion in the U.S. Senate.

Mrs. Douglas, the wife of actor Melvin Douglas lost the 1950 Senate race in California to Nixon who two years later was chosen by Dwight D. Eisenhower as his running mate. The Nixon-Douglas campaign was one of the most bitter in California history, with Nixon tactics allegedly linking Democratic candidate Mrs. Douglas to Communist causes.

Yesterday, she emphasized she was more concerned about the long-range implications of the constitutional crisis.

Mrs. Douglas said an impeachment hearing in the Senate where Nixon would have been found guilty or innocent, "would have educated us as to what a president can do and cannot do; what a congress must do and must not give up . . . if we are to retain our freedom."

She said the continuation of impeachment proceedings would not be to further humiliate Richard Nixon — "that's dumb" — but to help Congress make the necessary corrections to prevent another administration operating above the law "as this administration has."

Mrs. Douglas said the Nixon campaign of 1972 followed the pattern of the California campaign of 1950 as well as Nixon's strategy in that state in a congressional race against Jerry Voorhis and his ill-fated campaign against former Gov. Edmund G. Brown — "anything was justified if it brought success."

Pig Farm Made Into Hog School

FORT WORTH (UPI) — For years A.L. Milner raised hogs on land near downtown Fort Worth despite protests from city officials who said the hog farm was an eyesore that detracted from the city's image.

A jury refused to convict Milner of violating any ordinances and Milner claimed he was a victim of harassment by a motel on a bluff overlooking his hog farm.

Ironically, the city now announced that the U.S. Department of Agriculture will construct a school for swine inspectors on the site of Milner's farm.

Israel Conductor To Head Opera

COLOGNE, Germany (UPI) — Israeli conductor Yuri Ahronovich has become general manager and chief conductor of the Cologne opera.

Before emigrating from the Soviet Union in 1972, Ahronovich directed Radio Moscow's Orchestra. In Israel he headed the Israeli Philharmonic after the late Istvan Kertz.

The moon is between its full stage and last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn. The evening star is Leo.

British author Izaak Walton was born Aug. 9, 1593.

On this day in history:

In 1831, the first train in the United States to be drawn by a steam locomotive made a run between Albany and Schenectady, N.Y.

In 1945, more than half of the Japanese city of Nagaski was destroyed when the United States dropped its second atomic bomb.

In 1970, 54 U.S. citizens were among 99 persons killed when an airliner crashed in Peru.

In 1972, the death toll from Hurricane Agnes was officially set at 118.

A thought for the day: From Izaak Walton's "The Compleat Angler": "I have laid aside business, and gone a-fishing."

John Dean Refuses Comment On Nixon

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — John Dean, who played a major role in the downfall of President Nixon, would not comment on Nixon's resignation.

"I don't want to be bothered," Dean told a U.S. marshal at his home in a secluded canyon here, in response to requests from a crowd of newsmen outside.

Two Murdered In East Palo Alto

EAST PALO ALTO (UPI) — Authorities today tried to solve the deaths of an alleged drug dealer and his girl friend who were found shot to death in his home.

The victims were identified as James E. Dixon, 51, and Gwendolyn L. Lockett, 18. San Mateo County sheriff's deputies said Dixon was known as the "drug king of the peninsula."

The bodies were found yesterday after an acquaintance called police when they failed to answer his telephone call.

Calcutta Faces Water Shortage

CALCUTTA (UPI) — Calcutta, a city of more than eight million people, is faced with a drinking water shortage, health officials said yesterday.

An official said Calcutta has "virtually run out of its stock of alum"' needed to purify water drawn from the Hooghly River.

Calcutta's normal consumption of drinking water is estimated at 105 million gallons per day. Municipal authorities cut down the supply last week to 70 million gallons a day because of the shortage of alum.

Wallace Will Not Knock Nixon Now

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Gov. George C. Wallace, who only a week ago described himself as "a victim of Watergate," said last night President Nixon's resignation was a "national trauma that transcends individuals or past political acts."

Wallace, crippled by gunfire while seeking the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination, watched Nixon's televised address in a hospital conference room crowded with reporters and cameramen.

Wallace has been confined at University Hospital since Monday when doctors operated to remove what was described as a minor abscess that stemmed from an undissolved surgical stitch.

Wallace was reminded that the Watergate probe had indicated that $400,000 of the money not spent by Nixon in his 1968 campaign had been sent to Alabama for use against Wallace in his 1970 gubernatorial effort.

"Frankly I would prefer not to talk about that at this time," Wallace said. "I think the trauma the nation is going through tonight (yesterday) transcends any individual or past political actions.

"It is a sad night in American history for any president to resign," Wallace said only seconds after Nixon completed his televised address. The governor was seen wiping his eyes a number of times during the President's speech.

"I had always hoped and prayed that the President would be successful in solving his problems," the governor said, "But I accept his word that his resignation is being done in the national interest.

"With an orderly transition, we will show the world that this nation can transfer power without stress and without disorder," Wallace said.

Even Foes Didn't Gloat As Nixon Said Farewell

NEW YORK (UPI) — Richard Milhous Nixon went before the American public and wrote his political epitaph on the medium he despised and feared during his long political career.

If it had not been for the White House horrors, Mr. Nixon's last televised appearance as 37th President would have taken place in all the pomp and glory of an outgoing statesman.

Mr. Nixon leaves Washington in disgrace, the first man to resign from the presidency in the 198-year history of the republic. His departure by helicopter also would be televised, the coup de grace to his tragic career.

But make no mistake about it. last night's historic 16- minute address —made before one of the largest audiences ever assembled —will be remembered by all who saw it and retold to future generations.

"We are not likely to see this again in our lives," said John Chancellor of NBC, "a president resign from office.

Critics, of course, will cite the indequacies of the speech. Nixon did not admit his guilt or his abuse of presidential power. And he did not discuss his own personal corruption.

But he did stress his search of world peace, which historians may evaluate as his contribution to mankind. And above all, this speech told his fellow Americans and world there can be peaceful change in a country that has been criticized for its violent streak.

As CBS's Dan Rather said, Nixon brought a "a touch of class, a touch of majesty" into living rooms of the world. He did not whimper, he did not cry and he did not attack.

It was certainly a marked contrast from his Checkers speech of 1952 and his bitter vow to the news media after his defeat for the governorship of California: you won't have Dick Nixon to kick around anymore.

Television has to be praised for its role during the final hours before Nixon stepped down. There was no smugness or victory smiles on the armada of newsmen who prepared the nation for the resignation.

Television, which has brought this nation its share of assassinations and funerals, presented a soothing effect. Network anchormen, Walter Cronkite, Eric Sevareid, John Chancellor, Howard K. Smith and Harry Reasoner, did their job in a highly professional way. One only had to look into their eyes and know that all will be well. There will be a United States tomorrow.

But there was a lesson for those who watched:

"The American people," said Chancellor, "are living up to their responsibilities and learning to live with tragedy."

It is worthy to note that Rather of CBS —one of the White House's toughest critics —seemed almost on the verge of tears after the President said he would become Mr. Nixon at noon today. How odd a love-hate relationshiip these two combatants had.

There was one moment of bad taste before the resignation. Someone as a prank drove a moving van across the television screens. But there was little the networks could do to prevent this.

Papers Comment Runs Gamut From Nixon Praise To Criticism

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The country's major newspapers screamed Richard M. Nixon's presidential epitaph today in banner headlines evoking past national tragedies.

Editorially, their comments ran the gamut from praise of Nixon's foreign policy achievements to criticism of his "muted appeal to the American people."

The New York Times, a long-time Nixon critic which abandoned its usually conservative headline style to proclaim "Nixon Resigns" in type as big as that used for President John F. Kennedy's assassination and the first U.S. landing on the moon, criticized the President's resignation speech.

"The events that have been exposed under the generic name of 'Watergate'... represented a profound subversion of American democrtaic institutions ....

"This is really what was going on at the pinnacle of government, in the White House itself; and this, along with all his other violations of the law, is what Richard M. Nixon resolutely refused to acknowledge —or even refer to —in his muted appeal to the American people over the air waves last night," the Times said.

The Washington Post, which won a Pulitzer Prize for its coverage of the Watergate scandal, said in an editorial that it now was up to the new President, Gerald R. Ford, to enforce standards of presidential conduct.

"At no time in the country's history, has the standard of acceptable conduct of the presidency been so clearly defined or so widely subscribed to. This standard will now be Mr. Ford's to uphold and enforce," the Post said.

The Los Angeles Times, a Nixon supporter during both presidential elections, said Nixon failed to understand the problem when he said in his speech that he was leaving office because of a lack of support in Congress.

"His resignation was required not by the loss of support in Congress, as he suggested, but by his admission of impeachable offenses. He clings to the thought that he somehow could have won 'personal vindication,' while only in passing conceding some wrongdoing, apparently unaware of the seriousness of the things he did," the paper said.

The Chicago Tribune, a staunchly Republican paper which supported Nixon's reelection in 1972 but later called for his removal from office, pointed to the tragedy of the resignation.

"Our feelings toward Mr. Nixon must be of sorrow rather than anger, and of mercy rather than vengeance. His weaknesses are more of blind ambition and poor judgment rather than deliberate contempt for the law," the Tribune said.

The Boston Globe, whose front page headline was superimposed over a fainter printing of the opening words of the Preamble to the Constitution, said "ex-President Nixon ... has done the right thing at last."

"Most sincerely and with much appreciation of the travail he has gone through, we now wish him well as he returns to private life," the Globe said.

The Atlanta Constitution said, "Congress and the nation should now consider the options available to them —balancing justice against vindictiveness, for example, and making a serious and sincere attempt to support Gerald Ford as he assumes the burdens of the presidency."

Nixon Wept Just Before TV Address

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — President Nixon "broke down in the White House last night and cried unashamedly" before announcing his resignation, the New Orleans Times-Picayune reported today.

In a dispatch from Washington correspondent Edgar Poe, the Times-Picayune said Nixon gained control of himself just before he walked into the White House Oval Office to make his nationwide television address.

While briefing a group of Congressmen on his decision, Poe said, Nixon "sat in the chair and wept. A group of strong men wept openly with him."

Poe said Nixon told the Congressmen, "This is my last night in the White House. You are my friends. Don't think I let you down."

A Settlement In City Cab Strike

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Mayor Joseph L. Alioto early today announced settlement of the strike by the city's Yellow Cab drivers.

The terms of the pact, hammered out after nine hours of talks, were not announced, pending ratification by the drivers.

Although there was no chance the city's cabs might be on the street until early next week, the drivers agreed to pull pickets out of Oakland, San Jose and Daly City immediately.

Nixon Talk Heard By 130 Million

NEW YORK (UPI) — President Nixon's resignation speech last night probably had the largest television audience in U.S. history, according to the National Broadcasting Co.

The NBC Research Department estimated that 130 million Americans watched some part of the President's 16-minute resignation broadcast on the three commerical networks and on public broadcasting.

According to the last census, there are about 211 million Americans in the United States.

Additional millions watched the speech live in Europe through the facilities of Eurovision, the European multinational television facilities, or by delayed broadcast.

The telecast of the first man setting foot on the moon on July 20, 1969, had been the previously most watched show with an estimated 125 million persons viewing the event in the United States.

Two Murdered In East Palo Alto

EAST PALO ALTO (UPI) — Authorities today tried to solve the deaths of an alleged drug dealer and his girl friend who were found shot to death in his home.

The victims were identified as James E. Dixon, 51, and Gwendolyn L. Lockett, 18. San Mateo County sheriff's deputies said Dixon was known as the "drug king of the peninsula."

The bodies were found yesterday after an acquaintance called police when they failed to answer his telephone call.

Calcutta Faces Water Shortage

CALCUTTA (UPI) — Calcutta, a city of more than eight million people, is faced with a drinking water shortage, health officials said yesterday.

An official said Calcutta has "virtually run out of its stock of alum'" needed to purify water drawn from the Hooghly River.

Calcutta's normal consumption of drinking water is estimated at 105 million gallons per day. Municipal authorities cut down the supply last week to 70 million gallons a day because of the shortage of alum.

Wallace Will Not Knock Nixon Now

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Gov. George C. Wallace, who only a week ago described himself as "a victim of Watergate," said last night President Nixon's resignation was a "national trauma that transcends individuals or past political acts."

Wallace, crippled by gunfire while seeking the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination, watched Nixon's televised address in a hospital conference room crowded with reporters and cameramen.

Wallace has been confined at University Hospital since Monday when doctors operated to remove what was described as a minor abscess that stemmed from an undissolved surgical stitch.

Wallace was reminded that the Watergate probe had indicated that $400,000 of the money not spent by Nixon in his 1968 campaign had been sent to Alabama for use against Wallace in his 1970 gubernatorial effort.

"Frankly I would prefer not to talk about that at this time," Wallace said. "I think the trauma the nation is going through tonight (yesterday) transcends any individual or past political actions.

"It is a sad night in American history for any president to resign," Wallace said only seconds after Nixon completed his televised address. The governor was seen wiping his eyes a number of times during the President's speech.

"I had always hoped and prayed that the President would be successful in solving his problems," the governor said, "But I accept his word that his resignation is being done in the national interest.

"With an orderly transition, we will show the world that this nation can transfer power without stress and without disorder," Wallace said.

RESIGNATION SPEECH

Even Foes Didn't Gloat As Nixon Said Farewell

NEW YORK (UPI) — Richard Milhous Nixon went before the American public and wrote his political epitaph on the medium he despised and feared during his long political career.

If it had not been for the White House horrors, Mr. Nixon's last televised appearance as 37th President would have taken place in all the pomp and glory of an outgoing statesman.

Mr. Nixon leaves Washington in disgrace, the first man to resign from the presidency in the 198-year history of the republic. His departure by helicopter also would be televised, the coup de grace to his tragic career.

But make no mistake about it. last night's historic 16-minute address —made before one of the largest audiences ever assembled —will be remembered by all who saw it and retold to future generations.

"We are not likely to see this again in our lives," said John Chancellor of NBC, "a president resign from office.

Critics, of course, will cite the indequacies of the speech. Nixon did not admit his guilt or his abuse of presidential power. And he did not discuss his own personal corruption.

But he did stress his search of world peace, which historians may evaluate as his contribution to mankind. And above all, this speech told his fellow Americans and world there can be peaceful change in a country that has been criticized for its violent streak.

As CBS's Dan Rather said, Nixon brought a "a touch of class, a touch of majesty" into living rooms of the world. He did not whimper, he did not cry and he did not attack.

It was certainly a marked contrast from his Checkers speech of 1952 and his bitter vow to the news media after his defeat for the governorship of California: you won't have Dick Nixon to kick around anymore.

Television has to be praised for its role during the final hours before Nixon stepped down. There was no smugness or victory smiles on the armada of newsmen who prepared the nation for the resignation.

Television, which has brought this nation its share of assassinations and funerals, presented a soothing effect. Network anchormen, Walter Cronkite, Eric Sevareid, John Chancellor, Howard K. Smith and Harry Reasoner, did their job in a highly professional way. One only had to look into their eyes and know that all will be well. There will be a United States tomorrow.

But there was a lesson for those who watched:

"The American people," said Chancellor, "are living up to their responsibilities and learning to live with tragedy."

It is worthy to note that Rather of CBS —one of the White House's toughest critics —seemed almost on the verge of tears after the President said he would become Mr. Nixon at noon today. How odd a love-hate relationshiip these two combatants had.

There was one moment of bad taste before the resignation. Someone as a prank drove a moving van across the television screens. But there was little the networks could do to prevent this.

Papers Comment Runs Gamut From Nixon Praise To Criticism

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Editorially, their comments ran the gamut from praise of Nixon's foreign policy achievements to criticism of his "muted appeal to the American people."

The New York Times, a longtime Nixon critic which abandoned its usually conservative headline style to proclaim "Nixon Resigns" in type as big as that used for President John F. Kennedy's assassination and the first U.S. landing on the moon, criticized the President's resignation speech.

"The events that have been exposed under the generic name of 'Watergate'... represented a profound subversion of American democrtaic institutions ....

"This is really what was going on at the pinnacle of government, in the White House itself; and this, along with all his other violations of the law, is what Richard M. Nixon resolutely refused to acknowledge —or even refer to —in his muted appeal to the American people over the air waves last night," the Times said.

The Washington Post, which won a Pulitzer Prize for its coverage of the Watergate scandal, said in an editorial that it now was up to the new President, Gerald R. Ford, to enforce standards of presidential conduct.

"At no time in the country's history, has the standard of acceptable conduct of the presidency been so clearly defined or so widely subscribed to. This standard will now be Mr. Ford's to uphold and enforce," the Post said.

The Los Angeles Times, a Nixon supporter during both presidential elections, said Nixon failed to understand the problem when he said in his speech that he was leaving office because of a lack of support in Congress.

"His resignation was required not by the loss of support in Congress, as he suggested, but by his admission of impeachable offenses. He clings to the thought that he somehow could have won 'personal vindication,' while only in passing conceding some wrongdoing, apparently unaware of the seriousness of the things he did," the paper said.

The Chicago Tribune, a staunchly Republican paper which supported Nixon's reelection in 1972 but later called for his removal from office, pointed to the tragedy of the resignation.

"Our feelings toward Mr. Nixon must be of sorrow rather than anger, and of mercy rather than vengeance. His weaknesses are more of blind ambition and poor judgment rather than deliberate contempt for the law," the Tribune said.

The Boston Globe, whose front page headline was superimposed over a fainter printing of the opening words of the Preamble to the Constitution, said "ex-President Nixon ... has done the right thing at last."

"Most sincerely and with much appreciation of the travail he has gone through, we now wish him well as he returns to private life," the Globe said.

The Atlanta Constitution said, "Congress and the nation should now consider the options available to them —balancing justice against vindictiveness, for example, and making a serious and sincere attempt to support Gerald Ford as he assumes the burdens of the presidency."

Nixon Talk Heard By 130 Million

NEW YORK (UPI) — President Nixon's resignation speech last night probably had the largest television audience in U.S. history, according to the National Broadcasting Co.

The NBC Research Department estimated that 130 million Americans watched some part of the President's 16-minute resignation broadcast on the three commerical networks and on public broadcasting.

According to the last census, there are about 211 million Americans in the United States.

Additional millions watched the speech live in Europe through the facilities of Eurovision, the European multinational television facilities, or by delayed broadcast.

The telecast of the first man setting foot on the moon on July 20, 1969, had been the previously most watched show with an estimated 125 million persons viewing the event in the United States.

Nixon Wept Just Before TV Address

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — President Nixon "broke down in the White House last night and cried unashamedly" before announcing his resignation, the New Orleans Times-Picayune reported today.

In a dispatch from Washington correspondent Edgar Poe, the Times-Picayune said Nixon gained control of himself just before he walked into the White House Oval Office to make his nationwide television address.

While briefing a group of Congressmen on his decision, Poe said, Nixon "sat in the chair and wept. A group of strong men wept openly with him."

Poe said Nixon told the Congressmen, "This is my last night in the White House. You are my friends. Don't think I let you down."

A Settlement In City Cab Strike

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Mayor Joseph L. Alioto early today announced settlement of the strike by the city's Yellow Cab drivers.

The terms of the pact, hammered out after nine hours of talks, were not announced, pending ratification by the drivers.

Although there was no chance the city's cabs might be on the street until early next week, the drivers agreed to pull pickets out of Oakland, San Jose and Daly City immediately.

Four A-Rated Bonds That Will Yield 9%

By ROGER E. SPEAR
AND DAVID R. SARGENT

Q. Would you suggest several bonds rated A or better, maturing in 5 years or less, which yield 9 per cent or more? — A.S.

A. Certainly. Here are four A-rated, NYSE-listed issues which meet your criteria: Abex 8¾s of 1977, Appalachian Power 9s of 1975, Avco Financial 8⅞s of 1977, and Southern Natural Gas 9⅛s of 1976. All four issues are selling below par to yield 9.1 per cent to 9.6 per cent currently. Interest and fixed charges are covered adequately, within the perimeters of the various industries. Your yield to maturity or total return per invested dollar will be from 10 per cent up to 13 per cent.

Q. What is your opinion of Citicorp's $5,000, 15-year notes? How safe are they? — J.S.

A. After considerable opposition from the Savings & Loan and Savings Bank industries, these controversial floating rate notes were finally marketed July 24. Citicorp's original $250 million offering was raised to $850 million but later modified to $650 million and made nonrefundable before June 1, 1976, as a concession to an industry plagued by worries of disintermediation. Since disintermediation — the withdrawal of savinos deposits to other forms of investments offering more attractive returns — reduces monies available for mortgages, this is no minor concern to the government. In the meantime, Chase Manhattan has readied a $200 million similar issue and Crocker National is planning to market $75 million in 20-year floating rate notes. Should other banks rush into the market with similar offers, a drain of possibly $4 billion could be imposed on thrift institutions. With mortgage money already tight, this new form of debt offering could diminish the possibility of significant recovery for the housing industry.

As far as the safety of these instruments is concerned, you should bear in mind they are unsecured obligations of the issuing banks and DO NOT carry FDIC or FSLIC insurance. Thus the reputation and standing of the issuing bank is of prime importance in determining the safety of these notes.

Hewlett Named To Board Post

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — William R. Hewlett, president and chief executive officer of Hewlett-Packard Co., has been elected to the board of directors of Utah International Inc., according to chairman E. W. Littlefield.

Co-founder of Hewlett-Packard Co., the Palo Alto-based electronics firm, Hewlett also serves as a director of a number of other companies, including the Chase Manhattan Bank and the Chrysler Corp.

Utah International, with principal offices here, primarily is involved in the development of mineral resources in the western hemisphere and Australia, ocean shipping and land development.

Coal Gasification Contract Awarded

LOS ANGELES (BW) — Fluor Engineers has received a contract from Natural Gas Pipeline Co., Chicago, to serve as engineering contractor for its proposed coal gasification facility to be built in Dunn County, North Dakota.

The coal gasification facility will be designed to produce 250 million cubic feet of synthetic natural gas daily from about 35,000 tons per day of North Dakota lignite.

On Natomas Board

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — Directors of Natomas Co. have elected Dean B. Lewis vice president-legal, general counsel and secretary to the corporation and a member of its board of directors.

Prices Dip On Stock Exchange

Analysts said the market virtually ignored President Nixon's resignation, having reacted to it on the upside during the first three sessions this week amid rumors that his departure was imminent.

Profit taking on the gains earlier this week was evident, as it was during yesterday's sessions when the Dow Jones industrial average slipped 12.67.

Analysts generally agreed that for the near term the market would be influenced more by progress the new administration makes in getting inflation under control.

Most active issue was Marcor Inc., rising ⅛ on volume of more than 112,000 shares.

In the oils, Texaco, Atlantic Richfield and Getty dropped ½ each. Kerr McGee gave up 1 ⅛.

Rails, airlines and aircrafts turned mixed. In the electronics Burroughs, Motorola and Honey- well lost more than a point apiece.

Prices were mixed in dull trading on the American Stock Exchange, with 204 issues higher and 191 lower. Volume totaled 590,000 shares. Syntex was the most active issue, up ¼ to 38¾ on 16,700 shares.

Saving Water

NEW YORK (UPI) — Any U.S. city could reduce water consumption by 35 per cent by switching from a flat rate to metered water rates, Rockwell International says. Rockwell is the nation's largest maker of water meters.

IGNACIO HILLS — New apartment complex of 189 units, plus tennis and other recreation facilities, is celebrating its grand opening for the rest of this month. It is located at Ignacio, across from the Pacheco Plaza Shopping Center. Developer is Duffel Financial and Construction Company of Concord.

Land Developers Borrow Sales Idea From Yachting

NEW YORK (UPI) — Land developers in resort states like Florida and Colorado have borrowed a sales idea from the yachting world.

For several years now, leading yacht brokers have been selling big boats to yachtsmen who have the time to cruise them only four to six weeks a year. The brokers rent the craft to other people much of the rest of the year. Profit on the rentals in divided between the owner and the broker. This enables many a yachtsman to keep a boat much bigger than he could afford otherwise.

The same plan now is being used in resort real estate by such companies as Marriott Corp., Golf Hosts International, Inc., and the operator of the Sea Pines, S.C., resort.

Marriott has obtained permission of the state to sell 200 rooms of the luxury Essex House hotel facing Central Park in New York as resort rental units. The other 579 rooms in Essex House will be maintained for hotel operations. The Sea Pines company is doing much the same thing. Marriott is using a similar plan at its Camelback Inn resort at Tucson, Ariz.

But Harvey Jones's Golf Host International, Inc., started out with this idea. It is developing condominium resort rental projects near Tarpon Springs, Fla., and at Durango, Colo. The one in Florida is called Innisbrook; the one in Colorado, Tamarron. "This is quite a switch from the usual condominium selling method," Jones told United Press International.

"The key to our operation is running a good resort profitably," Jones said, "not just selling off condominium units. We have to stay around and do a good job year after year. If we do our job well, everybody shares in the profits."

Profit in 1973 was $12 million.

Innisbrook is primarily a resort for people who play golf but swimming, fishing and boating are available and tennis will be added. The Colorado project at Durango is oriented to golf and skiing but tennis, horseback riding and trout fishing are available.

The condominium units at Innisbrook sell for $52,000 to $114,000 and those in Colorado from $38,000 to more than $100,000. Mortgages run 25 years. The current interest rate in Colorado is 10 per cent with a one-time three-point bonus and the Florida rate is 9.5 per cent plus two points.

Jones believes this condominium rental unit plan may be the wave of the future in the luxury resort business.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Four A-Rated Bonds That Will Yield 9%

By ROGER E. SPEAR
AND DAVID R. SARGENT

Q. Would you suggest several bonds rated A or better, maturing in 5 years or less, which yield 9 per cent or more? — A.S.

A. Certainly. Here are four A-rated, NYSE-listed issues which meet your criteria: Abex 8¾s of 1977, Appalachian Power 9s of 1975, Avco Financial 8⅞s of 1977, and Southern Natural Gas 9⅛s of 1976. All four issues are selling below par to yield 9.1 per cent to 9.6 per cent currently. Interest and fixed charges are covered adequately, within the perimeters of the various industries. Your yield to maturity or total return per invested dollar will be from 10 per cent up to 13 per cent.

Q. What is your opinion of Citicorp's $5,000, 15-year notes? How safe are they? — J.S.

A. After considerable opposition from the Savings & Loan and Savings Bank industries, these controversial floating rate notes were finally marketed July 24. Citicorp's original $250 million offering was raised to $850 million but later modified to $650 million and made nonrefundable before June 1, 1976, as a concession to an industry plagued by worries of disintermediation. Since disintermediation — the withdrawal of savinos deposits to other forms of investments offering more attractive returns — reduces monies available for mortgages, this is no minor concern to the government. In the meantime, Chase Manhattan has readied a $200 million similar issue and Crocker National is planning to market $75 million in 20-year floating rate notes. Should other banks rush into the market with similar offers, a drain of possibly $4 billion could be imposed on thrift institutions. With mortgage money already tight, this new form of debt offering could diminish the possibility of significant recovery for the housing industry.

As far as the safety of these instruments is concerned, you should bear in mind they are unsecured obligations of the issuing banks and DO NOT carry FDIC or FSLIC insurance. Thus the reputation and standing of the issuing bank is of prime importance in determining the safety of these notes.

Hewlett Named To Board Post

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — William R. Hewlett, president and chief executive officer of Hewlett-Packard Co., has been elected to the board of directors of Utah International Inc., according to chairman E. W. Littlefield.

Co-founder of Hewlett-Packard Co., the Palo Alto-based electronics firm, Hewlett also serves as a director of a number of other companies, including the Chase Manhattan Bank and the Chrysler Corp.

Utah International, with principal offices here, primarily is involved in the development of mineral resources in the western hemisphere and Australia, ocean shipping and land development.

Coal Gasification Contract Awarded

LOS ANGELES (BW) — Fluor Engineers has received a contract from Natural Gas Pipeline Co., Chicago, to serve as engineering contractor for its proposed coal gasification facility to be built in Dunn County, North Dakota.

The coal gasification facility will be designed to produce 250 million cubic feet of synthetic natural gas daily from about 35,000 tons per day of North Dakota lignite.

On Natomas Board

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — Directors of Natomas Co. have elected Dean B. Lewis vice president-legal, general counsel and secretary to the corporation and a member of its board of directors.

Prices Dip On Stock Exchange

Analysts said the market virtually ignored President Nixon's resignation, having reacted to it on the upside during the first three sessions this week amid rumors that his departure was imminent.

Profit taking on the gains earlier this week was evident, as it was during yesterday's sessions when the Dow Jones industrial average slipped 12.67.

Analysts generally agreed that for the near term the market would be influenced more by progress the new administration makes in getting inflation under control.

Most active issue was Marcor Inc., rising ⅛ on volume of more than 112,000 shares.

Rails, airlines and aircrafts turned mixed. In the electronics Burroughs, Motorola and Honey- well lost more than a point apiece.

Prices were mixed in dull trading on the American Stock Exchange, with 204 issues higher and 191 lower. Volume totaled 590,000 shares. Syntex was the most active issue, up ¼ to 38¾ on 16,700 shares.

Saving Water

NEW YORK (UPI) — Any U.S. city could reduce water consumption by 35 per cent by switching from a flat rate to metered water rates, Rockwell International says. Rockwell is the nation's largest maker of water meters.

IGNACIO HILLS — New apartment complex of 189 units, plus tennis and other recreation facilities, is celebrating its grand opening for the rest of this month. It is located at Ignacio, across from the Pacheco Plaza Shopping Center. Developer is Duffel Financial and Construction Company of Concord.

Land Developers Borrow Sales Idea From Yachting

NEW YORK (UPI) — Land developers in resort states like Florida and Colorado have borrowed a sales idea from the yachting world.

For several years now, leading yacht brokers have been selling big boats to yachtsmen who have the time to cruise them only four to six weeks a year. The brokers rent the craft to other people much of the rest of the year. Profit on the rentals in divided between the owner and the broker. This enables many a yachtsman to keep a boat much bigger than he could afford otherwise.

The same plan now is being used in resort real estate by such companies as Marriott Corp., Golf Hosts International, Inc., and the operator of the Sea Pines, S.C., resort.

Marriott has obtained permission of the state to sell 200 rooms of the luxury Essex House hotel facing Central Park in New York as resort rental units. The other 579 rooms in Essex House will be maintained for hotel operations. The Sea Pines company is doing much the same thing. Marriott is using a similar plan at its Camelback Inn resort at Tucson, Ariz.

But Harvey Jones's Golf Host International, Inc., started out with this idea. It is developing condominium resort rental projects near Tarpon Springs, Fla., and at Durango, Colo. The one in Florida is called Innisbrook; the one in Colorado, Tamarron. "This is quite a switch from the usual condominium selling method," Jones told United Press International.

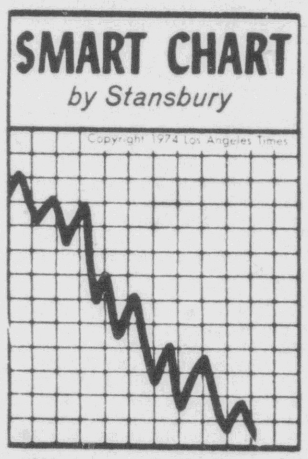
"The key to our operation is running a good resort profitably," Jones said, "not just selling off condominium units. We have to stay around and do a good job year after year. If we do our job well, everybody shares in the profits."

Profit in 1973 was $12 million.

Innisbrook is primarily a resort for people who play golf but swimming, fishing and boating are available and tennis will be added. The Colorado project at Durango is oriented to golf and skiing but tennis, horseback riding and trout fishing are available.

The condominium units at Innisbrook sell for $52,000 to $114,000 and those in Colorado from $38,000 to more than $100,000. Mortgages run 25 years. The current interest rate in Colorado is 10 per cent with a one-time three-point bonus and the Florida rate is 9.5 per cent plus two points.

Jones believes this condominium rental unit plan may be the wave of the future in the luxury resort business.



"We must do better at guessing tops in interest rates and bottoms in markets."

Marin Reaction To Resignation

After more than two years of watching the Watergate drama unfold, most Marin and Southern Sonoma residents seemed relieved by Richard M. Nixon's decision to resign as President.

Thirty-three persons, chosen at random from the phone book and interviewed by telephone by Independent-Journal reports, had varying reactions, mostly anti-Nixon, and ranging from jubilation to sorrow and anger.

Nixon had few supporters among those interviewed but they were still standing firmly behind him, believing he had been only a victim in the Watergate scandals.

"He should have done it sooner," said a Petaluma man in what was a much more typical comment.

Many of the citizens were not convinced that the resignation was enough; they thought Nixon should face prosecution and said the impeachment process should continue, no matter what.

Asked: "What is your reaction to the resignation of the president?" they replied thus:

Neal Aberman, 32, interior decorator, 620 Eucalyptus Way, Tamalpais Valley: "I'm glad he's getting out of office. I would have preferred to see him impeached. He deserves to be prosecuted. But I'm not pleased with the prospect of having Jerry Ford as President."

Mary Donovan, 24, group counselor, 675 Northern Avenue, Tamalpais Valley. "It's about time he did it. It was inevitable."

Lucille Burchfield, over 40, school bus driver and housewife, 5 Mercury Avenue, Tiburon: "I would like to see him impeached anyway and I would also like to see him go to court, the same as Agnew. I don't want my tax money supporting his pension. I work very hard for my money and I don't want it to go towards supporting him in San

Connally Claims Total Innocence

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally Jr. pleaded innocent today to all charges rising out of an allegation he accepted a $10,000 bribe after the controversial 1971 milk price support increase.

"If there is any doubt, I plead not guilty to all counts," Connally said in a firm voice after one of the prosecutors at his arraignment asked whether he had yet entered a plea.

U.S. District Judge George L. Hart Jr. granted a request by Connally's lawyer for 45 days in which to file motions. Hart also agreed not to set a trial date until after the motions are filed.

Asks For A Return Of Brotherly Love

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gerald R. Ford assumed the American presidency today, saying "our long national nightmare" of Watergate is over and asking the nation to "let brotherly love come to our country."

Ford, 61, took the oath of office from Chief Justice Warren E. Burger while Richard M. Nixon —who resigned the presidency when it became apparent he would otherwise be removed through impeachment —flew home to his native west in an Air Force plane.

Ford told the nation in a brief, simple televised address from the East Room of the White House that he was "acutely aware" of his status of the nation's first chief executive never to have been elected on a national ballot.

He pledged that as president he would be what he had always been —a plainspoken politician. He was surrounded by old friends in Congress, where he has often said he had many adversaries but no enemies.

"My fellow Americans," Ford said in reference to the scandal that caused Nixon to become the first president to renounce his office, "our long national nightmare is over. Our Constitution works.

"But there is a Higher Power, by whatever name we honor Him, who ordains not only righteousness but love, not only justice but mercy.

"As we bind up the internal wounds of Watergate, more painful and more poisonous than those of foreign wars, let us restore the Golden Rule to our political process, and let brotherly love purge our hearts of suspicion and hate."

On a steamy Washington day, thousands of tourists stood in silence outside the White House gates while the short ceremony took place within.

Nixon caused his letter of resignation to be delivered to the constitutional officer designated to receive it, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, about 30 minutes before the oath was administered. Nixon's letter said:

"Dear Mr. Secretary:

"I hereby resign the office of President of the United States.

"Sincerely,

"Richard M. Nixon."

Ford said, "In the beginning, I asked you to pray for me. Before closing, I ask again for your prayers —for Richard Nixon and for his family. May our former President who brought peace to millions find it for himself." Ford lauded Nixon's family, "whose love and loyalty will forever be a shining legacy to all who bear the lonely burdens of the White House."

Ford pledged to "do the very best I can for America" and said he would use "all the strength and all the good sense I have gained from life, with all the confidence of my family,

Cotati Council Accepts Members' Resignations

By JEFF GREER

Cotati city councilmen voted 3-to-0 last night to accept the resignation of Mayor Stephen Laughlin and Councilman Annette Lombardi, allegedly caught early Wednesday removing marijuana plants from the Cotati police evidence locker.

Both audience and councilmen at the hour-long, low-key special council meeting said they wished the two officials could remain on the council. But they bowed to Councilman Geoffrey Dunham's report that Laughlin and Miss Lombardi "fell they cannot continue" in office.

The council said it will fill the vacancies by appointment within 30 days as required by state law. Mayor pro tem Harry Fassio said application forms will be available from City Mgr. Robert A. Switzer.

The door was left open, however, to call a special election.

The council agreed to discuss appointment or election as alternatives at its Aug. 20 meeting.

Although called as a closed session, last night's meeting was attended by about 100 persons, mostly younger residents who had supported Miss Lombardi, Laughlin and Dunham in their upset election victory two years ago and defeated a recall attempt last fall.

Fassio agreed to permit audience comment, and the meeting wound up being entirely open except for a seven-minute session during which councilmen discussed but took no action on their problem, choosing instead to do it all publicly.

One audience member, William Paine, a teacher at Sonoma State College, sought at length, but vainly, to get someone on the council to declare officially the reasons Laughlin and Miss Lombardi resigned. He also asked that the two appear at the council meeting, since at that time they still were officially council members.

Nixon's Choked Goodbye

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon choked back tears in an emotional goodby to his staff, and in effect to his country, then left the White House today for the trip back to a life as private citizen in California.

"We leave with high hopes, in good spirit, and with deep humility and with very much gratefulness in our hearts," Nixon said to his staff and Cabinet on national television. "I can only say to each and every one of you, we come from many faiths, we pray perhaps to different gods, but really to the same god in a sense.

"But I want to say to each and every one of you, not only will we always remember you, not only will we always be grateful to you, always you will be in our hearts, and you will be in our prayers.

"Thank you very much."

The emotion-packed goodby ceremony was held in the East Room of the White House — called a "great house" by Nixon. He and his family were greeted with a trumpeted "Hail To The Chief," and five minutes of continuous applause.

The farewell left Nixon close to tears and many of his staff members openly crying.

Nixon and his wife then walked directly to the south lawn and, with his successor Gerald R. Ford bidding them goodbye, went by helicopter to Andrews AFB where they left at 10:17 a.m. EDT in the presidential jet, Spirit of '76, for the flight to San Clemente.

Nixon, who announced last night he was resigning, was accompanied by some of his staff and his daughter and son-in-law, Tricia and Edward Cox. His other daughter and son-in-law, Julie and David Eisenhower, stayed behind, weeping openly as they waved goodbye to the departing helicopter.

In his farewall speech to Cabinet members and White House aides, Nixon acknowledged as he did in his resignation speech that some mistakes were made during his stay in the White House.

"Sure we have done some things wrong in this administration, and the top man always takes the responsibility, and I've never ducked it," Nixon said. "But ... no man and no woman came into this administration and left it with more than he came in. No man or woman ever profited at the public expense or the public till.

"Mistakes, yes, but not for personal gain, ever. You did what you believed in, sometimes right, sometimes wrong."

Nixon tried to make the occasion light at times, once joking about his taxes, and once made a gentle jab at the press. But what came over was deep emotion. Nixon's voice cracked several times and he at points had to choke back tears.

"Greatness comes not when things are always good for us," Nixon said. "But greatness comess when you take some knocks and disappointment.

"Only when you have been in the deepest valley can you know how it is to be on the highest mountain."

"We think that when we lose elections, when we suffer defeat, all is ended, we think 'the light left life forever.'" he said. "Not true, it is only a beginning."

After his final words, Nixon

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Hiss Sees 'New Era Of Justice'

VENCE, France (UPI) — Alger Hiss said today President Nixon's resignation "can be the beginning of a new era of justice" in the United States.

Hiss

Hiss, a former State Department official, was convicted in 1950 for perjury in connection with a celebrated Communist espionage case after repeated accusations from then-Rep. Richard M. Nixon.

"I would hope that this resignation will not diminish our people's search for truth which should continue without interruption," Hiss said in a statement.

"This can be the beginning of a new era of justice in our country which no one would welcome more than I."

Hiss' statement was read to reporters by a woman who said she was a houseguest along with Hiss, an executive of a New York printing firm, in a home on the Riviera. She refused to give her name.

"Mr. Hiss has been ill for two or three days with a bad chest infection so he can talk to no one. He arrived here on vacation the first of August and will be here another week," she said.

She said to her knowledge Hiss did not listen to Nixon's speech, heard here at 2 a.m.

Kleindienst's Plea

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst has asked a federal bar commission to allow him to continue practicing law despite his guilty plea to a charge of incompletely answering questions posted by a Senate confirmation committee..

In related action, the U.S. District Court for Washington disbarred former White House aide John W. Dean III yesterday for his plea to a felony linked to the Watergate cover-up.

Lawyer Herbert J. Miller represented Kleindienst and told the court disciplinary committee the former attorney general was "a man who has adopted a standard of honorable, honest and ethical conduct for himself." He said the crime which Kleindienst admitted as not serious enough to warrant the penalties of disbarment, suspension or censure.

Catholics Protest

BELFAST (UPI) — Thousands of Roman Catholics spilled into the streets of Belfast today in a noisy demonstration demanding an end to the British government policy of jailing suspected extremists without trial.

Police also reported the body of an unidentified man was dumped on a street in the Fort William district of North Belfast early today. Police had no details of the slaying.

The death raised to 1,055 the number of persons killed in Northern Ireland violence between majority Protestants, minority Catholics and security forces in the past five years.

The Roman Catholic protest was on the anniversary of an Aug. 9, 1971, roundup that marked the start of Britain's policy of indefinitely jailing suspected Catholic and Protestant militants.

Vietnam Alert

SAIGON (UPI) — President Nguyen Van Thieu ordered a military alert across South Vietnam today to combat a possible Communist offensive in response to the resignation of President Nixon.

Military sources said Thieu listened to a live broadcast of Nixon's speech and then called a meeting of the South Vietnam National Security Council at his Independence Palace in Saigon.

Government spokesman Nguyen Quoc Cuong told newsmen he expected North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces to launch heavy attacks to test the reaction of Nixon's successor, Vice President Gerald R. Ford.

Henley Sentenced

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Elmer Wayne Henley, 188, sentenced to 594 years in prison for his part in the bizarre Houston sex and torture murder spree, will be eligible for parole in 15 years.

District Court Judge Preston Dial formally sentenced Henley yesterday, exactly one year from the day police began the grim unearthing of 27 bodies of young men found in unmarked Southeast Texas graves.

The jury that convicted Henley on July 15 set the maximum 99 years for each slaying, but Dial said yesterday that the terms should be stacked rather than served concurrently.

Greeks, Turks Sign Cyprus Peace Accord

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

With a smile and a handshake, Greek and Turkish officers signed an agreement for a demarcation line on Cyprus today but their countries ran into a new deadlock on a permanent political settlement for the strategic Mediterranean island.

Representatives from Britain and the United Nations joined in the signing of the agreement on demarcation of Turkish and Greek Cypriot forces on Cyprus. The details were not disclosed.

But at the larger peace talks in Geneva on the future of the island, the deadlock appeared complete.

In Ankara, Turkish Premier Bulent Ecevit said Turkey will refuse to start talking until Greece first accepts the idea of dividing Cyprus into two separate Greek and Turkish Cypriot regions — a demand rejected again publicly by Clerides.

"It is impossible for us to budge from our demand," Ecevit said, adding Turkey would oppose including Clerides and Turkish Cypriot leader Rauf Denktash in the Geneva peace talks as scheduled tomorrow if Greece rejects the plan.

Clerides reiterated his rejection of that when he flew to Geneva to take part in the talks saying:

"Any solution designed to keep the Greek and Turkish communities apart and separate will not serve the cause of peace in Cyprus."

He said the total withdrawal of Turkish forces "is a prerequisite to peace and security" but being a realist he does not expect Turkey to remove all its troops at one time.

There was no reported fighting in the capital of Nicosia, scene of a heavy outburst yesterday on the "green line" dividing Greek and Turkish communities.

Turkish Col. Nezihi Chakar said the demarcation agreement was "a good basis for final security zones". Asked if the it meant an end to the weeklong advance by Turkish troops on the island, he replied:

"Our forces have stopped all forward movement. Any fighting has been behind Turkish lines."

Greek Maj. Evangelos Tsolakis said "every effort" had been made to overcome all problems.

In Nicosia, Cypriot President Glafkos Clerides named a new moderate cabinet yesterday, ousting ministers picked by his predecessor, Nicos Sampson, a guerrilla gunman backing union with Greece.

Turkish and Greek Cypriots swapped fire yesterday morning across the U.N. "green line" dividing Nicosia's two communities, delaying inspections by the negotiators.

Conference delegates said Mavros demanded an immediate cease-fire on the island and threatened to walk out if the fighting keeps on.

Reaction To Resignation

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Gerald R. Ford begins his presidency today with promises of cooperation from his old friends in Congress and other leaders around the nation, while Richard Nixon becomes a private citizen with their regrets and their relief.

America's leaders largely expressed a common theme: Nixon's downfall is a tragedy for him, his family and the country. Now Ford must be given time and support to heal the national wounds.

"My feelings are torn between sadness and faith," said Sen. William Brock, R-Tenn, reflecting the sentiments of many of his countrymen.

The outpouring of support for Ford indicates he will experience at least a brief era of good feeling somewhat like the solidarity of President Johnson with Congress following President Kennedy's assassination.

Leaders of both parties have served with Ford for many years and they expressed the belief that Ford, unlike Nixon, would consult frequently with Congress and would get far better cooperation.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield called Ford "a decent man. He's conservative, but you know where he stands. He'd give consideration to congressional views. He would get exceptional cooperation."

Speaker Carl Albert, who holds the job that Ford once aspired to, noted that President Nixon told him the presidency is a "killer of a job."

"I hope we can make Jerry Ford's job easier for him," Albert said.

"If we unite now behind our new President, giving him our help and our prayers, the republic will emerge from this wrenching experience," said assistant Senate Republican leader Robert P. Griffin.

Both business and labor quickly pledged support.

AFL-CIO President George Meany sent Ford a telegram pledging "all possible support in meeting the grave and serious problems the nation faces," while Charles H. Smith Jr. of Cleveland, chairman of the board of the National Business Federation, pledged "complete cooperation."

While most of the country's leaders looked toward the new Ford administration, their main attention focused on the man who stepped aside to allow him to take the job. Some of the kindest comments came from his deepest political enemies.

"No one draws any particular joy from the sadness of another man," said Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., the man Nixon defeated in the 1972 election.

"I would hope that President Nixon can find some consolation in the successes of his administration that might affect mankind for some time to come," said Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace. "I pray for his peace of mind and that his family might have a long life."

"It was a courageous speech in which he recognized the fact that he had lost credibility with the people. What he has done is in the best interests of the country," said House Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., one of the first congressional leaders to call for Nixon to leave office.

"I am sorry about it both from a personal point of view and what it means to the nation, but it had to come," said Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., one of Nixon's early defenders.

Goldwater met with Nixon Wednesday to tell him his situation in Congress was grim. He said yesterday the "two saddest days of my life have been yesterday and today."

"The President's resignation is clearly in the best interest of the nation," said Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass. "I am sure that Congress and the country will close ranks behind President Ford as America enters a period of nation healing and reconciliation."

Others were not so kind.

Rep. Bella S. Abzug, D-N.Y., an outspoken supporter of impeachment, said constitutional government and the impeachment process had been vindicated by Nixon's resignation.

"The would-be king is gone," she said. "Long live the Presidency."

Rep. Jerome Waldie, D-Calif., a member of the House Judiciary Committee and one of the first to file an impeachment resolution against Nixon, said "I don't like it. I would much prefer him to stay in office and let the machinery continue. He has covered up the cover-up. He has denied us the details."

Rep. Robert McClory of Illinois, second-ranking GOP member of the Judiciary Committee, said, "I am very grateful for that decision. I think the people now will stop and reflect on his great accomplishment as President and he will have a great deal of opportunity to reestablish his stature as world leader."

Other reactions:

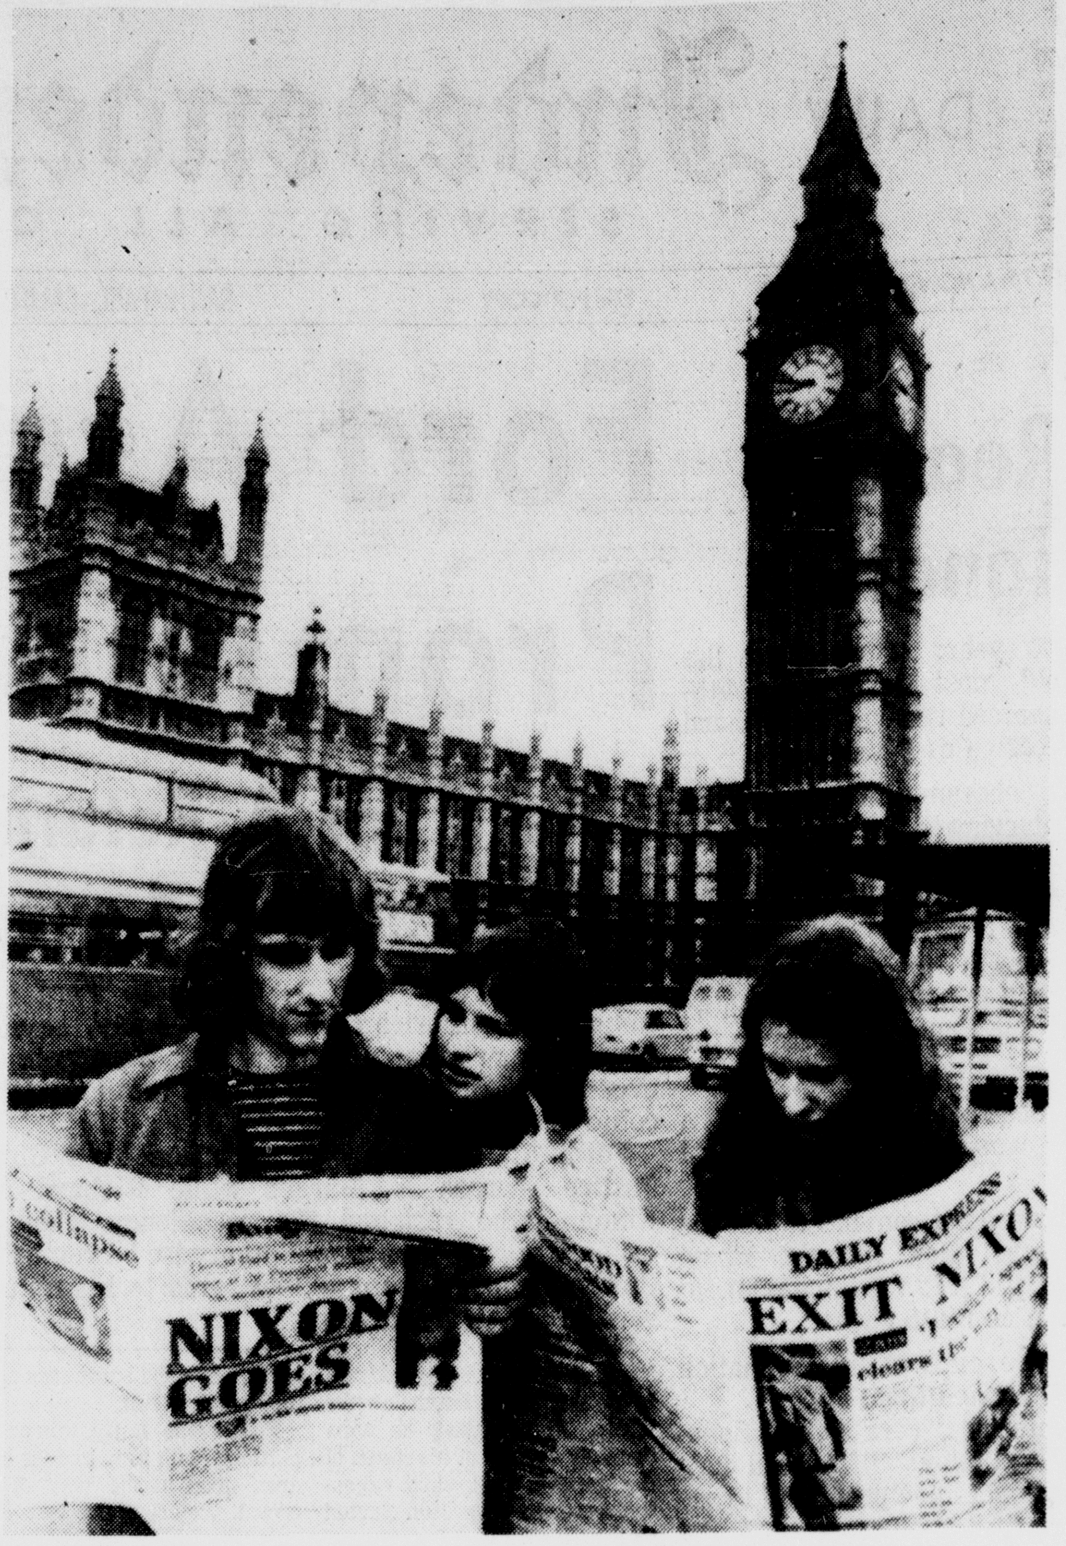
California Gov. Ronald Reagan —"It is a personal tragedy for Richard Nixon, who despite these events and his recent revelation, gave so much of himself to his country over the years and who accomplished so much, especially in the area of foreign affairs."

Coretta King, widow of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. —"I feel his resignation is appropriate.... There could be no other result if America was determined to retain its Constitution. It is sad to reflect on the fact that Mr. Nixon leaves office with little sympathy from the black community."

Gov. Malcolm Wilson of New York — "This is a tragic episode in the nation's history, but our country will survive and be stronger for its resolution.... Hopefully history will be charitable in remembering President Nixon's accomplishments rather than his frailties."

New Jersey Gov. Brendan T. Byrne — "The new President must be willing to take extraordinary measures to help this nation overcome the agony of living with a corrupt national adminstration. The selection of a member of the opposing political party to become vice president would be such a measure."

San Francisco Mayor Joseph
San Francisco Mayor Joseph N. Alioto — The Nixon administration was "strangled in its own tangled web."



HEADLINES OVERSEAS — Tourists study newspapers with headlines on the resignation of President Nixon before London's House Of Parliament.

Ford Becomes Top Pipe Smoker

BURLINGAME (UPI) — — Women will find a special attraction to Vice President Gerald Ford because he is a pipe smoker, according to an educational psychologist.

Dr. Eleanor Criswell recently conducted a study on the social image of pipe smoking.

"Pipe smokers are viewed by women as special men, sexy and superior in every way," Dr. Criswell said, adding Ford was now America's No. 1 pipe smoker.

Wild Scene Outside The White House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — About 20 minutes before President ixon's final speech a tall blonde woman in a red dress pulled back the curtain of a second-floor window and gazed across the White House lawn.

There, beyond the wrought iron bar fence, stood some 2,000 persons, gathered to personally witness the last chapter in the political career of Richard M. Nixon.

The curtain shut off the view, but not the noise that erupted minutes later when the President announced he was resigning.

"Jail to the Chief. Jail to the Chief," chanted dozens of bystanders. They swarmed through traffic on Pennsylvania Avenue and climbed halfway up the fence.

Signs such as "Executive Deleted" and "Two Years Too Late" blossomed over the heads of the crowd.

Police finally detoured traffic and turned over three blocks to the demonstrators. There were a handful of arrests for disorderly conduct.

It was a chaotic climax to a historic day.

The crowd was also a far cry from the quiet, reflective crowd that kept the vigil outside the White House earlier.

Even Nixon foes in the hours before the speech seemed drawn to the executive mansion out of a sense of history rather than vindictiveness.

"There's no reason to put the man on a cross," said Tom Ashby, 27, who drove from Arkansas with his wife and a friend to witness the drama.

Bob Haas, a veteran antiwar marcher, said, "It seems appropriate to be here now because this is what we were working for."

The big floodlights on the White House were turned off at about midnight in an apparent effort to get the crowd to go home.

Police moved in and cleared the White House side of Pennsylvania Avenue, but the crowd drifted back across the street to Lafayette Park and continued their celebrating.

Presidency Passes To Gerald R. Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The American presidency changed hands today to shed itself of scandal. Richard Nixon resigned to avoid removal from office and Gerald R. Ford, an unsullied and plainspoken Midwesterner assumed power he never sought.

Nothing like this has ever happened before. It amounts to a constitutional coup. It happened suddenly — within five working days after Nixon admitted intimate and early involvement in the Watergate scandal. It came after his last hope of avoiding impeachment and removal from office by Congress had collapsed.

It brought a sense of relief to the people and to Congress and a national feeling of good will toward the President-designate.

Nixon, reelected two years ago carrying 49 states, became the first president to resign. Ford became the 38th president, but the first to assume that office without running on a national ballot.

Like millions of his countrymen, Ford sat in his living room last night and watched Nixon on television somberly announce that he would give up the struggle to retain office.

Then Ford went outside and pledged in his customary simple words that he would try to achieve "what's best for America and the world."

He said Nixon's speech was "one of the very saddest moments that I've ever witnessed."

Hundreds stood outside the black iron fence around the White House while Nixon spoke for 17 minutes, delivering the 38th televised address to the nation of his five year and seven month presidency.

Nixon, tense, somber, a half-smile crossing his face only once, acknowledged his dilemma. His confession Monday had robbed him of his political power and public trust. Still, it was hard to resign.

"I have never been a quitter," he said.

"To leave office before my term is completed is abhorrent to every instinct in my body.

"But as President I must put the interest of America first."

By resigning, he retained the right to collect a $62,500 a year pension and the emoluments of office — free office space, secretarial help, Secret Service protection, the franking privilege and the like.

Nixon's critics had hoped he would spell out his Watergate role in full detail during his speech. He did not. He barely mentioned Watergate.

Ford, as President, will have to face the problem of deciding whether to make certain that Nixon is not prosecuted. After Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski earlier this year had convinced a grand jury that an incumbent president could not be indicted, the jury named Nixon as unindicted co-conspirator.

Nixon's downfall was brought about when he confessed Monday that there had been "omissions" in all his prior Watergate denials. Under compulsion from an 8-0 Supreme Court ruling, he made public three transcripts that showed that six days after the Watergate break-in he issued orders designed to have the CIA obstruct the FBI's investigation.

Nixon's announcement came exactly six years to the day that he stood triumphant before a cheering Republican National Convention in Miami Beach in 1968 and promised "a new day for America." In that acceptance speech, he had said, "America's in trouble today not because her people have failed but because her leaders have failed."

He won election that fall against Hubert H. Humphrey, then vice president, an old political antagonist.

FORD

my friends, and my dedicated staff ... with the good will of countless Americans I have encountered ...

"God helping me, I will not let you down."

Nixon, in a 17-minute speech from a clean desk in the Oval Office —his 37th speech from the White House of his presidency of five years and seven months — said last night he was resigning because he had lost public trust and the confidence of Congress.

He said he had made his share of mistakes as President, but he made only a bare reference to the scandal which forced him to resign rather than go through with an impeachment by the House and a trial by the Senate which politicians closest to him said inevitably would end with his conviction by a two-thirds majority and removal from office in disgrace.

"I am acutely aware that you have not elected me as your President by your ballots," he told Americans. "So I ask you to confirm me as your President with your prayers...

"If you have not chosen me by secret ballot, neither have I gained office by secret promises.

"I have not campaigned either for the presidency or the vice presidency. I have not subscribed to any partisan platform. I am indebted to no man and only to one woman — my dear wife, Betty —as I begin the most difficult job in the world."

About an hour after the oath-taking, Ford made an impromptu appearance in the White House press center and told reporters he would conduct an "open and candid" administration with "trust, rapport and friendship" with the press.

Ford told reporters "I do look forward to getting to know you again" and said he did not ask for any special favors in press coverage. He added a "thank you for the kindnesses of the past."

Ford served as vice president eight months, the first person to be named by the President and confirmed by both houses of Congress under the provisions of the never previously used 25th Amendment to the Constitution.

A congressman for a quarter of a century, his highest political ambition had been to lead the Republican party as speaker of the House —an institution he loved.

There he won a reputation as a master of compromise, accommodation and accord. He was admired for his honesty and his openness. His voting record was one of the most conservative of Republican leaders, reflecting the basic philosophy of his Grand Rapids, Mich. constituency.

Ford spoke in a strong, clear voice until toward the end when it quavered, reflecting the emotions of the moment.

Ford became the fourth man to assume the presidency in 11 years.

COTATI

torney for Laughlin and Miss Lombardi had advised them against making any public statements since they face prosecution on a misdemeanor charge of attempting to destroy evidence.

The investigation of the complicated marijuana scandal still is going on, Dunham stressed.

"There should be some kind of discussion about how the community feels about them," Paine urged. "Sometimes people make mistakes both ways."

"The matter is not one for a plebiscite. . . the resignation is moot. Even if the council doesn't accept, my friends feel they cannot serve any longer," Dunham said. "I'm forced to defend the resignations — and they're two of the best friends I have."

Dunham called the situation a nightmare for everyone who knows them.

Resident Andrew Harris urged the council to agree to "a cooling off period." He cited the resignation of President Nixon a few minutes earlier and argued, "This is a crucial time — almost hysterical."

City Atty. Jay Cantor and audience members discussed whether the council legally could go into closed session under the Brown Act, with Cantor holding that that language permitting closed meetings on dismissals and appointments probably also extends to resignations.

However, after only seven minutes, the council returned and threshed out its next steps publicly.

Asst. Dist. Attorney John Gallagher reported there were no new developments today nor charges filed in the marijuana case that tottered city government.

Laughlin, Miss Lombardi and a companion, Vicki Flaherty, all 27, were caught at Cotati City Hall by police who discovered that plants were missing from the evidence locker in a basement.

The three reportedly told officers they had planned "a lark" to raid the locker and replant the marijuana in city gardens.

The marijuana was seized by police Tuesday in a raid on a home occupied by Planning Commissioner Eve Kitchen and five other persons. Miss Kitchen subsequently also resigned but there was no mention of her at last night's council meeting.

A few staffers, including Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, will be going along. Chief of Staff Alexander M. Haig will stay to help the transition of government. The Coxes will accompany the President but the Eisenhowers will stay in their Washington apartment this weekend.

Nixon told a nationwide TV audience last night that his family "unanimously" urged him to keep fighting to stay in office through impeachment and a Senate trial. Aides said Mrs. Nixon and his daughters tried to talk hnim out of resigning.

When he made his irrevocable decision, apparently Tuesday or Wednesday evening, Julie who had been the President's most ardent defender sobbed in his comforting arms.

But between the tears yesterday Nixon women began packing.

Marinites React To Nixon's Resignation

Clemente. I want him to go before a judge and be disbarred."

Florence E. Burnett, 81, retired California State Automobile Association employee, 24 Parkwood Avenue, Mill Valley: "I'm for Mr. Nixon. I don't believe in that kind of stuff. They're not giving him enough of a chance. There's many a man that's been ruined by someone starting a rumor that wasn't true."

Michael Paganini, 20, variously employed, 11 Harbor View Court, San Rafael — "He should have stayed in office. I think the whole thing has been going on for 200 years. Like the milk payoff and all that has been going on for a long time."

Carol Vencins, 32, actress, Inverness — I think if criminal charges are not brought the country's still going to be in trouble. He's going to be setting a precedent if he gets immunity . . . then how could anyone else respect the law? It's a sweet victory in a way that he's getting his comeuppance after 27 years. He stands on his record, which is exactly what we see today."

Karl E. Lindstrom, 13, student, 85 Mount Tiburon, Tiburon — "It's kind of a bummer he's resigning. There's no one who can really take over. And as long as one's been kicked out, they're just going to try to bother the next president and then the next and the next. He's done some things wrong but almost everybody else has, too."

Barbara Bennett, 34, commercial photography assistant, 403 West Cotati Avenue, Cotati — "I'm glad he resigned but I think he's saving face rather than face impeachment. He should be prosecuted because of all the others who've gone down the tubes."

Ray Brown, 34, funeral director, 601 Kentucky Street, Petaluma — "I'm glad he did and he should have done it sooner."

Eileen Giem, 31, city office worker, Cotati City Hall — "It's the only thing he could do — or else get hung."

Tim Chandler Green, 24, clerk, 1832 Fifth Avenue, San Rafael — "I had hoped to see him go through the impeachment process but to be rid of him is fine. It's ironic that the law and order man is going down because he broke the law. What goes around, comes around."

William D. Suval, 25, student, 111 Willow Avenue, Fairfax — "I think they should have impeached him and convicted him. I don't think that by resigning he should have amnesty from further criminal action like civil suits."

Lou Ganapoler, 55, manager of Trident restaurant, 762 Del Ganado, Terra Linda — "It's about time you said 'goodnight,' Dick. I feel it's the best thing he could be doing."

Bob Smith, 40, barber, 185 Marinwood Avenue, Marinwood — "It's sad to see someone go but I can't say I'm sad to see him gone."

Dave Marelli, 21, shoe repairman, 1318 Fourth Street, San Rafael — "I'm happy he resigned rather than be impeached. I think that was good for the country and I think Ford will do a better job than Nixon did."

Bessie McGee, 77, widow, 5 Golden Hinde Boulevard, San Rafael — "I don't like to say too much because I'm a Democrat but it was not unexpected. I knew it would happen because he got in too deep."

Richard Upton, 19, musician, 191 San Carlos Avenue, Sausalito: "I definitely want him out. I don't think his resignation should change any strictness in his punishment. I think he has copped out again."

Jan Poland, 33, legal secretary, Gate 6 Road, Sausalito: "I don't want him in there, one way or another. This may be the most graceful way for him to exit."

Elizabeth Okamura, 40, Ocean Parkway, Bolinas: "I'm amazed he hung on this long. To hang on this long he must have had delusions of grandeur. It's high time. It's past time if we are to believe he is a sane human being, which I am not sure he is."

Helga Epstein, 48, homemaker, 118 Convent Court, San Rafael — "Mr. Nixon's personal motives are not important. We the people have been in a state of shock, betrayed by the man who holds the highest office in our land — and at the same time clinging to faith that our form of democracy can and does work. I think the dignity of the proceedings of the House Judiciary Committee showed us that — and we need time to respond to this tragedy. Then we can begin to deal with the leadership crisis in our country."

Jane Rundell, 44, yacht broker, 157 Caribe Isle, Novato — "There has been much conjecture. He's painted himself into a corner. I expected it right along. I wondered when the pressure would get to him. If I had done all those things I feel I shouldn't be President."

Elaine Rosenblatt, 36, massage and body movement teacher, 27 Graceland Drive, San Rafael — "It's a good idea. Any human being should go through the least amount of pain they can. What he's done, he's done. Resigning is better for him."

Scott Hamilton, 22, university student, 14 Corte Las Sombras, Greenbrae — "It's unfortunate but necessary. He has obstructed justice and admitted it. We should not have a dishonest man as President. Nobody will disagree that his foreign policy has been distinguished, to a degree."

George P. Rideout, 31, San Rafael high school teacher, 109 Bolinas Avenue, Ross — "I'm delighted the whole thing is finally over. I would like to see the course of impeachment carried all the way. I think it is constitutionally the proper way to do things so the nation would have a better understanding of what has been going on. The truth should come out."

Anne Charles, 33, housewife and mother of four, 33 Terrace Avenue, Kentfield — "I think it's sad, but I feel a lot of positive things will come out of it. I'm pleased with the decisive nature of it."

John F. Barrows, 43, county administrator, 265 Crescent Road, San Anselmo — "It's 15 months overdue. Given the revelations of wrongdoing and malfeasance in office, it should have occurred 15 months ago."

Evelyn Conroy, 37, housewife, 18 Lower Drive, Mill Valley — "I think he did the right thing by resigning since he no longer had the backing of the nation. Gerald Ford will do a very good job. I'm sorry to see any man in those circumstances. I feel for the individual, but I'm not sorry to see him leave."

Eleanor M. Decker, 37, housewife, 32 Lincoln Avenue, Mill Valley — "I wish that he hadn't resigned so that the impeachment proceedings could continue. I believe he would have been impeached. But either way, he's no longer the President, which delights me."

Frank V. Keehn, 43, bartender, 81 Woodland Avenue, San Rafael — "I'm very disappointed. I think he was a very capable President and it was totally uncalled for to make a big issue out of it (Watergate). A man that has been in the Congress and Senate and vice president and President is certainly more than qualified to represent our country."

Barbara J. Parks, 43, secretary, 314 Mountain View Avenue, San Rafael — "I'm relieved. I think it's about time we got back to taking care of ourselves, our problems and stabilizing our economy. He duped the public and we're all getting a little bit tired of that. But I have no hatred against him."

Clifford S. Lund, 52, insurance broker, 550 Heather Way, San Rafael — "I suppose I'm as sick about it as most people. I just think it's a very sad thing that we have come to that position in this country. I think it's the only thing he can do because of all the odds against him. It's not a question of his guilt or innocence but it's impossible for him to have a fair trial since the pre-trial impeachment publicity has violated all his civil rights."

Clifford F. Elder, 71, retired, 103 Buena Vista Avenue, Corte Madera — "I felt he should resign. He overrode his authority. I also feel that he should be tried for his criminal actions."

Freeway Detours Set In Petaluma

Petaluma area motorists using Highway 101 at the Washington Street overcrossing will face changes in traffic patterns several times in the next three weeks, state transportation department officials warned today.

Crews began removing portions of the old overcrossing yesterday, shunting all traffic into lanes on only one side of the freeway. Traffic flow is expected to be normal during the weekend, but crews will be detouring traffic from 9 a.m. on weekdays.

Rabbit Saved But Truck Tips

FAIRFIELD (UPI) — Diana Haley, 25, driver of a fuel tank-truck, told California Highway Patrol officers she swerved to avoid hitting a rabbit running across Highway 37 early today.

The tank truck went out of control, rolled off the road and split open, spilling about 25,000 gallons of fuel.

Mrs. Haley was hospitalized.

Brown Asks Labor To Support Ford

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Edmund G. Brown Jr., Democratic candidate for governor, today urged organized labor to "unite solidly behind" President Ford.

"We must not let the crimes of Watergate detract from the support we must now give to President Ford," Brown said in remarks prepared for a talk to the San Francisco Labor Council.

LEANING LANDMARK ABOUT GONE

Marin County's version of the Leaning Tower of Pisa, the old grinding mill at Hutchinson's Quarry near Greenbrae, is almost no more, as a view from the rear of the decaying structure shows. Not used for two years, the 50-year-old mill, which early assumed rippling lines on sinking fill, is due to be finally demolished within a week. Termed a hazard by Larkspur officials, the structure never made it as an historic monument but long provided a diversion for highway travelers. The property is to be developed by a Peninsula firm for commercial and residential use.

Finch Thinks Resignation Helps Remove 'Cloud'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Robert H. Finch, long-time confidant of President Nixon and former White House counselor, said last night the President's resignation would help Republican candidates remove "the suffocating cloud of Watergate."

Finch, who earlier in the year decided against running for governor of California because he believed he would be hounded by Watergate questions although he was never implicated in Watergate, watched Nixon's speech resignation on television at his San Marino home.

"I was moved," said the former California lieutenant governor. "Nixon rose to the occasion. He set the stage for Jerry Ford."

Asked in a telephone interview whether he believed the President's decision to leave office would aid California GOP candidates, Finch replied he thought it would be "very helpful in terms of removing the suffocating cloud of Watergate. People will now focus attention on these state races."

Finch resigned as lieutenant governor in 1969 to join the first Nixon administration as secretary of Health, Education and Welfare. He later moved to the White House as a presidential counselor.

Ford Names His Press Secretary

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Jerry TerHorse, Washington bureau chief of the Detroit News, will be Gerald R. Ford's White House press secretary.

TerHorst, who has known Ford for 25 years, succeeds Ronald L. Ziegler. Like Ford, terHorst is from Grand Rapids,, Mich., and he covered Ford's first campaign for the House of Representatives in 1947.

TerHorst, 52, has been Washington correspondent for the Detroit News since 1957 and chief of its Washington bureau since 1961. He has covered every presidential trip abroad and numerous domestic trips since 1960.

A Marine officer in World War II and during Korea, terHorst is a graduate of the University of Michigan in American history and political science.

He began his newspaper career in 1946 with the Grand Rapids Herald and the Grand Rapids Press. He is a co-author of a book, "the President's Trip to China," and also wrote for the North American Newspaper Alliance.

He and his wife and four children live in Alexandria, Va.

Praise And Blame In World Reaction To Resignation

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The world said goodbye to Richard Nixon with both praise and blame today and greeted his successor with relief and anticipation.

The London Sun called Nixon "the shabbiest, most squalid, deceitful, ruthless, mendacious, double-dealing, conniving, sanctimonious, hypocritical twister that great office will ever know.

"There is but one verdict history will accord him:.

"Expletive deleted."

But in France, former Foreign Minister Michel Jobert called Nixon's fall a great tragedy. Radio commentar Raymond Cartier said:

"Richard Nixon was the greatest president in American history."

Generally, foreign leaders and commentators expressed confidence that America's foreign policy would remain unchanged and relief that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger would stay on as Gerald Ford takes over the presidency.

But in the Arab world, there was fear that Ford would tilt back towards Israel.

Italian President Giovanni Leone sent a farewell message to Nixon making no reference to the circumstances which forced his resignation.

Leone said Nixon had contributed, "in years crowded with events and decisions for the fate of the world, to the maintenance of international peace and the reenforcement of hope for the coming of an era of even more full and profitable collaboration among all peoples."

In Japan, a spokesman for Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka said:

"On the occasion of his announcement today, we renew our respect for Mr. Nixon and his achievements."

Israeli Defense Minister Shimon Peres said the transfer of power from Nixon to Ford was a great victory for U.S. democratic institutions. European newspapers agreed. And Indian Foreign Minister Swaran Singh said Nixon's decision to resign was in the best tradition of democracy.

Danish Prime Minister Poul Hartling said:

"It is worth underlining that what has happened in America, shows that the United States is an open society. Only in a society with a free press and a strong sense of justice is it possible to experience a political development as the one the world now has witnessed."

Armin Grunewald, a spokesman for the West German government, said the Bonn government "assumes that the foreign policy, alliance and economic interests of the United States remained unchanged by the change in the office of the Presidency."

Similar opinions were expressed from France to Thailand and Indonesia.

In the Soviet Union, the Tass news agency reported President Nixon's resignation in a two-paragraph dispatch without comment seven minutes after the announcement last night.

China's New China News Agency made no immediate mention of Nixon. But diplomatic reports from Peking said Chinese officials appeared relieved Kissinger will remain in Ford's administration.

Arab press commentators reflected fears that the turnaround in American policy which Nixon led since the October Arab-Israeli war might not be maintained by Ford and several referred to what they called pro-Israeli indications in Ford's record.

"The new president of the United States," Beirut's French-language L'Orient-Le Jour said, "is, in fact, the only American official to have recognized Jerusalem as 'the unified capital of Israel."

Nixon Vetoes Money Bill As Inflationary

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In one of his last official acts as president, Richard Nixon vetoed a $13.57 billion appropriations bill, calling it inflationary.

In a message to the House yesterday, Nixon said the bill providing money for the Agriculture Department and other agencies, exceeded his budget recommendation by $540 million and "presents a clear and distinct threat to our fight against inflation."

Rains Of Relief Quenching Midwest

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Thunderstorms overtook the Plains early today, quenching the drought-plagued Midwest with rains of relief.

A National Weather Service spokesman said the dry spell was finally over—too late, though, to save billions of dollars in blistered crops.

The Chopsticks In San Rafael Specializes In Cantonese Fare

It is claimed that the Chinese custom of combining small amounts of many things - vegetables, nuts, herbs and seasonings to change the dishes and add variety to a meal originated from the lack of abundance of foods in China.

Chinese cookery makes chief use of those things it does have — pork, beef, chicken, fish and certain other seafoods. It is a testimony to the ingenuity of the Chinese that they are able to do so much with so little.

As in any country, different areas of China feature different ingredients and different methods of preparation. Cantonese cooking, for example, makes much use of steaming certain foods, I am told, though "stir-frying" is also used. Cantonese seasoning is sometimes more pronounced.

One Marin Chinese restaurant that specializes in authentic Cantonese fare is the Chopsticks at 508 Third Street, San Rafael, across from United Market. Now open about a year, David and Irene Chan, in the Chinese tradition, have done much with little. In recent months they've managed to do some additional decorating and also take on extra space next door — which can be used for small parties.

The Chans do most of the work themselves, for the simple reason that they face a problem common with many Chinese restaurants in this county — having to bring in extra Chinese help from San Francisco and either provide transportation both ways or living quarters.

Chopsticks lunch specials are exceptionally reasonable and in the 85 cents to $1.49 range, according to whether you prefer one, two or three dishes.

So-called "family" Chinese dinners can be equally reasonable here, averaging from $2.25 to $2.75 per person. This is the quick way to order. Dishes are prescribed in advance. They are tasty, but you're missing the best part of Chinese fare if you do not eventually get down to making your own combinations.

The main thing is to select contrasting dishes and those that complement each other. Dishes are sufficiently described on the menu that this should not give you too much trouble — but in combining them with rice (that should go with all meals), for example, when should the rice be fried and when should it be steamed? Certain foods go better with the latter. In this and in other areas of perplexity, the Chans are prepared to help you along. Their "no-name" soup is particularly good.

They have a sort of intense pride in the way they offer their Cantonese specialties that is

Halfway House Opens In Texas For Ex-Convicts

DALLAS (UPI) — A halfway house for persons released from prison will open this summer offering the former inmates a temporary home, counseling, job referral services and educational opportunities.

"These are advantages found in a parole plan which the dischargee does not enjoy," a spokesman for the Dallas Area Criminal Justice Council said. "Usually, all a dischargee has when he gets out of the state prison at Huntsville is a new suit, $100 and a bus ticket.

"Consequently, when the $100 is gone, he turns again to crime rather than submit to the responsibilities of starting a straight life. And it frequently happens quickly after he's released.

"This is one reason why the repeat offender rate is so high among prison dischargees. Hopefully, the halfway house here will stem that."

Ford Will Miss Rite At Stanford

STANFORD (UPI) — Vice President Gerald Ford, who becomes President today, will not participate tomorrow evening in Stanford's commemoration of the 100th anniversary of the late President Herbert Hoover.

Oregon Senator Mark Hatfield will speak as scheduled in the invitational program honoring the school's most famous graduate.

good to see. Any Chinese restaurant in this country that is not located in a specialized area such as San Francisco's Chinatown is obliged to make certain compromises with American customs, but it's the way the food is cooked to tradition that counts.

THE NEW VELVET TURTLE RESTAURANT, which will occupy a bluff site high on the east side of Highway 101 (across from Terra Linda and Northgate) is due for an opening by next Tuesday. With two private parties booked for the first day it is likely to be crowded.

Viewed from the highway, the restaurant is deceptive. About all you can discern is part of one wall and the name. But the building is exceptionally large, in fact, and this is made even more manifest inside. With seating for over 200 and a kitchen to handle the full capacity it would have to be.

There's a winding road leading to it uphill from Civic Center Drive. Paving hadn't been completed when I looked at it last Monday, but manager Fred Karcher assured me that by opening date access should be easy. There's no lack of parking space and I see a fine opportunity for some clever landscape work. All in all, it should be quite impressive.

ON THE OTHER SIDE of the highway, there's a new look to the Grotto. A front outside area has been enclosed with pilings, within which is a new cocktail lounge al fresco — for the present being used as an eating area. It has a seating capacity of about 40.

Look for more inside changes within the next few weeks.

THERE'S A NEW MUSICAL GROUP out at Black Point Inn on Friday and Saturday nights. It's called the Tender Souls — a quartet of guitars, bass, bongos and some other instruments, calculated to please both the young and the old. Its members are entertaining and they work well together — they should, they've been playing at a number of Bay Area spots with some success. Dancing, of course — the floor is there for it.

THE LITTLE L'Auberge Basque, which opened at 122 Washington Street, Petaluma, last February is still going strong and is now serving lunches Wednesdays through Fridays from 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Prices are in the $2 - $3.75 range (with soup or salad) and include omelets as well as some of the French and Basque dishes specialized in by owner Gabriel Elicatche. He and wife Suzanne have managed to hold their complete dinner prices down very well and these are from $3.95 to $6.75. Dinners are from 5 to 10 p.m. and on Sundays from 3 to 8 p.m. When we were last there in February, a choice of seven entrees was offered.

It's a tiny place, but neat and clean. It has a wine and beer license, but if you must have a cocktail or highball you'll have to look next door for it. This is the Volpi Grocery — in its rear quarters is located what is said to be the oldest bar in Petaluma.

L'Auberge Basque is one of those restaurants you look for in out of the way places and don't always find. It's in "oldtown" Petaluma, on the main thoroughfare, but there's usually no problem with parking.

IF YOU FIND YOURSELF some mid-day in Fort Bragg on the Mendocino coast wondering where to go for lunch, a good place is The Wharf. You'll find it in the Noyo Fishing Village at the mouth of the Noyo River. (Take the road down from Highway 1 at the north side of the bridge).

The Wharf juts out at water's edge, and from both dining room and cocktail lounge you can look out on fishing boats berthed and moving in and out of the harbor. There are boat and excursion fishing facilities here and also retail fish stalls and some other restaurants, but The Wharf appears to be the most popular eating place.

On three lunch occasions we have found the fare and service excellent and the prices reasonable. Lunches are from about $2.25 and dinners from $4.50. The menu features principally seafood dishes, although there are also steaks, salads, chicken, prime rib and the like. We have always ordered one of the fresh fish catches — salmon in season, petrale sole, red snapper or ling cod. Australian lobster tail on the dinner is $7.50 (large order $8.50); steak and lobster $9.

Lunches include salad, dinners include hors d'oeuvres, soup, salad and dessert.

Hearings On Better Forest Management Are Under Way

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state Board of Forestry yesterday began hearing testimony on new, stricter regulations for "responsible" forest management in private and state land along California's northern coast.

The board is expected to take action on the regulations, along with similar ones for the northern inland and southern half of the state, sometime in late September.

"The rules are stricter than the ones the state has been operating under in the past," said Larry Hustedt, assistant director of the state Department of Conservation.

The regulations would require logging operators to replant areas that they "clear out" in a manner that fits the contour of the land. Previously all clear cutting was done in blocks.

There are provisions for clear cutting in blocks but only under stringent circumstances.

They also set up logging practices which would require loggers to "exercise due diligence in the management and operation of felling, yarding, and loading of timber . . . to prevent damage to those remaining residual trees, seedlings, streamside vegetation and water quality."

The state Board of Forestry was directed by the 1973 legislature to adopt rules and regulations to protect forest areas in the state. The regulations have to be adopted by Oct. 1.

The board is expected to take additional testimony on the district rules during a Sept. 25-27 hearing.

Hustedt said no opposition has been voiced thus far from California's logging industry.

The three district committees worked for three months developing the rules and regulations.

Disabled Vet Picked

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Salvatore D'Amico, who lost his sight and both hands in a dynamite explosion during his Army career and later earned a college degree, was named as Disabled American Veteran of the Year yesterday.

Nagasaki Remembers

TOKYO (UPI) — The people of Nagasaki today marked the 29th anniversary of the U.S. atomic attack on their city with a memorial service and a special "peace education" lesson for schoolchildren.

Nixon Cousin Is Still Proud

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Richard Milhous Nixon's cousin, Phillip Milhous, disabled and on welfare, affirmed his pride in his relative yesterday and accused the nation of "picking like a bunch of buzzards ever since he's been in office."

"I'm proud of him. He's been a good President," said Milhous.

Milhous' father and Nixon's mother were brother and sister. The man is part of a small clan of Nixon relatives living in the nearby Sierra foothill community of Grass Valley.

No Rehearing In Tomales Resort Case

The North Central Coast Regional Commission last night attempted to reopen the issue of a controversial resort planned on Tomales Bay, but found the law bars it from reconsidering its rejection of the resort.

The proposal by Herbert H. Angress will come before the state coastal commission Wednesday on his appeal from the regional agency's second denial. He has been battling public agencies for five years to build on his 22-acre site one mile north of Marshall.

(The dispute may be moot if the Legislature approves a pending appropriation to buy the Angress and other Tomales Bay parcles for park use.)

San Francisco Supervisor Dianne Feinstein, who voted with the majority in July to turn down Angress's second try for a permit, said she had not been able to sleep that night because she was so disturbed by her vote.

Her attempt to have the matter reconsidered was backed by several other commissioners, but their legal adviser, Deputy Atty. Gen. William Chamberlain, said they could not reopen it. The commission is a quasijudicial body, thus cannot reconsider its decisions on permits, he said.

In other business, commissioners postponed action on a staff proposal for a two-year freeze on virtually all subdivision of rural land along the coast. The issue will come before the commission at 7 p.m. on Aug. 22 in the Sonoma County board of supervisors chambers, Santa Rosa.

Chamberlain noted that the state Supreme Court ruled Friday that the commission can prohibit all use of land in the 1,000-yard-wide coastal zone during its planning period without compensating property owners. The planning period runs out at the end of 1976.

Executive Director Michael L. Fischer added that the staff will recommend that controls on subdivision of rural land be made permanent. This would take state legislation.

Although the staff proposal was postponed to give more time for public reaction (there was none last night), the commission's attitude toward subdivision of rural land was evident in two prompt denials of permits for such subdivisions. One was to divide 20 acres on Horseshoe Hill Road near Bolinas, the other to split a 10.4 acre parcel into four lots on Mesa Road near Point Reyes Station.

The Bolinas subdivision was rejected on the ground it could violate a general plan being drawn for the area, and the Point Reyes Station split was turned down because it was outside the line the staff expects to draw as the community's limit for development.

The commission also tabled unanimously a request from Patricia Carson Major that it reconsider its previous approval of trees erected on a Stinson Beach lot owned by Barbara Alban.

Lacovara, counsel to the special prosecutor, says Nixon is not entitled to executive privilege because a case can be made that Nixon was part of a criminal conspiracy; chief White House Watergate counsel James D. Filante's Position Remains Unclear

By MARY LEYDECKER

Can Dr. William J. Filante legally serve at the same time on both the Marin Community College District board and the Marin Municipal Water District board?

"No," says the attorney for the water district, in reply to the question from that district's board.

The law is not clear, says the Marin County counsel's office.

Filante said yesterday he thinks the question of whether he may continue to sit on the two influential political bodies should be settled in court.

The Kentfield physician was already serving on the college district board when elected to the water district board in June.

State law does not specifically forbid a person serving on two such political entities but forbids holding seats "where the two offices are incompatible," according to Tom Thorner, water district attorney.

The trouble is, according to Asst. County Counsel Richard V. Godino, that there are "no hard and fast guidelines" to determine such incompatibility.

Godino cited the obvious incompatibility of serving both on a city council and the county board of supervisors at the same time.

In Filante's case, Godino said he could see some conflicts of interest as a possibility. The college district is a water user, probably one of the largest, and since it is a school district it currently is receiving favorable rates, Godino said.

If there were a move to change the rates, Godino said he could imagine a situation where Filante would have a conflict between the two interests.

Filante said yesterday he thinks "the law should be clarified." He indicated he intends to stay on both boards and that he views himself as having a lower potential for conflict of interest than a person serving on a board who has a strong personal interest outside.

Thorner has given the legal opinion to the water board that by accepting the water district post Filante "has given up his post" on the college board.

Thorner said the law provides that if a person is elected to two incompatible offices he is automatically out of the first one he took.

Thorner said he had prepared his opinion last month at the request of the water district board but that he has no further interest in the matter because Filante's seat on the water agency is "both legal and proper," though not on the college board.

Filante's fellow college district trustees have set a closed meeting Sept. 4 with a representative of the county counsel's office to get advice.

Godino said, however, that he can only discuss the matter with college officials — they have no authority to vote Filante off the board, he said.

It would take a legal action to remove the physician, according to Godino, if he does not choose to resign.

Filante indicated yesterday he would welcome a legal challenge to his seat on the college board so that the matter can be clarified.

Auto Mechanics Are Going Back To Work

Mechanics and body men began returning to Marin auto repair shops today following the settlement of a six-week strike which had idled about half the county's 127 shops.

Members of the International Association of Machinists voted by a three-to-one margin yesterday to accept the agreement which calls for a 37 per cent pay increase over three years and includes an immediate raise of $1.05 an hour, to $8.18.

The settlement also provides for another 45 cents an hour increase next July 1, with further raises of 25, 33 and 58 cents an hour at six-month intervals after that.

Harry H. McElroy, spokesman for the California Association of Employers, said the mechanics reported back to their jobs today and those who could be put to work remained.

Others will be back to work by early next week, he said.

Meanwhile, Marin's auto dealers and garages will drop the suit they filed in late July to force the striking mechanics to return to work.

The $250,000 damage suit was taken off the Marin Superior Court calendar yesterday and McElroy said it will be dismissed entirely once a new contract has been signed.

Between 250 and 350 mechanics and body men were covered by the settlement.

Nude Photo Studio Measure Reviewed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Fire, Safety and Police Committee of the Board of Supervisors has approved an ordinance that would regulate photography studios where the public is invited to take pictures of nude models.

The ordinance, approved yesterday, sets up a hearing procedure for permits and prohibits persons under 18 from working or patronizing the establishments. The measure now goes to the full board for concurrence.

An Offer To Transfer Prisoners

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — State Director of Corrections Raymond K. Procunier has offered to transfer six San Quentin inmates to other prisons.

Procunier made the offer yesterday during testimony in U.S. District Court. As a state official, he is a defendant in a suit by the six prisoners, who are all confined to the adjustment center. They seek to close the center on grounds it is cruel and unusual punishment and therefore unconstitutional.

A goal of the suit was to get out of the maximum security unit.

Procunier said the Department of Corrections had not moved the men because in previous court cases judges had ordered prisoners returned to facilities from which they had been transferred.

If the six men and their attorneys indicated they would not make an effort to return to San Quentin, he would personally review their transfer, Procunier said.

A spokesman for the department in Sacramento said the Correctional Training Facility at Folsom or the state prison at Folsom were facilities likely to receive the six.

Under no circumstances would he approve returning the inmates to the main line population at San Quentin, Procunier said.

Plaintiffs in the case are Fleeta Drumgo, 28; Hugo Pinell, 29; Johnny Spain, 24, Luis Talamantez, 31; David Johnson, 26 and Willie Tate, 29.

Previously, Warden Kenneth Britt had testified that the men are too dangerous to be kept anywhere in San Quentin except the maximum security adjustment center.

Petaluma Man Will Face Attack Charge

Petaluma police last night arrested Robert Mark Crause, 19, of 1444 Sierra Avenue, Petaluma, for alleged sex offenses involving a 13-year-old girl in Petaluma Wednesday night.

The youth was booked into Sonoma County Jail on a charge of suspicion of rape and was to appear today in municipal court in Petaluma for arraignment.

President Ford Needs All Our Help

The agony is ended.

No longer does the United States have a president secluded in his fortress White House, surrounding himself with an ever-dwindling guard of last-ditch defenders, battling desperately to save himself from criminal charges.

As of today, we have a president who can speak openly with Congress and the people, without having his words fuel suspicions. We have a president whose actions will not be manacled by a chain of past events. We have a president who will not have to be, as Richard Milhous Nixon put it last night, "a part-time president."

IT WAS A SAD hour for the nation when Mr. Nixon sat before television cameras to announce that he would be the first of 37 U.S. presidents to resign the office. It was sad because of what had gone before, of what had forced Mr. Nixon to that hard decision.

But in resigning, Mr. Nixon cleared the way for return of rational government. He put the interests of the nation first, without question, in this, his last act as president.

And as Gerald Ford took the oath of office today, the vitality of the United States system — which so many of our own people have found cause to criticize in recent years — was proved anew.

There was no coup. There was no palace uprising, nor military takeover. A president who had lost the confidence of Congress and people turned over the government to a successor he had himself chosen. Yet the new president assumed office without burden of the misdeeds of his predecessor.

That in itself is a remarkable demonstration of our system's vitality, its rationality, and its fairness.

Now we can, as far as the presidency is concerned, "forget Watergate." If any ghosts still inhabit White House closets, they are not haunting Gerald Ford.

BUT WE SHOULD NOT for a moment forget the lessons of Watergate.

The long agony found us close to the breakdown of our precious system. It found us with president and Congress embroiled in a contest for supremacy, with the processes of government short-circuited in some respects and damned to a standstill in others, with cynicism rampant and ideals twisted into incongruities.

We must not forget how close we came to a loss of civil liberties, how near we came to constitutional crisis, how — by our own inattention — we almost lost government of, by, and for the people in a struggle for power among men to whom politics became more important than democracy or honor.

We almost lost the system that saved us, in the sordid series of political machinations embraced by the code name, "Watergate."

BUT WE DIDN'T lose it. We have a new president. And with our help and the help of Congress, he can return government to its proper role as servant of the people.

President Gerald Ford can depend, at least for awhile, on the help of Congress, for he is well known and trusted by that body. But he will need more than that. He, and Congress, will need the help of all of us, regardless of our partisan or other affiliations.

The resignation of President Richard Nixon was one of the saddest hours in our history. But it can usher in one of the proudest hours. It is largely up to us.

High-Pay Legislature Results In Deterioration

By EARL G. WATERS

Veteran observers of the legislative process, California style, have been increasingly disappointed, if not utterly frustrated, by the gradual sinking in the quality of work and overall caliber of membership.

This is not to say that there are not many able legislators in the two houses. It is in comparison to the members of former years that today's lawmakers come up short.

If one were to trace the course which has led to this situation, it might be attributed to the abolition of cross-filing which has resulted in an intense and unhealthy partisanship; the one-man, one-vote court decision which removed the influence of the rural Senate; and the move towards "professionalism" of the lawmakers and away from the "citizen-legislator" concepts.

THE BIGGEST SINGLE mistake was making the job profitable. Under the citizen-legislator concept, the pay was token and the sessions were short. The deterioration started when the solons decided the office should be better compensated and, to justify that, contended it had become a full-time job.

All that needs be done to explode the myth of "full-time job" is to review the number of days the legislature is in actual session and the short hours of convening on those days. True, considerable time is spent in committee hearings, but even with that it is clear the business of handling legislative proposals could easily be accomplished in annual sessions of less than six months duration. And that is making quite a concession. The actual fact is it could be done in a six-month session every other year. The balance of the two years could then be spent, as it should be, in the much more significant work of interim studies of the many pressing problems of state government. And, with adequate and competent staff, interim work does not call for the full time of the members.

But, by raising the salaries, the lawmakers have created a situation where they feel they must be convened year-around even though they have to dilly-dally to spread the work out over so long a period.

THE SALARY RAISE did something else. It made the office attractive to people who were not capable of earning so much money elsewhere. Fewer of those with professional or business achievement in their home communities are being elected. There is a gradual transition to those who have no profession and have made no mark in life otherwise.

This type of "professional lawmaker" becomes a "professional officeholder." He does not possess the maturity which comes with having achieved, and he lacks close relationship with the community he represents.

Worse, having no profession or business to fall back upon, the matter of getting re-elected, sustaining his hold on the office, becomes paramount. It represents life or death to his economic existence. Under such circumstances, the office holder will do anything and everything to escape defeat at the polls.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Incorrect Name For Organization

In the July 4 issue of the I-J you had a very nice article about the "College for Kids" expanded program. It was gratifying to see the efforts of many people editorialized in the paper. However, the article alluded to the "Marin Association for Creative Children" as being one of the major associations for initiating the program. This should be the Marin Association for Gifted Children.

We felt this correction should be made to give the proper credit to a vital, hard-working organization and also to insure inquiries are directed to the proper place for a response.

Election Officer's Role In Fining Of Musser

In the public interest I would like to state my side of the story concerning my fine for failure to file a primary campaign statement on time.

Mr. Peterzell's article in your Aug. 5 edition is correct and factual up to the point where he said "but the elections office said he could wait because the fines may be waived." First, it was not the elections office who said anything, it was the elections officer personally who told me in effect that he would not accept my money at the time because Mr. Gnoss was waiting for an opinion from the secretary of state and he, the elections officer, would notify me when to pay the fine. He had not notified me by July 31 and since I had a long planned trip out of the county scheduled for Aug. 1, I proceeded to make the trip. On Friday, Aug. 2 Mr. Gnoss personally told me the fine should be paid and it was paid within 10 minutes.

But what is even more significant in view of the issue raised by Mr. Peterzell, was the fact that the notification from the elections office that the statement in question was due was postmarked three days before the due date but not received until four or five days after the due date. Since this was not a post office postmark, but simply the county clerk's postage meter postmark, it is not hard to understand how this delay could have happened.

Babe Ruth Tournament Coverage Pleases

On behalf of the leagues in District 9 (Marin and Sonoma Counties) I want to thank the Independent-Journal sports staff for the daily coverage of our recent Babe Ruth all-star tournaments held in Santa Rosa and Sonoma.

Special thanks to Vernon (Lefty) Gomez of Fairfax, chairman of the international Babe Ruth board of directors and a baseball Hall of Famer, who for the second straight year presented awards at our tournament for 15-year-olds. We were extremely honored at having such a distinguished gentleman in attendance.

Both of our district champions were runners-up in the state tournaments.

Santa Rosa, the 15-year-old winner, won the northern section state tournament in Stockton, beating Eel River in the finals, but then lost two one-run decisions to defending champion Lompoc in the state playoff in Hollister.

West Side Santa Rosa, the 13-year-old champion, bowed to unbeaten Vallejo in the finals of the 11-team state tournament in Visalia. West Side also distinguished itself by winning the state's sportsmanship award.

Thanks to everyone who made District 9's season a complete success.

San Anselmo Should Move Carefully On Administrator

Today I am departing from a self-imposed rule. It has been on rare occasions that I have departed from it. That is in discussing matters of intra character in our cities.

Those times, I believe, were in praising my home town, San Anselmo. I have had a love affair with this lovely place for more than 50 years. Yes, more than 55 years. I have been so proud, over these years, to serve it directly or indirectly.

Two of such times have been of particular pride to me. One, the installation of the first police two-way radio in any small town in the state.

MY OTHER was my "stubborn" refusal to either vote for a procedure which would have actually taken property away from its then owners through foreclosure, because of a freak situation I will describe later, nor sign the instruments to make such an act legal . . .

That battle with powerful interests went on for years. It was not settled until I had been off the San Anselmo City Council for several years.

What I refused to do saved the property of many owners still in possession. Here is how it went:

Some promoters of street paving (let me stress — not all, by any means, but enough to create a deplorable situation) would work over whole sections, with some "bellweather" simp. They would work up a demand for new pavement, curbs and gutters. The costs they would quote were invariably about one-half of the amount billed to the owners when the work was done. The assessments were in most cases higher than the property could be sold for.

The bonds covering the work would be bought immediately by a certain kind of bond house and resold to farmers in the Middle West. The bond act tried to make it mandatory that a city or county assess up to 10 cents per $100 valuation for each delinquency occurring in all such other bond issues. This was against each piece of property in the city.

Delinquencies were right and left. I wouldn't vote nor sign as mayor.

ALAN BRUCE is applying for the job of San Anselmo city manager. He is entitled to a clean fiar break. But the City of San Anselmo is also entitled to a fair break in such an important decision.

As you know this column was started with and continues with streams of information about the expenses of county government.

I would be less than true to my home town if I didn't in some manner keep its citizens informed of this crisis in our affairs this day. (I am finishing this on my 86th birthday.)

Alan started out for the county in March of 1957 with a salary of $703 a month. July 1, 1970, his salary was $2,450.86 a month plus fringe benefits. You should have this in detail. Some interesting things occurred.

In justice to all concerned, appointment to the San Anselmo position should not be rushed. Our city has department heads who are carrying on all functions now in admirable fashion. They can continue until a careful decision is reached, based on more facts rather than pushed through by a small group.

CAPITOL QUIPS

By PHIL DESSAUER

When things get really desperate, we can count on Congress to pass a law making inflation illegal.

Several prospective candidates for vice president are ready for the race, but so far none has cleared the big test — hitting a spectator with a golf shot.

Professional football is becoming more complicated. Now fans have to cope with the offensive line, the defensive line, and the picket line.

ERNEST B. FURGURSON

First Job For Gerald Ford: Choosing A New Vice President

WASHINGTON — When a president quits or is impeached, his successor's problems are as heavy and perplexing as if the chief executive suddenly had died. The most urgent of those is choosing his own vice president.

Mr. Ford may have settled on someone long ago, the day he came into office by the same route. He may have been interviewing Republican politicians for the job without their knowing it during his incessant travels in these past nine months. That would mean he was showing the good judgment to look beyond his own long but narrow background in the House.

IT IS A POLITICAL decision, but what kind of politics? Traditional ticket balancing for the election two years hence? Intraparty politics at a time when the GOP will be badly fractured? Nonpartisan politics in seeking a smart, experienced, honest assistant president?

Ticket balancing for geography would mean picking someone outside the Middle West; for ideology, someone from the party's moderate-to-liberal ranks.

In two years Nelson Rockefeller will be 68 years old, a bit ripe even for a rich candidate for No. 2. Ronald Reagan will be 65, and besides he is too far right for this formula.

Elliott Richardson is constantly mentioned by everybody except Gerald Ford. But while voting for impeachment in Congress should not be a disqualifier, since so many apparently have done it, having played a leading role like Richardson's may be too much for the GOP regulars to accept. The same criterion would rule out William Ruckelshaus. John Gardner of Common Cause also is more popular with independents than with delegates to a Republican National Convention.

The list of GOP governors does not stop at Rockefeller and Reagan. Connecticut's Thomas Meskill, Iowa's Robert Ray, Massachusetts' Francis Sargent, Michigan's William Milliken, Oregon's Tom McCall and Washington's Dan Evans meet the conventional requirements in one or both ways. Indianapolis' mayor, Richard Lugar, was among the cast theoretically considered by Mr. Nixon last year when he chose Mr. Ford.

IF THE NEXT president thought he needed to turn south, where the Republicans have done extremely well in recent elections, he would find the roster of prominent officials did not match the party's popular fashion. Yet at least two from that section must have Mr. Ford's serious attention. One is George Bush, former congressman from Texas and now GOP national chairman, who is rich, moderate and clean-cut, and whose state is a near necessity to Republican campaign success.

The other is Howard Baker, who played his role so carefully in the Senate Watergate hearings. And that brings us to the fount of presidential ambition, the U.S. Senate. The party would take Barry Goldwater by acclamation, but he is already 65. Either Charles Percy of Illinois or Charles Mathias of Maryland would give ideological balance. Robert Taft of Ohio would be centrist and respectable.

Then it is conceivable Ford would reach back into his quarter-century in the House and tap someone like John Anderson of Illinois, the House GOP conference chairman. It is far more than conceivable that from that same experience he would turn to Melvin Laird, who is not a congressman anymore but knows the Congress intimately, has cabinet and White House background, and is renowned for his political brains.

NOW, HAVING MADE a list long enough to skip no clear possibilities, my next thought is to hope Mr. Ford appraoches the problem differently. He has a special opportunity.

By the time the next election comes, the country will not care whether the incumbent vice president is from Maine or California, liberal or conservative. He will have established himself as a national figure, the vice president on the job, and will be rated on his performance there. So in at least one way Mr. Ford is in an enviable position; if he realizes it, he can start off by simply choosing the best man, with the knowledge that the political part will fall into place if his judgment is confirmed.

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

Congress Stealing Billions In Social Security Savings

WASHINGTON — Every year the Congress of the United States is stealing several billion dollars from some three million American citizens who for years gave part of their earnings to Social Security and are now, at 65, denied thier own contributions.

Perhaps one should put quotation marks around that word "stealing," but if it isn't stealing, it is immoral, unfair, unethical and downright dishonest.

I SAY DISHONEST because this Social Security money is not the government's to withhold — and never was. It belongs to those who contributed and who are not now allowed to receive it. I say this ruling by Congress is dishonest because it violates an explicit promise which Congress made when it started the Social Security program in 1935 and repeatedly reaffirmed.

In recent years Congress has reneged, and several million workers who put aside their savings through Social Security are now not able to draw what they saved and what is theirs because they still want to do a little work and get paid for it. If they get paid more than $2,400 a year, these people are out $1 of what they had saved for every $2 they earn.

THE CRUEL UNFAIRNESS of this is doubly evident in the fact that there is no limit whatsoever on what a Social Security beneficiary can earn through bank interest, stocks and bonds, but only on what he earns by his own work and skills. He is penalized for that.

And he shouldn't be.

The government doesn't own this money it is denying to Social Security contributors over 65 who want to work. Those who paid it in own it. But Congress, under present statutes, says that if they want to earn extra money over $2,400 a year, they can't receive what they have contributed and which the Congress many times told them would be theirs "as a matter of right."

That is the exact promise of the Social Security Act when it was first passed — "a matter of right, not a matter of charity" — and it prevailed until Congress began tinkering with the law a few years ago.

SEN. BARRY GOLDWATER, R-Ariz., who has the credentials to speak out and who in many ways is the conscience of the Congress, calls this earnings limitation "morally wrong, illogical and a harm to the economy." He says:

"It is morally wrong because Social Security should not be a contract to quit work." A worker should not be forced to lose past savings because of present earnings.

If Congress wants to recover some of its lost confidence with the American people, it will not adjourn this year without repairing this egregious unfairness.

A CLOSE LOOK

Eula Boardman Brings Foreign Boys To Marin

By BARBARA HOSMER

EULA BOARDMAN
A practical plan

Because Eula Boardman of Sebastopol did what seemed practical to her, 14 exchange students visiting in Petaluma will go home with a taste of American corporate business, dairying, sheep shearing, tortilla-making and family life — both pioneer and modern.

Wife of Wesley Boardman, Petaluma Adobe Lions Club president, she scheduled a full three weeks of learning for the 13 Japanese and one French boy's, a program that involved all 35 families of the host club.

The emphasis on giving the students a close look at industry and local government, giving them some history and organizing group recreation, she later found may have been unique within the Lions Clubs International Youth Exchange Program. She will pass her idea along to the international organization.

"It was the first time the Adobe Club had had a youth exchange program, and I thought that this was what I was supposed to do," Mrs. Boardman explained.

"Closeness of the whole group, American families and visitors, was a main objective of the plan and it went into operation the moment the visitors arrived. After their almost 24 hours of travel to Petaluma, Mrs. Boardman immediately held a reception for students. "Everyone was so tired, their defenses were down and it was a good time to break down any barriers," she explained. "It worked," she added.

Following her carefully drawn schedule, the 17 to 21-year-old students and the host club families, often numbering over 100 persons, held a weekend campout at Lakeport, toured the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. headquarters for 14 states in San Francisco, canoed on the Russian River, toured Marin Civic Center for a closeup of county government, joined in an old fashioned potluck meal at McDowell Park in Petaluma, toured Mission San Rafael Arcangel and the Napa Valley wine country.

They carpooled to San Francisco to visit the Presidio operations dispersal office for the entire Army and the life insurance corporation for a view of operations of huge public and private organizations. But they also observed Petaluma's local industries at two dairy ranches and a chicken ranch, sampled the cheeses at the Marin French Cheese Factory and attended the Santa Rosa Livestock auction.

Highlight of the whole tour, Mrs. Boardman said, was the 24 hours they spent at the Old Adobe near Petaluma. There the mainly Japanese group learned about Indian and pioneer life by grinding corn with pestle and mortar, making tortillas and tostados, milking a goat, making leather crafts to take home, churning butter and shearing sheep.

One Japanese girl who helped shear did such a good job that the lamb was a winner at the Santa Rosa County Fair, Mrs. Boardman said. "And she'd never seen a sheep before."

The idea was to keep things as close to pioneer life as possible. "We hoped to stage a mock Indian raid that night, but the students never went to bed," Mrs. Boardman commented. Instead, they sang around the camp fire until 4 a.m.

When the students left Sunday to board the airplane for Los Angeles, the Adobe Lions Club families warned them that their stay with families there would probably be far more individualized.

The only real hitch in the three weeks had been that the prime rib dinner at Sebastopol Memorial Building drew twice as many persons as had signed up and more food had to be cooked.

Sure now that they can handle large groups, the Boardmans and Lions are hoping for 20 exchange students next summer.

Ehrlichman Will Reserve Comment

SEATTLE (UPI) — Former presidential aide John Ehrlichman plans to reserve comment on President Nixon's resignation until next week.

Ehrlichman, former adviser to the president on domestic affairs, made a brief appearance last night outside his home here but indicated he was going out of town for a long weekend and might possibly meet with newsmen Monday.

Mrs. Snelling also is seeking two accompanists, under age 18, to play for the chorus.

She said the 24-member group will sing for shut-ins, senior citizens and convalescent homes and give public concerts.

Rehearsals will begin in September.

Project To Develop Bird Control Methods

CORVALLIS, Ore. (UPI) — Oregon State University zoologist Dr. John A. Weins is heading a research program to develop methods of preserving and managing beneficial bird populations, and controlling those considered damaging pests.

The project has produced a computer simulation model to analyze one estimate changes in bird population density and energy demands of bird populations. The computer model also is being used to estimate fish consumption by seabirds along the Oregon coast.

Assembly Unanimously Returns $18 Million To Mental Health

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Assembly voted unanimously yesterday to restore $18 million of $23 million cut by Gov. Ronald Reagan from this year's budget for support of local mental health programs.

Agreement had been reached between Reagan and legislative leaders on the compromise sum after harsh reaction to the governor's vetoes. It was warned that many programs would have to be cut back significantly without the money.

The appropriations bill (AB4513) was rushed to the Senate on a 73-0 vote with no debate. It was carried by the Assembly's ranking mental health expert, Assemblyman Frank Lanterman, R-La Canada.

Fully restored was $10 million for direct support of local mental health facilities. Another $5.25 million was earmarked for local after-care centers, which was three-fourths the amount originally contained in the budget.

The final $2.75 million was for treatment of mentally disabled Californians, which was half the amount budgeted.

When Reagan made the budget vetoes in June he called existing funds "sufficient" to keep the programs operating.

Lanterman explained the governor made a mistake, perhaps, he said, because the Legislature gave Reagan only two days to review more than 400 budget items before it had to be signed into law.

Mental health authorities from throughout the state raised an outcry at the vetoes, warning that unless the funds were restored mental health programs would suffer.

An emphasis on local care has been the cornerstone of Reagan's approach to treatment of the mentally ill and disabled during the 7½ years of his administration.

Seventh Crisis, Watergate, Nixon's Undoing

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The author of the following dispatch covered the activities of Richard M. Nixon when he first was elected to Congress in 1946. He also reported on Nixon's role in breaking the Alger Hiss-Whittaker Chambers "Pumpkin Papers" spy case. He has been an avid Nixon watcher since.)

By SAM FOGG

United Press International

When Richard Milhous Nixon wrote "Six Crises," he could not have foreseen that his greatest crisis lay ahead, a scandal of historic proportions that dragged him from the pinnacle of power and personal popularity and finally destroyed him politically.

Stretching over three decades, Nixon's political career was an amazing pattern of crests and troughs, of triumphs and defeats. Watergate was his nadir —the most precipitous fall from favor of any modern American politician.

From this fall there was no hope of the comeback Nixon had made his trademark in public life. Twice before, he seemed destined for the political scrap heap when he lost his first bid for the presidency in 1960 and then the governorship of California two years later. It was then he delivered the famous post-election line: "You won't have Nixon to kick around any more."

Yet six years later he was elected President and then went on to win a second term by one of the greatest landslides in American political history.

It seems cruel irony that the clumsy Watergate break-in in June, 1972, should have come at a time when Nixon's prospects for re-election were already so bright, promising four more years to achieve world peace and seek the "new American revolution" at home.

But many politicians blame Nixon himself. They feel he could have deflected the entire scandal at the outset merely by declaring he would get to the bottom of the break-in at Democratic National Committee headquarters and deal summarily with anyone in his administration who might be involved.

Nixon did not do this.

Instead, the White House dismissed the break-in as a "third-rate burglary" while Nixon, for more than two years, kept secret the fact that he was an active participant in a cover-up designed to insure that nothing interfered with his re-election.

Money was paid, allegedly to buy the silence of those who burglarized the Watergate. There were investigations of Nixon's federal tax returns, improvements made on his personal properties at taxpayers' expense and his campaign financing. Some of his aides resigned or were fired. Others were indicted, convicted and jailed.

Others still face trial in the cover-up, including H.R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman, the two men in the White House upon whom he depended most, and John N. Mitchell, Nixon's attorney general and briefly director of his 1972 campaign.

The House Judiciary Committee, after six days of nationally televised debate, approved three articles of impeachment against Nixon charging him with abuse of power, obstruction of justice and failure to comply with committee subpoenas. With some Republican members joining in, the panel recommended his conviction by the Senate and removal from office.

For only the second time in U.S. history, a President faced the threat of the ultimate disgrace provided by the Constitution. In the only previous case, Andrew Johnson escaped conviction by a single vote in 1868, finished his term and left office an embittered man. He died a few years later.

The biggest single blow to Nixon's hope of containing the scandals was the Supreme Court's 8-0 ruling that he must surrender 64 White House tapes to the special Watergate prosecutor. Aware that defiance of the Court would mean almost automatic impeachment, Nixon agreed to turn over the tapes.

And with that, he was forced to admit he had discussed the break-in with Haldeman six days after it occurred, and had directed that the FBI be ordered to curb its investigation not only to avoid compromising CIA activities but to conceal the involvement of his reelection campaign committee.

The President conceded he had been wrong, but insisted that what he had done still did not warrant impeachment. The damage, however, was done. His supporters in Congress, including Republicans who defended him most strongly during the Judiciary Committee hearings, defected by the dozens.

Nixon acknowledged that impeachment by the House was a foregone conclusion but vowed to see his ordeal through despite a rising chorus of demands that he resign.

Nixon emerged on the political scene in 1946 as a scarcely noticed House member from California's 12th district after an election in which Republicans won control of Congress for the first time since the days of Herbert Hoover.

In Washington, he was given two relatively unimportant committee assignments. On the House Labor and Education Committee he served with a much-better known freshman — Rep. John F. Kennedy, D-Mass.

It was his post on the House Committee on Un-American Activities that provided Nixon with his chance to move into the limelight.

The committee attracted heavy press attention and liberal criticism for its handling of its anti-Communist hearings. In August, 1948, the Alger Hiss-Whittaker Chambers case surfaced and Nixon faced the first of his crises.

At issue was which of two men was telling the truth: Chambers, a Time magazine editor, who swore that he had known Hiss, a former State Department official, as a Communist party member of an espionage operation in the early New Deal Days; or Hiss who indignantly denied the charge under oath.

At the outset, most committee members believed Hiss, head of the prestigious Carnegie Endowment. But Nixon, helped by a top Washington newsman, the late Bert Andrews, dug into the background of the two men and became convinced Hiss was lying.

He staked his fledgling reputation on that belief and a jury ultimately convicted Hiss of perjury.

Nixon acknowledged in "Six Crises" that the case brought him the national attention that led to his later career. But he also wrote that "it left a residue of hatred and hostility toward me ... among substantial segments of the press and the intellectual community."

His next step up the political ladder was a successful 1950 race for the Senate seat in California against Helen Gahagan Douglas, a staunch New Deal Democrat.

His Senate service was brief and Nixon's star was still ascending when Dwight D. Eisenhower picked him as his vice presidential running-mate in 1952. At that point, the "Checkers" crisis occurred and almost finished off Nixon.

In the midst of the campaign, news stories broke that a group of wealthy Californians had raised $18,235 for a special fund to help underwrite Nixon's expenses as senator. Eisenhower declared his young running-mate would have to come "as clean as a hound's tooth." Some influential Republicans advocated that he get off the ticket.

Nixon responded with a counter-offensive — a technique to became his political hallmark. He quickly arranged a national television appearance and from a Los Angeles studio delivered this defense:

He said he never had been influenced to do special favors for his fund contributors. He listed his assets and bank holdings down to the penny. He emphasized that his wife, Pat, wore only "a respectable Republican cloth coat." He told of receiving a personal gift from an admirer — a black-and-white cocker spaniel puppy which his daughter named Checkers — and which was prominently displayed for television cameras.

It was corny but effective. Eisenhower accepted Nixon's explanation and at Wheeling, W.Va., embraced his vice presidential candidate with the public assertion: "That's my boy."

The Eisenhower-Nixon ticket was elected by landslide proportions in 1952 and again in 1956. There were three main highlights of his eight years in the vice presidency:

In the fall of 1955, Eisenhower suffered a serious heart attack and Nixon was in the limelight as an unofficial "acting President" during Ike's months of convalescence.

In 1958 during a good-will mission to Latin America, Nixon and his wife were threatened physically by a hostile Communist mob in Caracas and drew general praise for meeting the situation with courage and coolness.

In 1959, he and Soviet Premier Nikita Khruschev engaged in their widely publicized "kitchen debate" at a trade fair in Moscow and Nixon emerged as a firm and skillful defender of the free enterprise system.

At 47, Nixon captured the 1960 Republican presidential nomination without difficulty and entered the campaign as favorite over his Democratic rival, John F. Kennedy.

On Nov. 8, 1960, Nixon lost an election for the first time. Kennedy won by an electoral college margin of 303 to 219 but by only 118,550 votes in the actual polling.

In 1962, Nixon's fortunes took a drastic downward turn when he was defeated for the California governorship by incumbent Democrat Edmund G. (Pat) Brown.

Seemingly, Nixon had gone down the political drain but events were in store that would thrust him upward again. Kennedy was assassinated and his successor, Lyndon B. Johnson, scored a landslide triumph over conservative GOP Sen. Barry M. Goldwater in 1964 that left the Republican party shattered and leaderless.

By 1965, a less confident but more mature Nixon tentatively returned to the public scene. In the hinterlands, he spoke at local party meetings in school gyms attended by 40 or 50 people. In the mid-term elections of 1966, he was in full swing, campaigning on behalf of congressional candidates in 82 districts.

The Republicans picked up 47 House seats and Nixon won the gratitude of GOP leaders in almost every area of the country.

What had been a brushfire operation in Vietnam became a full-scale war that grew increasingly unpopular. It was responsible for Johnson's decision early in 1968 that he would not run again for the presidency.

The leading active Republican, Michigan Gov. George Romney, blundered by saying he had been "brainwashed" on Vietnam and took himself out of contention even before the New Hampshire primary.

Another rival, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, wound up announcing himself not a candidate, then became a candidate, and succeeded in alienating a fellow governor from Maryland, Spiro T. Agnew.

With no active opposition, Nixon shed his loser's image in the primaries, particularly in Oregon against California Gov. Ronald Reagan. At the Miami Beach convention, he thwarted a Rockefeller-Reagan bid to stop him and won the nomination on the first ballot.

On Nov. 5, 1968, Richard M. Nixon was elected President of the United States by a heavy electoral college majority but with only 43.4 per cent of the popular vote.

In year-end Gallup Polls for 1970 and 1971, Nixon was listed as the man most admired by the American people. His performance as President registered nearly 70 per cent approval.

On Nov. 7, 1972, Nixon and Agnew swept to re-election on a tidal wave of votes that carried 49 states and won 60.7 per cent of the total vote. Nixon overwhelmed Democrat George S. McGovern by nearly 18 million votes —the greatest in electoral history —and had the endorsement of 47,167,319 Americans.

Even though the Republicans failed to make significant gains in Congress and had suffered setbacks at the governorship level, Nixon in his final election contest had reached his pinnacle of popularity and authority.

It enabled him — almost with impunity — to bomb Hanoi and mine Haiphong in an effort to force North Vietnam to yield. It let him undertake sweeping reorganization of the executive branch of the government and positioned him for an anticipated series of fights with the Democratic Congress.

But then began the astonishing events known as Watergate — and Nixon's greatest crisis was upon him.

The arrest of seven men for the burglary and bugging of Democratic National Headquarters in the plush Watergate apartment complex on June 17, 1972, had stirred relatively little public interest during the election year.

The White House discounted the break-in. News accounts that the trail led to the Committee to Re-Elect the President and to the White House itself drew denials and an assertion by Nixon that no one presently on his staff was involved.

The Watergate trial before U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica produced little sensational testimony, as five of the seven defendants pleaded guilty and two others, James McCord and G. Gordon Liddy, were convicted by a jury.

A special seven-man Senate investigating committee headed by Sen. Sam J. Ervin had been set up, but seemed to pose no more problems than previous random congressional inquiries that had disclosed nothing too damaging.

On sentencing day, March 23, 1973, Sirica announced McCord had written him a letter charging the trial had been marked by perjury, pressure and cover-up attempts by higher-ups.

On April 17, Nixon announced he had instituted a new White House investigation of Watergate on March 21 because of "serious charges which came to my attention." He acknowledged there had been "major developments" in the case.

Then like a series of depth charges, event exploded after event.

The President's two closest White House advisers, Haldeman and Ehrlichman, resigned; White House Counsel John W. Dean III was fired; Attorney General Richard M. Kleindienst quit.

Two former cabinet members and top Nixon campaign leaders, John N. Mitchell and Maurice Stans, were indicted on charges of bribery and perjury in connection with an illegal campaign contribution. They were acquitted.

Dean, who had been assigned to supervise the original White House investigation, swore under oath before the Senate committee and a national television audience that Nixon was aware of the Watergate cover-up efforts by his aides.

The White House tapes came to light and Nixon refused to give them up under subpoena either to a special Watergate grand jury or the Senate panel. Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox was fired. Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson quit, and his deputy, William Ruckelshaus, also was dismissed in what was dubbed "The Saturday Night Massacre."

Spiro T. Agnew pleaded no contest to federal charges of income tax evasion involving payments from contractors while governor of Maryland. He resigned as vice president.

A beleaguered Nixon, faced with a possible historic confrontation in the Supreme Court, agreed to turn over the White House tapes to Sirica but his attorneys said that two of them never existed, and it was discovered an 18-½ minute portion of a third had been erased.

The House authorized its Judiciary Committee to consider possible impeachment of the President. There were blunt public demands that Nixon resign once Agnew's successor, Rep. Gerald R. Ford, was confirmed.

Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski disclosed that Haldeman, Ehrlichman, Mitchell, Charles Colson and three other Nixon aides had been indicted in the cover-up.

Even before the Watergate crisis had snowballed to these proportions, a poll showed that only 9 per cent of the people felt Nixon was being "frank and honest," and 63 per cent believed he had withheld information about the case.

In May, 1973, only 14 per cent of those polled said he should resign and 75 per cent opposed. By November, 43 per cent favored his resignation with only 47 per cent opposed and Nixon's approval rating as President had plummeted to 27 per cent.

In that same month, Nixon launched "Operation Candor" in an effort to restore public confidence in his shaken presidency.

He insisted he would not resign. He promised Republic congressmen he would satisfactorily answer all questions about Watergate along with charges that he had used a loophole to escape all but minimal income taxes and severe criticism on government money spent on his Florida and California homes.

The President also told a televised news conference with a group of managing editors: "I am not a crook." But a poll conducted just days before showed that 44 per cent of those questioned believed that Watergate would show Nixon had violated the law and 46 per cent deemed him a man not of high integrity.

A congressional committee and the Internal Revenue Service ruled that his income tax deductions had been illegal, and the IRS sent him a bill for more than $500,000 in back taxes and penalties. Nixon said he would pay, but that it would wipe out his assets.

Nixon's problems burgeoned. Charges were leveled that the President was involved in a controversial decision to raise milk price support levels, shortly after $2 million was pledged to his re-election campaign by dairy cooperatives.

It was disclosed that International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. had offered $400,000 cash to help underwrite the 1972 Republican National Convention if it were held in San Diego. The offer came a short time after the administration's controversial decision to drop an anti-trust suit against the giant conglomerate.

Finally, there were the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment hearings, the Supreme Court order to surrender the tapes and Nixon's concession that he had been in on the cover-up.

The alternatives seemed clear: resign or be ousted.

And so, just when Nixon should have been basking in the glory of his greatest triumphs, he was fighting for his political life.

Watergate — his seventh crisis — was his undoing.

CHINA TRIUMPH — President Nixon and Chinese Premier Chou En-lai toasted each other during Nixon's historic visit to China in February of 1972.

EARLY TRIUMPH — Richard M. Nixon was only 39 years old when he was chosen as the running mate of Dwight D. Eisenhower and the two scored back-to-back presidential victories in 1952 and 1956.

THOUGH THEY WORRY ABOUT COUNTRY

Young Americans Are Optimistic

A majority of young people are concerned about the future of the country but are inclined to be optimistic about their own personal future, according to a new survey of Americans between the ages of 14 to 25.

The study conducted for the Institute of Life Insurance found that despite misgivings about the future of the country expressed by 75 per cent of the young people, 7 out of 10 of those surveyed indicated they felt their own prospects were good.

According to the Institute's Director of Research, Dr. Harold Edrich, the disparity between confidence about one's personal future and the country's future reflects a pattern observed previously. "It appears, however," he says, "that the gap is wider now than at any time in the recent past."

The survey also found that the degree of personal optimism escalates with age while at the same time concern about the county's future lessens. The most likely to register a strong vote of confidence in their own future were those in the oldest group surveyed — youths between 22 and 25 years of age. Of these, 74 per cent expressed personal optimism. The least confident were those in the youngest age category — under 17 years of age. Only 67 per cent indicated they were hopeful about their personal situation.

Referring to a Gallup poll which recently indicated that 8 out of 10 adults retain confidence in the future of this country, Dr. Edrich noted that the philsophical split between age groups as well as generations may be due "to their differing perspectives on the nation's ability to survive social, economic and political problems.

"A wider exposure to a variety of national crises in their lifetime experience has prepared the older segments of the population to view national problems with more tolerance. Among those younger, however, optimism about the state of the country tends to fluctuate more with current events."

"Nevertheless," he adds, "A majority of the next generation of leaders are confident about their own personal future and this is a positive sign for the society's future."

The survey also found that most personally optimistic were young people living in the North Central region of the country (76 per cent). The least confident about their future were Southerners (64 per cent).

The most concerned about the country's future, according to the survey, were Northeasterners (82 per cent). Least worried were those living in the North Central region (70 per cent).

There were also attitudinal differences based on sex. Males expressed more optimism about their future than females (73 per cent to 67 per cent). Women were also more worried than men about the country's future (79 per cent to 71 per cent).

FOCUSING THE 35mm camera is photographer Mimi Jacobs of Kent Woodlands. In just three years of work, she has gathered enough expertise to receive enthusiastic approval from photographers Ansel Adams and Imogene Cunningham.

Marin Photographer Finds Big Fascination In Faces

By KAREN PETERSON

Faces have always intrigued Mimi Jacobs. So three years ago she picked up a camera, started reading about photography and committed herself to putting down on film something of the soul.

Her aim as a photographer is to "show something of the inner self of the subject."

Not content to sit back with her new found avocation, Mrs. Jacobs has a long-term project, documenting Bay Area artists — "people of social concern," she said. "People who care about others."

FROM A LIST OF 50, Mrs. Jacobs has photographed and interviewed 18. Her photographic compositions are simple. "I let my subject's face and eyes especially tell his story," she said. "I think I can look into a person's face and know a little about what is going on" inside.

In a studio in the hills of Kent Woodlands and lit by wall-to-ceiling windows, Mrs. Jacobs displays some of her craft. With pride she also shows a postcard from Arizona, a request by Ansel Adams to use her portrait of him in future publicity.

Her list of subjects include social philosopher Erik Hoffer and Imogene Cunningham, a prize-winning photographer still active in her 90s. It was "Imogene who was reponsible for my really being a photographer at all," said Mrs. Jacobs of the photographer who said she would do "everything I can to help you."

NOW IN HER EARLY 60'S, Mrs. Jacobs believes her enthusiasm for photography "came at a time in my life that I probably needed something exciting." She feels that she might have been better if she'd started years ago, but also thinks that jumping in now saved her from seeing her work as "an old story." "Now it's just fun," said the petite former sculpturess. Twenty years ago, Mrs. Jacobs was one of thousands to be impressed by the Family of Man photography exhibit. "I was terribly excited by it," she said.

Interest soon led to determination. Mrs. Jacobs is self-taught, first studying the Time/Life photography series, going to libraries to read about techniques and "gradually accumulating a library" of photography books, she said.

SHE STUDIED at a workshop in Tiburon; studied and critiqued with Sister Adelle, another accomplished Marin photographer, and studied lighting in a University of California at Berkeley extension class.

The artists she has contacted for her documentary have been highly responsive, said Mrs. Jacobs, adding that "no one seems to have a photograph" of themselves.

Out of the artists she has photographed, there was only one who wasn't satisfied, she said — a gratifying compliment to the woman who still refers to herself as "a novice."

HER SUBJECTS are photographed in her spacious home. She is a photographic purist in that she tries to use only available light rather than artifical, strobe lighting. Available light, she believes, is "more natural . . . softer, kinder."

To produce a good photograph, Mrs. Jacobs believes the photographer must make the subjects "unaware of the camera." During her interviews, which have been published in a

Unisex Idea Is Still Around But Goes Under New Name

By PHYLLIS FELDKAMP
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

It's a sporty concept for pairs who like to match up in navy pea jackets and gray flannel trousers for casual occasions and to get into related dinner suits (his would have pants, hers a long wrap skirt) for "do-dress" evenings.

The fashion community evidently sees a future for clothes of this sort. Three designers (Ralph Lauren, Calvin Klein and Bill Kaiserman of Rafael) whose specialty is creating sportswear for both men and women have been voted Coty American Fashion Critics' awards for 1974.

IT IS POSSIBLE to make a case for certain likenesses in the new fall styles for men and women if you look at the whole fashion picture. The moods for both sexes are comfortable and easygoing — no pinched-in waists or stiff construction.

Equal attention is paid to all the telling details — the right belt, the subtle combination of textures or patterns and the thoughtful head-to-toe composition of an entire outfit. The hit-or-miss look is out this year for both men and women

He and she are offered Donegal tweeds, tattersall checks, windowpane plaids, camel hair, cordury and trench coats or capes that reverse from flannel or tweed to waterproof poplin. Sweaters in bold geometrics and chessboard checks, in bulky yarns with deep shawl collars, in space-knit stripes, are in for both males and females.

But here the similarities end. The point is reached when you have to say that essentially fall fashions for men and for women are miles apart.

THE LINES FOR WOMEN have changed radically — going longer, fuller, lighter in weight and in a new direction — away from the body.

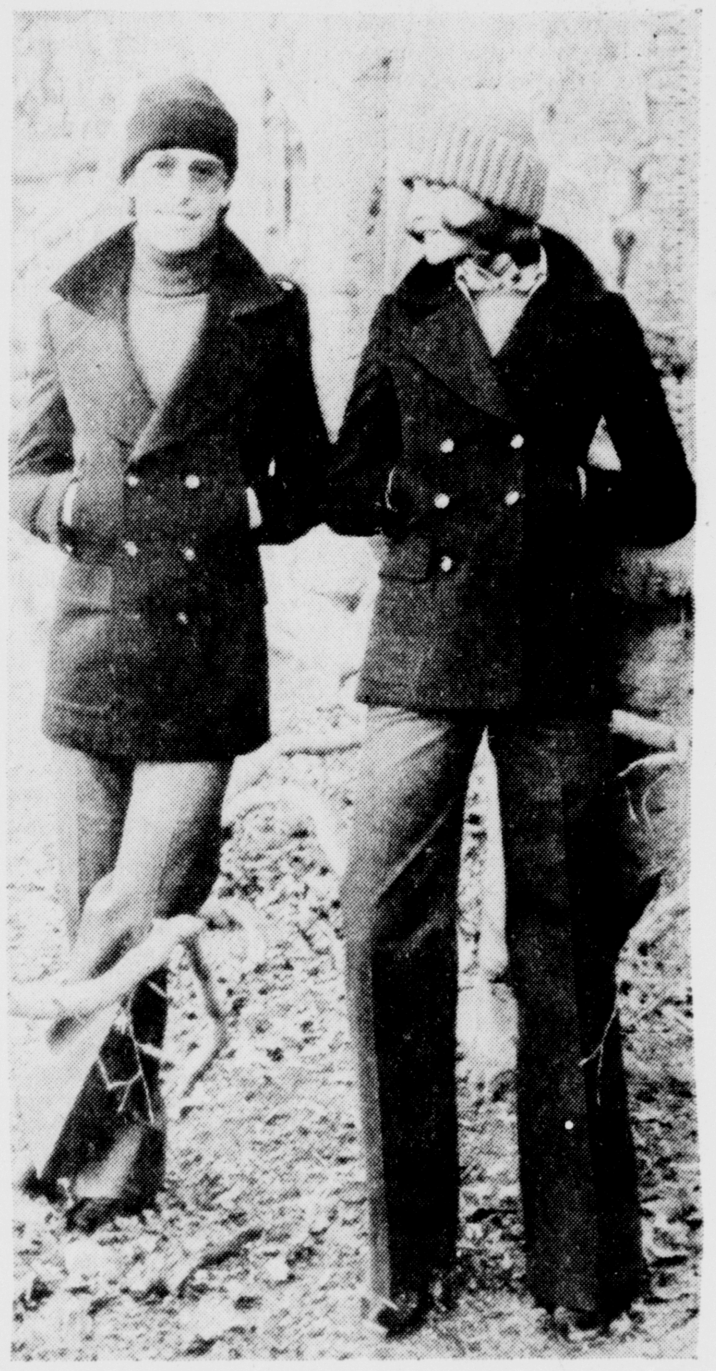
But men's fashions stick to the same silhouette as before. For them, it's the high, tight armhole, the molded waist and the European-style shirt also known as the body shirt for the close way it fits.

The answer to "What's new?" at the Men's Fashion Association (MFA) press weekend recently at Spring Lake, N.J., came down to vests, Norfolk jackets and wing collars with butterfly black ties for formal dinner wear.

SINCE VESTS and belted Norfolk jackets have not exactly been in limbo lately, that leaves wing collars to make the headlines, provided the wing collar gains acceptance. If Vice-President Gerald R. Ford can wear a Gaylord Ravenal Show Boat jacket to his son's wedding, the wing collar with dinner clothes may have a chance at that.

To have the appearance of a gentlemen is, somehow, everything in current menswear — curious at a time when "lady" is considered an opprobrious term. You would not catch a women's fashion designer calling his new line the "lady look." He would know that would be an invitation to bankruptcy.

Tom Fallon, who showed a handsome collection of leather and leather-trimmed coats and suits last month, alluded to how well-turned-out a gentleman would be in his designs. So much so that Robert L. Green, Playboy magazine's fashion director, couldn't resist quipping, "Or even if you're common as dirt."



'COUPLES DRESSING' is still very much a fashion factor, according to leading designers of sportswear for men and women.

Also, for the would-be gentleman, there are chalk-stripe and pin-stripe suits redolent of Wall Street Bankers.

A SECOND TYPE of suit that continues is the body-fit European which comes with either high-tailored shoulders or softer, slopier shoulders. There are deep vents in black or at the sides of the jacket. This suit is aimed at the young or at the with-it mature man who has kept in shape.

For the man whose fall buying will not extend beyond some new shirts and a business suit or two, a three piece suit with a waistcoat should be considered. The vest can match or contrast and some, being reversible, will do both. Earthy colors — russet browns, brick, forest and bottle green, camel and heather mixtures — are in.

Pair Direction

Junior sportswear will be directed in twos this season. The pulled together effect of a big, full skirt with matching top is a signal of new sophistication for the holidays, said Women's Wear Daily.

Music Chest Members To Toast 1974 Season

By MOLLY MARIN

MUSIC CHEST board members and other Marin music lovers will drink a champagne toast to the conclusion of another successful Music Chest season Sunday at the Ross home of Mrs. John A. Lesoine, president of the organization. Mrs. Lesoine has included on her guest list the winners of Music Chest ballet and music scholarships whose names will have been made public during the afternoon concert of Cuban pianist Horacio Gutierrez at the Veterans Memorial Auditorium. Gutierrez' concert is the final one of the 1974 summer series.

Mrs. Herbert S. Salisbury was honored at a family dinner Sunday on the occasion of her 90th birthday. The party was held at her San Rafael residence. She is the widow of the late Herbert S. Salisbury, well-known in Marin as a geologist and for his interest in and mapping of many Indian burial mounds in the county.

Attending the party were her two sisters, Mrs. Harry Striblen of Chicago and Mrs. John Pennell of Independence, Mo.; her three children and their spouses, Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Salisbury of Belmont, Mass., and Mr. and Mrs. Scott Salisbury and Mr. and Mrs. George Wehrheim of San Anselmo. Also attending were her nine grandchildren and four of her eight great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Salisbury was presented with many gifts including a bouquet of her favorite flower, yellow roses, from three nieces who could not attend: Dorothy Dean, Mrs. Jess Brooks and Mrs. Dean Jacob, all of Carthage, Ill.

Her sisters also hosted Mrs. Salisbury at a luncheon Tuesday at the Alta Mira Hotel in Sausalito.

The City of Petaluma hosted a party Sunday at the home of Mayor Helen Putnam to help the Coast Guard celebrate its 184th birthday and to thank members of the Coast Guard Training Center at Two Rock.

Capt. William Kirkley, commander of the training center, said the personnel held their own barbecue Friday for about 800 coast guard and civilian personnel and their families.

FIRST FAMILY — When official photographer Ollie Atkins was called to the family quarters of the White House Wednesday evening to photograph the Nixon family he found it obvious that all three women had been crying. From left are Edward and Tricia Cox, President and Mrs. Nixon and Julie and David Eisenhower.

OLD AND NEW — President Nixon discussed the transition of government with Vice President Gerald Ford yesterday in the Oval Office of the White House. Only hours later the President went on television to address the nation and announced he was resigning the country's highest office.

Seventh Crisis, Watergate, Nixon's Undoing

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The author of the following dispatch covered the activities of Richard M. Nixon when he first was elected to Congress in 1946. He also reported on Nixon's role in breaking the Alger Hiss-Whittaker Chambers "Pumpkin Papers" spy case. He has been an avid Nixon watcher since.)

By SAM FOGG

United Press International

When Richard Milhous Nixon wrote "Six Crises," he could not have foreseen that his greatest crisis lay ahead, a scandal of historic proportions that dragged him from the pinnacle of power and personal popularity and finally destroyed him politically.

Stretching over three decades, Nixon's political career was an amazing pattern of crests and troughs, of triumphs and defeats. Watergate was his nadir —the most precipitous fall from favor of any modern American politician.

From this fall there was no hope of the comeback Nixon had made his trademark in public life. Twice before, he seemed destined for the political scrap heap when he lost his first bid for the presidency in 1960 and then the governorship of California two years later. It was then he delivered the famous post-election line: "You won't have Nixon to kick around any more."

Yet six years later he was elected President and then went on to win a second term by one of the greatest landslides in American political history.

It seems cruel irony that the clumsy Watergate break-in in June, 1972, should have come at a time when Nixon's prospects for re-election were already so bright, promising four more years to achieve world peace and seek the "new American revolution" at home.

But many politicians blame Nixon himself. They feel he could have deflected the entire scandal at the outset merely by declaring he would get to the bottom of the break-in at Democratic National Committee headquarters and deal summarily with anyone in his administration who might be involved.

Nixon did not do this.

Instead, the White House dismissed the break-in as a "third-rate burglary" while Nixon, for more than two years, kept secret the fact that he was an active participant in a cover-up designed to insure that nothing interfered with his re-election.

Money was paid, allegedly to buy the silence of those who burglarized the Watergate. There were investigations of Nixon's federal tax returns, improvements made on his personal properties at taxpayers' expense and his campaign financing. Some of his aides resigned or were fired. Others were indicted, convicted and jailed.

Others still face trial in the cover-up, including H.R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman, the two men in the White House upon whom he depended most, and John N. Mitchell, Nixon's attorney general and briefly director of his 1972 campaign.

The House Judiciary Committee, after six days of nationally televised debate, approved three articles of impeachment against Nixon charging him with abuse of power, obstruction of justice and failure to comply with committee subpoenas. With some Republican members joining in, the panel recommended his conviction by the Senate and removal from office.

For only the second time in U.S. history, a President faced the threat of the ultimate disgrace provided by the Constitution. In the only previous case, Andrew Johnson escaped conviction by a single vote in 1868, finished his term and left office an embittered man. He died a few years later.

The biggest single blow to Nixon's hope of containing the scandals was the Supreme Court's 8-0 ruling that he must surrender 64 White House tapes to the special Watergate prosecutor. Aware that defiance of the Court would mean almost automatic impeachment, Nixon agreed to turn over the tapes.

And with that, he was forced to admit he had discussed the break-in with Haldeman six days after it occurred, and had directed that the FBI be ordered to curb its investigation not only to avoid compromising CIA activities but to conceal the involvement of his reelection campaign committee.

The President conceded he had been wrong. but insisted that what he had done still did not warrant impeachment. The damage, however, was done. His supporters in Congress, including Republicans who defended him most strongly during the Judiciary Committee hearings, defected by the dozens.

Nixon acknowledged that impeachment by the House was a foregone conclusion but vowed to see his ordeal through despite a rising chorus of demands that he resign.

Nixon emerged on the political scene in 1946 as a scarcely noticed House member from California's 12th district after an election in which Republicans won control of Congress for the first time since the days of Herbert Hoover.

In Washington, he was given two relatively unimportant committee assignments. On the House Labor and Education Committee he served with a much-better known freshman — Rep. John F. Kennedy, D-Mass.

It was his post on the House Committee on Un-American Activities that provided Nixon with his chance to move into the limelight.

The committee attracted heavy press attention and liberal criticism for its handling of its anti-Communist hearings. In August, 1948, the Alger Hiss-Whittaker Chambers case surfaced and Nixon faced the first of his crises.

At issue was which of two men was telling the truth: Chambers, a Time magazine editor, who swore that he had known Hiss, a former State Department official, as a Communist party member of an espionage operation in the early New Deal Days; or Hiss who indignantly denied the charge under oath.

At the outset, most committee members believed Hiss, head of the prestigious Carnegie Endowment. But Nixon, helped by a top Washington newsman, the late Bert Andrews, dug into the background of the two men and became convinced Hiss was lying.

He staked his fledgling reputation on that belief and a jury ultimately convicted Hiss of perjury.

Nixon acknowledged in "Six Crises" that the case brought him the national attention that led to his later career. But he also wrote that "it left a residue of hatred and hostility toward me ... among substantial segments of the press and the intellectual community."

His next step up the political ladder was a successful 1950 race for the Senate seat in California against Helen Gahagan Douglas, a staunch New Deal Democrat.

His Senate service was brief and Nixon's star was still ascending when Dwight D. Eisenhower picked him as his vice presidential running-mate in 1952. At that point, the "Checkers" crisis occurred and almost finished off Nixon.

In the midst of the campaign, news stories broke that a group of wealthy Californians had raised $18,235 for a special fund to help underwrite Nixon's expenses as senator. Eisenhower declared his young running-mate would have to come "as clean as a hound's tooth." Some influential Republicans advocated that he get off the ticket.

Nixon responded with a counter-offensive — a technique to became his political hallmark. He quickly arranged a national television appearance and from a Los Angeles studio delivered this defense:

He said he never had been influenced to do special favors for his fund contributors. He listed his assets and bank holdings down to the penny. He emphasized that his wife, Pat, wore only "a respectable Republican cloth coat." He told of receiving a personal gift from an admirer — a black-and-white cocker spaniel puppy which his daughter named Checkers — and which was prominently displayed for television cameras.

It was corny but effective. Eisenhower accepted Nixon's explanation and at Wheeling, W.Va., embraced his vice presidential candidate with the public assertion: "That's my boy."

The Eisenhower-Nixon ticket was elected by landslide proportions in 1952 and again in 1956. There were three main highlights of his eight years in the vice presidency:

In the fall of 1955, Eisenhower suffered a serious heart attack and Nixon was in the limelight as an unofficial "acting President" during Ike's months of convalescence.

In 1958 during a good-will mission to Latin America, Nixon and his wife were threatened physically by a hostile Communist mob in Caracas and drew general praise for meeting the situation with courage and coolness.

In 1959, he and Soviet Premier Nikita Khruschev engaged in their widely publicized "kitchen debate" at a trade fair in Moscow and Nixon emerged as a firm and skillful defender of the free enterprise system.

At 47, Nixon captured the 1960 Republican presidential nomination without difficulty and entered the campaign as favorite over his Democratic rival, John F. Kennedy.

On Nov. 8, 1960, Nixon lost an election for the first time. Kennedy won by an electoral college margin of 303 to 219 but by only 118,550 votes in the actual polling.

In 1962, Nixon's fortunes took a drastic downward turn when he was defeated for the California governorship by incumbent Democrat Edmund G. (Pat) Brown.

Seemingly, Nixon had gone down the political drain but events were in store that would thrust him upward again. Kennedy was assassinated and his successor, Lyndon B. Johnson, scored a landslide triumph over conservative GOP Sen. Barry M. Goldwater in 1964 that left the Republican party shattered and leaderless.

By 1965, a less confident but more mature Nixon tentatively returned to the public scene. In the hinterlands, he spoke at local party meetings in school gyms attended by 40 or 50 people. In the mid-term elections of 1966, he was in full swing, campaigning on behalf of congressional candidates in 82 districts.

The Republicans picked up 47 House seats and Nixon won the gratitude of GOP leaders in almost every area of the country.

What had been a brushfire operation in Vietnam became a full-scale war that grew increasingly unpopular. It was responsible for Johnson's decision early in 1968 that he would not run again for the presidency.

The leading active Republican, Michigan Gov. George Romney, blundered by saying he had been "brainwashed" on Vietnam and took himself out of contention even before the New Hampshire primary.

Another rival, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, wound up announcing himself not a candidate, then became a candidate, and succeeded in alienating a fellow governor from Maryland, Spiro T. Agnew.

With no active opposition, Nixon shed his loser's image in the primaries, particularly in Oregon against California Gov. Ronald Reagan. At the Miami Beach convention, he thwarted a Rockefeller-Reagan bid to stop him and won the nomination on the first ballot.

On Nov. 5, 1968, Richard M. Nixon was elected President of the United States by a heavy electoral college majority but with only 43.4 per cent of the popular vote.

In year-end Gallup Polls for 1970 and 1971, Nixon was listed as the man most admired by the American people. His performance as President registered nearly 70 per cent approval.

On Nov. 7, 1972, Nixon and Agnew swept to re-election on a tidal wave of votes that carried 49 states and won 60.7 per cent of the total vote. Nixon overwhelmed Democrat George S. McGovern by nearly 18 million votes —the greatest in electoral history —and had the endorsement of 47,167,319 Americans.

Even though the Republicans failed to make significant gains in Congress and had suffered setbacks at the governorship level, Nixon in his final election contest had reached his pinnacle of popularity and authority.

It enabled him — almost with impunity — to bomb Hanoi and mine Haiphong in an effort to force North Vietnam to yield. It let him undertake sweeping reorganization of the executive branch of the government and positioned him for an anticipated series of fights with the Democratic Congress.

But then began the astonishing events known as Watergate — and Nixon's greatest crisis was upon him.

The arrest of seven men for the burglary and bugging of Democratic National Headquarters in the plush Watergate apartment complex on June 17, 1972, had stirred relatively little public interest during the election year.

The White House discounted the break-in. News accounts that the trail led to the Committee to Re-Elect the President and to the White House itself drew denials and an assertion by Nixon that no one presently on his staff was involved.

The Watergate trial before U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica produced little sensational testimony, as five of the seven defendants pleaded guilty and two others, James McCord and G. Gordon Liddy, were convicted by a jury.

A special seven-man Senate investigating committee headed by Sen. Sam J. Ervin had been set up, but seemed to pose no more problems than previous random congressional inquiries that had disclosed nothing too damaging.

On sentencing day, March 23, 1973, Sirica announced McCord had written him a letter charging the trial had been marked by perjury, pressure and cover-up attempts by higher-ups.

On April 17, Nixon announced he had instituted a new White House investigation of Watergate on March 21 because of "serious charges which came to my attention." He acknowledged there had been "major developments" in the case.

Then like a series of depth charges, event exploded after event.

The President's two closest White House advisers, Haldeman and Ehrlichman, resigned; White House Counsel John W. Dean III was fired; Attorney General Richard M. Kleindienst quit.

Two former cabinet members and top Nixon campaign leaders, John N. Mitchell and Maurice Stans, were indicted on charges of bribery and perjury in connection with an illegal campaign contribution. They were acquitted.

Dean, who had been assigned to supervise the original White House investigation, swore under oath before the Senate committee and a national television audience that Nixon was aware of the Watergate cover-up efforts by his aides.

The White House tapes came to light and Nixon refused to give them up under subpoena either to a special Watergate grand jury or the Senate panel. Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox was fired. Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson quit, and his deputy, William Ruckelshaus, also was dismissed in what was dubbed "The Saturday Night Massacre."

Spiro T. Agnew pleaded no contest to federal charges of income tax evasion involving payments from contractors while governor of Maryland. He resigned as vice president.

A beleaguered Nixon, faced with a possible historic confrontation in the Supreme Court, agreed to turn over the White House tapes to Sirica but his attorneys said that two of them never existed, and it was discovered an 18-½ minute portion of a third had been erased.

The House authorized its Judiciary Committee to consider possible impeachment of the President. There were blunt public demands that Nixon resign once Agnew's successor, Rep. Gerald R. Ford, was confirmed.

Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski disclosed that Haldeman, Ehrlichman, Mitchell, Charles Colson and three other Nixon aides had been indicted in the cover-up.

Even before the Watergate crisis had snowballed to these proportions, a poll showed that only 9 per cent of the people felt Nixon was being "frank and honest," and 63 per cent believed he had withheld information about the case.

In May, 1973, only 14 per cent of those polled said he should resign and 75 per cent opposed. By November, 43 per cent favored his resignation with only 47 per cent opposed and Nixon's approval rating as President had plummeted to 27 per cent.

In that same month, Nixon launched "Operation Candor" in an effort to restore public confidence in his shaken presidency.

He insisted he would not resign. He promised Republic congressmen he would satisfactorily answer all questions about Watergate along with charges that he had used a loophole to escape all but minimal income taxes and severe criticism on government money spent on his Florida and California homes.

The President also told a televised news conference with a group of managing editors: "I am not a crook." But a poll conducted just days before showed that 44 per cent of those questioned believed that Watergate would show Nixon had violated the law and 46 per cent deemed him a man not of high integrity.

A congressional committee and the Internal Revenue Service ruled that his income tax deductions had been illegal, and the IRS sent him a bill for more than $500,000 in back taxes and penalties. Nixon said he would pay, but that it would wipe out his assets.

Nixon's problems burgeoned. Charges were leveled that the President was involved in a controversial decision to raise milk price support levels, shortly after $2 million was pledged to his re-election campaign by dairy cooperatives.

It was disclosed that International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. had offered $400,000 cash to help underwrite the 1972 Republican National Convention if it were held in San Diego. The offer came a short time after the administration's controversial decision to drop an antitrust suit against the giant conglomerate.

Finally, there were the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment hearings, the Supreme Court order to surrender the tapes and Nixon's concession that he had been in on the cover-up.

The alternatives seemed clear: resign or be ousted.

And so, just when Nixon should have been basking in the glory of his greatest triumphs, he was fighting for his political life.

Watergate — his seventh crisis — was his undoing.

CHINA TRIUMPH — President Nixon and Chinese Premier Chou En-lai toasted each other during Nixon's historic visit to China in February of 1972.

EARLY TRIUMPH — Richard M. Nixon was only 39 years old when he was chosen as the running mate of Dwight D. Eisenhower and the two scored back-to-back presidential victories in 1952 and 1956.

THOUGH THEY WORRY ABOUT COUNTRY

Young Americans Are Optimistic

A majority of young people are concerned about the future of the country but are inclined to be optimistic about their own personal future, according to a new survey of Americans between the ages of 14 to 25.

The study conducted for the Institute of Life Insurance found that despite misgivings about the future of the country expressed by 75 per cent of the young people, 7 out of 10 of those surveyed indicated they felt their own prospects were good.

According to the Institute's Director of Research, Dr. Harold Edrich, the disparity between confidence about one's personal future and the country's future reflects a pattern observed previously. "It appears, however," he says, "that the gap is wider now than at any time in the recent past."

The survey also found that the degree of personal optimism escalates with age while at the same time concern about the county's future lessens. The most likely to register a strong vote of confidence in their own future were those in the oldest group surveyed — youths between 22 and 25 years of age. Of these, 74 per cent expressed personal optimism. The least confident were those in the youngest age category — under 17 years of age. Only 67 per cent indicated they were hopeful about their personal situation.

Referring to a Gallup poll which recently indicated that 8 out of 10 adults retain confidence in the future of this country, Dr. Edrich noted that the philsophical split between age groups as well as generations may be due "to their differing perspectives on the nation's ability to survive social, economic and political problems.

"A wider exposure to a variety of national crises in their lifetime experience has prepared the older segments of the population to view national problems with more tolerance. Among those younger, however, optimism about the state of the country tends to fluctuate more with current events."

"Nevertheless," he adds, "A majority of the next generation of leaders are confident about their own personal future and this is a positive sign for the society's future."

The survey also found that most personally optimistic were young people living in the North Central region of the country (76 per cent). The least confident about their future were Southerners (64 per cent).

The most concerned about the country's future, according to the survey, were Northeasterners (82 per cent). Least worried were those living in the North Central region (70 per cent).

There were also attitudinal differences based on sex. Males expressed more optimism about their future than females (73 per cent to 67 per cent). Women were also more worried than men about the country's future (79 per cent to 71 per cent).

Unisex Idea Is Still Around But Goes Under New Name

By PHYLLIS FELDKAMP
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

It's a sporty concept for pairs who like to match up in navy pea jackets and gray flannel trousers for casual occasions and to get into related dinner suits (his would have pants, hers a long wrap skirt) for "do-dress" evenings.

The fashion community evidently sees a future for clothes of this sort. Three designers (Ralph Lauren, Calvin Klein and Bill Kaiserman of Rafael) whose specialty is creating sportswear for both men and women have been voted Coty American Fashion Critics' awards for 1974.

IT IS POSSIBLE to make a case for certain likenesses in the new fall styles for men and women if you look at the whole fashion picture. The moods for both sexes are comfortable and easygoing — no pinched-in waists or stiff construction.

Equal attention is paid to all the telling details — the right belt, the subtle combination of textures or patterns and the thoughtful head-to-toe composition of an entire outfit. The hit-or-miss look is out this year for both men and women.

He and she are offered Donegal tweeds, tattersall checks, windowpane plaids, camel hair, cordury and trench coats or capes that reverse from flannel or tweed to waterproof poplin. Sweaters in bold geometrics and chessboard checks, in bulky yarns with deep shawl collars, in space-knit stripes, are in for both males and females.

But here the similarities end. The point is reached when you have to say that essentially fall fashions for men and for women are miles apart.

THE LINES FOR WOMEN have changed radically — going longer, fuller, lighter in weight and in a new direction — away from the body.

But men's fashions stick to the same silhouette as before. For them, it's the high, tight armhole, the molded waist and the European-style shirt also known as the body shirt for the close way it fits.

The answer to "What's new?" at the Men's Fashion Association (MFA) press weekend recently at Spring Lake, N.J., came down to vests, Norfolk jackets and wing collars with butterfly black ties for formal dinner wear.

SINCE VESTS and belted Norfolk jackets have not exactly been in limbo lately, that leaves wing collars to make the headlines, provided the wing collar gains acceptance. If Vice-President Gerald R. Ford can wear a Gaylord Ravenal Show Boat jacket to his son's wedding, the wing collar with dinner clothes may have a chance at that.

To have the appearance of a gentlemen is, somehow, everything in current menswear — curious at a time when "lady" is considered an opprobrious term. You would not catch a women's fashion designer calling his new line the "lady look." He would know that would be an invitation to bankruptcy.

Tom Fallon, who showed a handsome collection of leather and leather-trimmed coats and suits last month, alluded to how well-turned-out a gentleman would be in his designs. So much so that Robert L. Green, Playboy magazine's fashion director, couldn't resist quipping, "Or even if you're common as dirt."

'COUPLES DRESSING' is still very much a fashion factor, according to leading designers of sportswear for men and women.

Also, for the would-be gentleman, there are chalk-stripe and pin-stripe suits redolent of Wall Street Bankers.

A SECOND TYPE of suit that continues is the body-fit European which comes with either high-tailored shoulders or softer, slopier shoulders. There are deep vents in black or at the sides of the jacket. This suit is aimed at the young or at the with-it mature man who has kept in shape.

For the man whose fall buying will not extend beyond some new shirts and a business suit or two, a three piece suit with a waistcoat should be considered. The vest can match or contrast and some, being reversible, will do both. Earthy colors — russet browns, brick, forest and bottle green, camel and heather mixtures — are in.

Pair Direction

Junior sportswear will be directed in twos this season. The pulled together effect of a big, full skirt with matching top is a signal of new sophistication for the holidays, said Women's Wear Daily.

FOCUSING THE 35mm camera is photographer Mimi Jacobs of Kent Woodlands. In just three years of work, she has gathered enough expertise to receive enthusiastic approval from photographers Ansel Adams and Imogene Cunningham.

Marin Photographer Finds Big Fascination In Faces

By KAREN PETERSON

Faces have always intrigued Mimi Jacobs. So three years ago she picked up a camera, started reading about photography and committed herself to putting down on film something of the soul.

Her aim as a photographer is to "show something of the inner self of the subject."

Not content to sit back with her new found avocation, Mrs. Jacobs has a long-term project, documenting Bay Area artists — "people of social concern," she said. "People who care about others."

FROM A LIST OF 50, Mrs. Jacobs has photographed and interviewed 18. Her photographic compositions are simple. "I let my subject's face and eyes especially tell his story," she said. "I think I can look into a person's face and know a little about what is going on" inside.

In a studio in the hills of Kent Woodlands and lit by wall-to-ceiling windows, Mrs. Jacobs displays some of her craft. With pride she also shows a postcard from Arizona, a request by Ansel Adams to use her portrait of him in future publicity.

Her list of subjects include social philosopher Erik Hoffer and Imogene Cunningham, a prize-winning photographer still active in her 90s. It was "Imogene who was reponsible for my really being a photographer at all," said Mrs. Jacobs of the photographer who said she would do "everything I can to help you."

NOW IN HER EARLY 60'S, Mrs. Jacobs believes her enthusiasm for photography "came at a time in my life that I probably needed something exciting." She feels that she might have been better if she'd started years ago, but also thinks that jumping in now saved her from seeing her work as "an old story." "Now it's just fun," said the petite former sculpturess. Twenty years ago, Mrs. Jacobs was one of thousands to be impressed by the Family of Man photography exhibit. "I was terribly excited by it," she said.

Interest soon led to determination. Mrs. Jacobs is self-taught, first studying the Time/Life photography series, going to libraries to read about techniques and "gradually accumulating a library" of photography books, she said.

SHE STUDIED at a workshop in Tiburon; studied and critiqued with Sister Adelle, another accomplished Marin photographer, and studied lighting in a University of California at Berkeley extension class.

The artists she has contacted for her documentary have been highly responsive, said Mrs. Jacobs, adding that "no one seems to have a photograph" of themselves.

Out of the artists she has photographed, there was only one who wasn't satisfied, she said — a gratifying compliment to the woman who still refers to herself as "a novice."

HER SUBJECTS are photographed in her spacious home. She is a photographic purist in that she tries to use only available light rather than artifical, strobe lighting. Available light, she believes, is "more natural . . . softer, kinder."

To produce a good photograph, Mrs. Jacobs believes the photographer must make the subjects "unaware of the camera." During her interviews, which have been published in a

MUSIC CHEST board members and other Marin music lovers will drink a champagne toast to the conclusion of another successful Music Chest season Sunday at the Ross home of Mrs. John A. Lesoine, president of the organization. Mrs. Lesoine has included on her guest list the winners of Music Chest ballet and music scholarships whose names will have been made public during the afternoon concert of Cuban pianist Horacio Gutierrez at the Veterans Memorial Auditorium. Gutierrez' concert is the final one of the 1974 summer series.

Mrs. Herbert S. Salisbury was honored at a family dinner Sunday on the occasion of her 90th birthday. The party was held at her San Rafael residence. She is the widow of the late Herbert S. Attending the party were her two sisters, Mrs. Harry Striblen of Chicago and Mrs. John Pennell of Independence, Mo.; her three children and their spouses, Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Salisbury of Belmont, Mass., and Mr. and Mrs. Scott Salisbury and Mr. and Mrs. George Wehrheim of San Anselmo. Also attending were her nine grandchildren and four of her eight great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Salisbury was presented with many gifts including a bouquet of her favorite flower, yellow roses, from three nieces who could not attend: Dorothy Dean, Mrs. Jess Brooks and Mrs. Dean Jacob, all of Carthage, Ill.

Her sisters also hosted Mrs. Salisbury at a luncheon Tuesday at the Alta Mira Hotel in Sausalito.

The City of Petaluma hosted a party Sunday at the home of Mayor Helen Putnam to help the Coast Guard celebrate its 184th birthday and to thank members of the Coast Guard Training Center at Two Rock.

Capt. William Kirkley, commander of the training center, said the personnel held their own barbecue Friday for about 800 coast guard and civilian personnel and their families.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Maybe It's Time For Waves Instead Of Peace Offerings

DEAR HELEN:

We're very close next-door neighbors. Our kids get along great, the two husbands are best friends and we wives have shared morning coffee for more than five years.

Both men are wonderful providers but my husband has always had affairs with women. Since he'd never leave me, I accept them.

Another neighbor told me she saw my husband sneaking into this woman's side door when her husband was off working his swing shift. After this happened several times (my husband told me he was at meetings), I asked my friend pointblank, over coffee, and she didn't deny it. I wish I'd just pretended not to know as I don't want o break up the men's friendships or separate the kids. But how do I act when my husband and his girlfriend know I know?

DEAR NOT:

To ipecac in her morning coffee, perhaps?

Seriously, I'd warn loverboy and his great and good neighbor that it's almost showdown time, what with several people threatening to reveal the affair to the cuckolded husband.

If that doesn't cool it, well, isn't it time you made waves, not peace? — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Was it in your column long ago I read about a shoe exchange for people who need just one shoe, such as amputees; or people who have foot problems? Because of a birth defect, my left foot and leg are smaller than the right. I must buy two pairs of shoes each time and could give the odd ones to the exchange if I had the address. Could you print it? — SMALL FOOT

DEAR S.F.:

"Helen's Shoe Service," Route 4, Red Wing, Minnesota, 55066, is operated by Helen Langhans, who says her non-profit business is to "locate your sole mate . . . and it's rewarding in every way except financially."

Send her a stamped, self-addressed envelope (no shoes please), listing your preferences or what you have to offer others. You will be notified when she finds a "match" for you. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Responding to "Shorty" who wonders if he dare marry a taller girl, I've been married almost three years to a man who is not quite 5 feet 2. I'm 5 feet 5. I'm 20, he's 24.

Joe has gotten kidded all his life. I get teased too, like, "How do you like bending down to kiss your husband?"

My husband may be short but he is taller than many six-footers I know and I'd rather be married to him than two John Waynes rolled into one.

If this girl likes you, Shorty, as she obviously does, hang in there and stop worrying. Height doesn't make a man!

By the way, my guy and I are expecting our first baby this month. He even gets kidded about that: "Hey, Joe, didn't know you had it in you!" — JAMIE

Got a problem? An adult subject for discussion? You can talk it over in her column if you write to Helen Bottel, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

weekly Marin paper, Mrs. Jacobs says she "tries to interest my subject with questions I feel would be provocative "to him." While he's thinking, she takes the picture.

MRS. JACOBS ADMITS that she "has no idea "what she'll do with the documentary when it is completed, but she is already looking into the future. Hands are very important, she adds, and she wants to spend some time in the artists' studios. "Another challenge," she smiles.

Do photographers consider themselves artists? While Mrs. Jacobs believes "it's a great art when executed by an Ansel Adams, Edward Weston and, of course, Imogene Cunningham," she likes to recall a statement by Weston.

When Weston noticed the term artist on a galley proof of a story about him, he circled the word and said, "Cut or change to photographer, of which title I am very proud."

Dog Dormitory Could Use Paper

The dormitory of puppy litters at Guide Dogs for the Blind in San Rafael has just about everything a newborn dog could ask for, except perhaps, enough shredded newspaper to line his cage.

Mozelle Zimmer, who is in chrge of puppy tester volunteers, has put out a request for old newspapers which will then be shredded for the cages. There's a lack of newspapers donated lately, she said, and a great need at Guide Dogs since the cages must be re-papered every day.

ALL THOSE CUTS OF MEAT will no longer be a mystery to the supermarket shopper; a nationwide program of uniform meat labeling is on the way!

Symphony Group Planning Benefit In San Francisco

The 35-member Marin League of the San Francisco Symphony Foundation is already busy with arrangements to co-sponsor the preview benefit Sept. 27 that will officially open the $19 million flagship Liberty House store in downtown San Francisco.

Proceeds of the "Aloha Preview and Royal Hawaii Party" will go to the symphony foundation.

Three thousand Northern California guests will attend the opening party. Each of the six floors of the new store will feature live entertainment by Hawaiian entertainers.

Twice during the evening a show of original gowns worn for 200 years by Hawaii royalty will be modeled by island women, each resembling the historic person she represents. Also included will be a "Holiday 74" fashion show.

Mrs. Kenneth Loskot of Kentfield is the Marin League benefit chairman. Reservation chairmen are Mmes. Gerald J. Elbert of Tiburon, president of the league, Arthur Schilder of Novato and Mrs. Loskot.

MEAT IDENTIFICATION

Misleading Labels Removed

By MARTIN SKALA
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

You don't have to be a home economics major to sort your way through the maze of fresh-meat labels at the local supermarket.

That is the message food chains are trying to convey to consumers as they gear up for a nationwide program of uniform meat labeling.

WIDESPREAD ADOPTION of a new meat identity code, eliminating some 700 popular but often misleading names for fresh cuts of meat, is expected to reduce consumer confusion and help thousands of families stretch their food budgets, says David H. Stroud, president of the National Live Stock and Meat Board.

Such fanciful terms as "his and hers," "penthouse" and "horseshoe," each describing a simple cut of round beef, will largely disappear from meat counters, as a result of the industrywide cooperation to standardize meat terms.

The standardization effort boils down more than 1,000 retail meat names into a group of 300 standard cuts, with each label designating the species (beef, lamb, veal, pork), the wholesale cut (chuck, loin) and the common retail name of the cut (roast, chops.).

TO BE CORRECTLY labeled, ground beef — the meat mainstay of most American diets — must contain the lean-to-fat ratio, expressed as a percentage. The new standards specify that ground beef should be a minimum of 70 per cent lean meat, with no trimmings of pork or veal added.

Reaction to the meat board's program, which was launched some months ago after considerable prodding from consumer groups, is "extremely favorable," Stroud reports. Before the end of the year he expects most large grocery chains to employ the uniform label descriptions, either voluntarily or because of state requirements.

Many consumer-protection officials are enthusiastic about the labeling guidelines and some states, including California, Minnesota and Ohio, have made them mandatory for all retailers. Arizona, Pennsylvania and Rhode Island have taken over the industry's program on a voluntary basis and state officials are urging all food stores to comply with the guidelines.

MANY SUPERMARKETS are combining a change in labeling practices with a stepped-up consumer-education effort. Several million meat-board booklets describing the new identification system, together with recommended cooking methods, have been distributed free.

Besides reaping consumer good will, some stores report that customers are buying a greater variety of meat cuts because they are better informed. Many more affluent consumers are buying cuts of meat they once avoided in the mistaken belief that they were from the least desirable parts of the carcass.

WHILE APPLAUDING the industry's own self-regulatory efforts, consumer advocates stress the importance of tough enforcement of meat-labeling laws.

A recent inspection of 71 food stores in 33 cities by the New Jersey Department of Consumer Affairs turned up some 4,000 meat labeling violations. Most of them were corrected within 24 hours, however, and did not involve deliberate attempts to deceive consumers.

Sex Talk Should Be Part Of Maturation Lectures

By SANDRA HAGGERTY
(Distributed by Los Angeles Times Syndicate)

Last spring my 11-year-old daughter and I attended the public school's "maturation" program. In a two-hour session the word sex was never mentioned. Kendall shrugged her shoulders and whispered, "I guess Utahans don't use the word sex in their vocabularies."

But surely they know about it (sex) as evidenced by large families and increasing population.

Sex education programs may differ according to locality, but obviously sex is pretty much the same for everyone, everywhere.

CURRENTLY, VD (the modern plague) is at epidemic levels in this country. It is particularly prevalent among teeny boppers who very likely have been exposed to "maturation" programs which gave them no more vital information than a complimentary sanitary napkin and a flower-covered booklet showing a diagram of the female reproductive organs. (Boys receive a diagram of the male reproductive organs and vague information about seminal emissions.) Of the estimated 7,000 new cases of VD contracted every day, more than 1,700 are among teen-agers.

There is a popular misconception that our young people are better informed than previous generations. This simply is not so. Youngsters must be given accurate, straightforward and honest information about sex in the home and in the schools.

Parents must accept the fact that there is an earlier participation in sexual activity by today's young. (Doctors have recorded VD cases in 10 and 11-year-olds.) Young people must be educated about the "peripheral benefits" (babies and VD) of sexual activity. Equally important, they must have information which will help them place their sexuality in proper perspective to their total being.

BLACK PARENTS have an added dimension in dispensing sex information to their children. Many wonder how they should deal with the Black Sexuality Myth which is "alive and well" in this country.

Even though syphilis and gonorrhea are the major VD culprits, there are a number of other sexually related medical problems that must be illuminated. Urinary tract infection, primarily cystitis, is one. It occurs mostly in women between puberty and age 45. It is commonly treated with a sulfa drug.

Of importance to black people is the fact that 10 per cent to 14 per cent of American blacks have an inherited deficiency of a blood enzyme called glucose-6-phosphate-dehydrogenase (G6PD). In such people, sulfa drugs cause a serious form of hemolytic anemia, a disease in which the red blood cells burst and die. Sulfa-induced hemolytic anemia can be fatal. As a precaution, a test for this deficiency should be conducted before the administration of sulfa drugs. Black youngsters should have this information presented to them.

Sex is a part of the "maturation" process and VD is a part of the sexual process. Both can be dealt with satisfactorily. The answer lies in illumination and education.

Two Senators Don't Like Belt Buzzers

By LUCIA MOUAT
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

WASHINGTON — You slide into the driver's seat of your 1974 car and try to turn the ignition key. Nothing. You cannot even drive out of the driveway until you fasten that seat belt.

Later when you stop at a gas station and unbuckle the belt-harness to reach for your wallet, a buzzer reminds you that you're not strapped in.

Not that the two frown on seat belts. Both say they think motorists should wear them. What they don't like is the denial of any freedom of choice in an area where the motorist's own personal safety is all that's at stake — not that of another driver.

Senator Buckley, who likens the buzzer sound to that of chalk squeaking across a blackboard, terms the mandatory buckle requirements "a blatant example of bureaucratic idiocy."

Backing up their views with action, the New York and Missouri senators are sponsoring a bill which would make either or both the buzzer and the ignition interlock optional instead of mandatory equipment.

They plan to tack it onto a public works bill due to come up on the Senate floor in a week or two.

So far, Senators Buckley and Eagleton have nine cosponsors for their bill and a growing pile of largely supportive mail. They estimate the cost of the interlock and buzzer — if Congress deems that the devices be optional — at about $50.

A spokesman for the American Automobile Association (AAA) told the Monitor that more studies were needed before considering any such legislation. While the AAA has always recommended voluntary, not compulstory, use of seat belts, ignition interlock definitely had "some merits" and has increased belt-harness use significantly, the spokesman said.

It has long been known that, despite increasing government pressure over the last decade, motorists have not taken to seat belts to the degree which safety advocates had hoped.

In the face of what auto-safety experts regard as compelling reasons — they say 10,000 to 20,000 more lives could be saved each year if all drivers and passengers would buckle up — many motorists have shown they are willing to go to some lengths to avoid being strapped in.

A recent study done for the nongovernmental Insurance Institute for Highway Safety indicates 41 percent of the owners of '74 cars have devised ways to get around the warning system and ignition interlock without wearing the belt-harness.

A 1973 Gallup Poll estimated that 30 percent of all motorists wear seat belts. Those with college educations and Westerners were most prone to do so.

Though compliance statistics are not very encouraging, belt proponents remain hopeful that in time all motorists will see the wisdom of bukcling up. American Safety Belt Council president Charles H. Pulley has described belt usage as mainly a matter of "habit."

However, over the years the once polite invitation to wear seat belts for one's own safety has been shifting toward a command performance. It is that trend to which the two senators object.

Ten years ago the government first required at least two front lap belts be installed on all new cars. Now buckling is linked to buzzers and ignitions. There is a strong move under way to get states to make belt use mandatory and levy a fine on motorists who fail to comply.

MUSIC REVIEW

'Consumate Artistry' Marks Musicians' Recital Of Sonatas

By SUSAN McCLEES BLACK

Consumate artistry was the point of departure last night at the Forest Meadows Center of the Arts festival in the sonata recital of violinist Leonard Sorkin and pianist James Tocco.

Tocco, a young man and winner of the 1973 Munich International Music Competition, and Sorkin, first violinist of the Fine Arts Quartet which he founded in Wisconsin, were a beautifully matched duo who delivered a virtually flawless performance of the three Brahms sonatas for violin and piano: Sonata in G Major, op. 78, Sonata in A Major, op. 100, and Sonata in D Minor, op. 108.

Sonatas give the performers no place to hide and the first sonata, in G, established that Sorkin and Tocco thrive on this kind of exposed playing. Sorkin's broad phrases and rich vibrato brought out the majesty of this sonata. Tocco's technique spanned a diverse and sensitive range of expression.

The second sonata, in A, gave a wider, more varied look at their capabilities. The first movement was a full, controlled allegro. The second movement was an enchanting adagio followed by a light scherzo that had some delightful passages contrasting a relatively legato violin with a capricious pattering piano. The last movement was a very satisfying allegretto grazioso.

The last sonata, in D minor, while not written for technical display, works through a variety of moods in its four movements and afforded the audience further perspectives of the performers. Having sustained a sparkling performance thus far, they played through this piece in a crescendo of energy climaxing with an exacting third movement containing some fast paced exchanges between performers and a demanding and vibrant fourth that gave a smashing finish to the program. The ensemble was marvelous, precise yet flexible.

At the conclusion of the performance, the audience gave Sorkin and Tocco a standing ovation. The performers responded with an encore of a Brahms scherzo that had a pervading first theme consisting of an alternating duple and triple pluse. It was a final treat in a rewarding evening.

Concluding special events in the festival are:

Today at 7:30 p.m. in Angelico Hall — Dance concert given by the participants of the craft of choreography conference.

800 Die In Flood

DACCA (UPI) — Nearly 800 persons are officially listed as dead in the worst floods to hit Bangladesh in 20 years with nearly two-thirds of the nation affected by the rising waters. Unofficial estimates put the toll between 1,500 and 3,000.

Break-In Guard Wants Honesty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The man who discovered the Watergate break-in says no one, not even a president, is exempt from honesty.

Frank Wills, now unemployed, was the security guard at the Watergate office building the early morning of June 17, 1972. He discovered tape on a door lock and called police.

Speaking through a friend yesterday, Wills said:

"No position is too high —if you are wrong, you are wrong, especially if you are elected by a majority of the U.S. citizens and especially when they elect you to be sincere, honest and forthright."

Phone Calls Drop While Nixon Talks

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Pacific Telephone Co. reported last night that calls originating in California dropped 97 ¾ per cent during President Nixon's 15-minute resignation speech.

But after the speech there was a 220 per cent increase in calls with most going to Washington, presumably to the White House and congressional offices.

Cotati Has Planning Director

The City of Cotati's first full time planning director will start work Monday, City Mgr. Robert A. Switzer said yesterday.

Mrs. Boehlje, 26, will receive $1,285 a month in the new post, Switzer said. Mark Thysen, who has been Cotati's city planner but not planning director, will go on part-time status at his own request, Switzer said.

Mrs. Boehlje is leaving a city planning post in Napa for her new job. She is a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley, with a master's degree in planning.

She and her husband plan to move to Petaluma in the near future. They have no children.

Milk Hearing Set

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — District Judge Tom Blackwell has ordered a hearing Oct. 1 to consider the state's request for a temporary injunction banning Associated Milk Producers Inc. from price fixing, illegal restraints of trade and unlawful kickbacks.

San Rafael Schools Tax Vote Possible

The San Rafael Board of Education, forced to dip into reserve funds to finance a $13 million budget for 1974-75, may place a tax increase measure on the ballot next spring, the city schools administration said yesterday.

Supt. Donald Leisey, saying he is not "totally optimistic" about passage of such a measure, said the board may have to ballot it anyway.

"It's a real possibility," he said, adding he did not know how much of an increase in tax revenues is needed to ease the school system's financial woes.

The board, confronted with the propsect of a tax election Tuesday, made no comment on the matter but instructed Leisey to exercise "strict budget controls" to reduce deficit spending.

The district's $13,160,928 budget will require spending $911,620 of the $1,447,804 reserve fund, according to the superintendent.

Expenditures are up 13 per cent while income has remained about the same, he explained.

He said the board must decide next fall whether or not to present a tax measure to voters to finance the 1975-76 spending program. Another alternative, he said, is "drastically reducing" the education program through staff cuts, among other things.

Eighty-five per cent of the $13 million budget goes for salaries and fringe benefits, he said.

Bar Group Head Sees Challenge

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Robert G. Begam, new vice president of the Association of Trial Lawyers of America, asserts that the entire legal profession is on trial before the court of public opinion because of Watergate.

"Never before in the history of our profession have we been so challenged and in such broad disrepute," the Phoenix, Ariz., attorney said yesterday at the association's annual convention.

Begam pointed out that just about all those indicted for Watergate were lawyers.

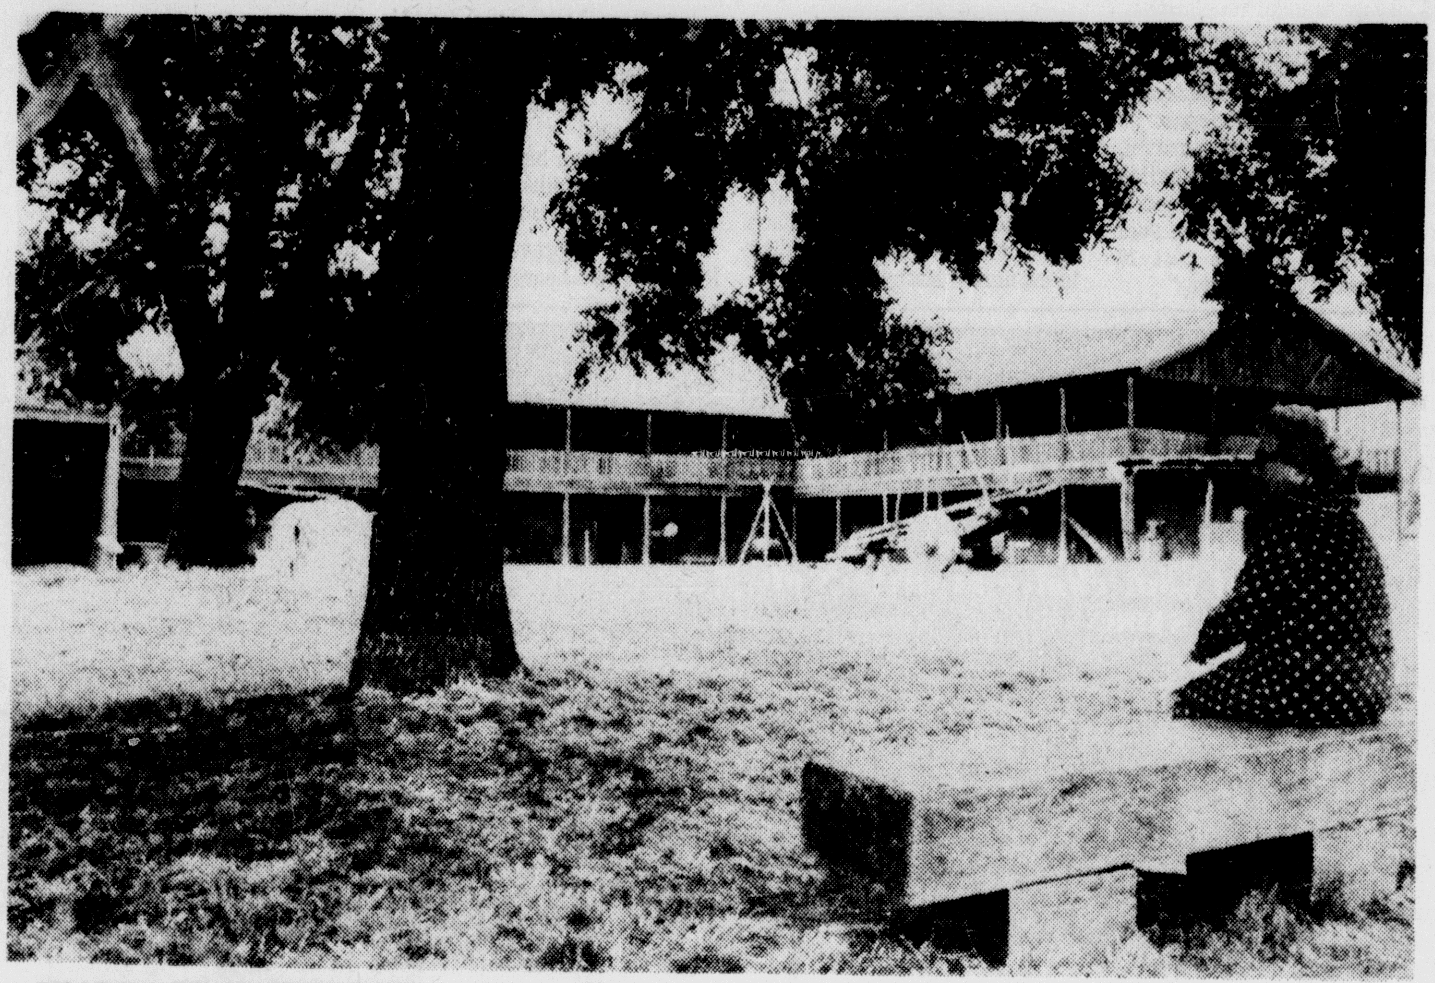
PETALUMA ADOBE

A Look At Rugged Ranch Life

By REBECCA LARSEN



SHADES OF YESTERDAY — Bernice Reed of Novato relaxes beneath a shady tree as she contemplates a bit of Old California, the Petaluma Adobe of General Mariano Vallejo. Built in the 1830s, the structure was restored in the 1950s and now is both a state park and a national historical landmark.

The Petaluma Adobe, once headquarters for the 66,000-acre ranch of General Mariano Vallejo, provides a glimpse of what life was like on the rugged ranches of early California.

Just 25 miles from San Rafael, the adobe is a good place for a picnic stop on the way to another destination or for a half-day visit.

From Highway 101, a short drive along a dusty rural road leads to the adobe, a large, mud brick building, surrounded by rolling grassland.

A few miles away are sprawling Petaluma subdivisions and the busy highway but the immediate vicinity is quiet farmland. So it's easy to squint at the horizon, ignore a few utility towers and imagine what the adobe was like in its heyday.

After parking, visitors cross a tiny bridge over a dried up creek and climb a small rise to the sunny knoll where the adobe stands overlooking the Petaluma Valley.

There is a sprinkling of trees around the building and a few grape vines, grown from cuttings from plants brought to California by Spanish pioneers.

The brown adobe is a massive, two-story U-shaped structure, not an architectural masterpiece but impressive nonetheless.

Although the building never was completely finished, it was once twice as large as today and formed a square around an inner courtyard. In the remaining section, which has been partly restored, about 85 per cent of the brick walls and 20 per cent of the woodwork are original.

Visitors probably will marvel that so many of the adobe's original pressed mud bricks, which can be scratched with a fingernail, have managed to survive more than a century of earthquakes, rainfall and human abuse.

The adobe was once the main center for Rancho Petaluma, the farming empire granted to General Vallejo in 1934 by the Mexican government. He began building the adobe two years later.

Vallejo was first the commandant of the Presidio of San Francisco and later was commandant and director of colonization of Northern California.

A recent Saturday visit found only a handful of people at the site, so visitors probably can expect a more leisurely, quiet tour than at many historical sites in Marin and Southern Sonoma.

First stop at the adobe is a center with displays describing the history of the rancho and the era that spawned it. For the 25-cent admission price, an historical brochure is also provided.

Visitors can walk in and out of the adobe interior rooms which contain placards explaining the function of each room. Most of the inside has been furnished with typical furniture and work implements of the day. Rooms are screened off to keep visitors at the threshold.

Downstairs are rooms where grain was stored and ground, where weaving was done and where candles were dipped. Upstairs are the ranch manager's apartment, guest quarters and the rooms the Vallejo family used when not staying at their main home in Sonoma. Most of the rooms are dark and cavelike, a reminder of the hardships of life in early California.

Even the more elegantly-furnished Vallejo apartment, with its chandeliers, carved sofas and tables, strikes the visitor as a crude attempt to bring gentility to the frontier. The bedroom, for example, was something of a dormitory, crowded with beds to accomodate the entire Vallejo family.

The rancho's main function was to raise cattle for tallow and hides. A horned cow and her calf in a nearby corral gives the visitor a feel for that side of ranch life. There are also a donkey, chickens and a goat on the premises.

Vallejo only farmed the rancho for a short time and then began leasing it out to other farmers.

The adobe was not well cared for and began to crumble away until it finally was purchased by the Native Sons of the Golden West. Since 1952 it has been part of the state park system which has conducted its restoration. It is also a national historical landmark.

After the tour, it's time for a picnic on one of the nearby sunny hillsides, perhaps on a blanket or one of the tables provided. It's wise to bring your own food since the closest restaurants and stores are miles away.

The adobe and its park are reached by taking the highway 116 exit from Highway 101 in Petaluma which leads to Casa Grande Road. The landmark is about three miles down Casa Grande. Bicyclists can park their cars near the 101 exit and pedal in. Racks are provided at the park.

The site is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily except for holidays. Admission tickets are also good on the day of purchase for admission to historical buildings on the main square of the City of Sonoma and to Vallejo's home, "Lachryma Montis," just outside the city.

Marin Court Suit Seeks $2 Million

A Mill Valley woman, complaining she was recruited for a phony talk show that turned out to be a coffee commercial, sued for $2 million yesterday.

Carol Simon, who works in the Marin County Personnel Department, said she was fooled into taking a day off from her job and driving through a rainstorm to Hillsborough.

The Marin Superior Court suit said Miss Simon was walking at the Town and Country Village shopping center in Strawberry last November when approached by Young and Rubicam International, an advertising agency, and invited to appear on camera with Mary Tyler Moore and Hope Lange.

She asked if the show involved a coffee survey but was told it did not, according to the suit which does not state how she came to ask.

So she agreed to appear but it was a commercial for Sanka coffee.

Miss Simon's suit, filed by San Rafael attorney Jacobs, asks $1 million damaged for emotional distress, humiliation and insult to her dignity and $1 million exemplary damage.

Named as defendants are Young and Rubicam, General Foods Inc. and Fanny Flagg, who hosts the commercials.

Psychiatric Examination Is Ordered

A psychiatric examination of a young San Franciscan who severely beat a Tiburon woman was ordered yesterday in Marin Superior Court.

Richard Gordon Jimenez, 23, was told to return to the court of Judge Charles Read Best on Sept. 12 for sentencing.

Jimenez pleaded guilty yesterday to feloniously assaulting Barbara B. Taber on Feb. 28 and stealing her stereo, furs, jewelry and car.

During a preliminary hearing, Mrs. Taber testified Jimenez, an acquaintance, beat her so severely she had to be hospitalized 10 days.

She suffered three skull fractures, a broken nose and several broken ribs and required 131 stitches, she said.

Bolinas Drops Constable Plan

A proposal for an elected constable for Bolinas was dropped last night from a community plan being developed by the Bolinas Planning Group, according to group coordinator Rex Rathbun.

Members of the group agreed to work for closer relations with the Marin County sheriff's department rather than elect an independent law enforcement officer, Rathbun said.

Also discussed was a proposal for a lottery system to select applicants for new home construction in the village. Under the community plan, which is still in draft form and subject to change, residential growth would be limited to six new homes a year.

School Board Votes Budget For Nicasio

The Nicasio School District board has adopted a $62,746 budget for 1974-75, relatively unchanged from last years $62,000 spending program.

No change was made Monday when the board held a public hearing on the publication budget, according to Beverly Alberigi, district secretary-bookkeeper.

Mrs. Alberigi said the district cannot estimate its 1974-75 tax rate until it obtains assessed valuation figures from the county. The district's current tax rate is $1.71 per $100 of assessed valuation.

But since assessed valuation throughout the county has increased over last year, the tax rate should be lower than this year, she said.

The final budget is $6,646 higher than the preliminary budget approved in May, and includes a 10 per cent salary increase for all employees for the coming fiscal year.

More than 35,000 small hydroelectric power stations have been built in China during the past 15 years, according to a Peking Radio report heard in Hong Kong.

Errant Attorney Not Entitled To Demand Fees, Judge Rules

An attorney who did not see his client's case through to the end is not entitled to a fee, a Marin Municipal Court judge ruled today in small claims court.

Lawyer William H. Stephens of Sausalito walked out of court with only $42.30, not the $500 he had asked.

Stephens sued Ann Goldberg of Napa, saying she owed him money for working on lawsuits for her involving a child support case and money owed by her ex-husband.

But Mrs. Goldberg countered by telling Judge Gary W. Thomas that Stephens let her down several times and deserved no fee.

Specifically, she said the attorney once assured her he had obtained a delay in a case, but told her to go to court anyway. When she got there, Stephens was the only one not present and no delay had been granted, Mrs. Goldberg said.

On other occasions, he showed up late in court, failed to serve notice of a hearing on an opposing attorney and neglected to obtain a promised financial statement from Mrs. Goldberg's ex-husband, she said.

Finally, due to an illness of his son, Stephens left the case, forcing Mrs. Goldberg to hire another attorney and wait an additional year for the case to reach the top of the court calendar again.

Mrs. Goldberg said she paid a total of $872 to Stephens, including one check for $495.

But the San Rafael law firm of Bagley, Bianchi, Hoskins and Rosenberg, to which Stephens belonged at the time, has been dunning her, claiming she never paid the $495, she said.

She produced a check, endorsed by Stephens, who said he would see that the money was forwarded to his old law partner.

Thomas ruled Mrs. Goldberg owes Stephens not $658, as he claimed, or $500, the small claims court limit, but $42.30, the cost of serving some legal papers on Mrs. Goldberg's ex-husband.

Nixon Names Meskill To Court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Connecticut Gov. Thomas J. Meskill was nominated to the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals by Richard Nixon only hours before Nixon announced he would resign as President.

The nomination yesterday now goes to the Senate Judiciary Committee, which will hold hearings on the lifetime appointment to the court, which includes the states of Connecticut Vermont and New York.

Ziegler Gives Press Applause In Farewell

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ronald L. Ziegler, President Nixon's controversial press secretary, bowed out last night with an accolade for the "diversity and strength of the American free press."

In an emotional valedictory from the podium in the White House press center where he had stood under fire so often for the past 5-½ years, Ziegler told reporters, "We've been through many difficult times together and historic times. Whatever our differences, I know there are no simple answers.

"I take away a deep sense of respect for the diversity and strength of this country's freedom of expression and for all of you in the press."

"It's been an honor to be here," he added, his voice breaking.

"I've been proud to be President Nixon's press secretary over he last 5-½ years.

"I've tried to be professional and I've never underestimated the energy or intelligence" that the press brings to its job.

Ziegler, 34, was the youngest press secretary in White House history.

He began his career as a press spokesman during Nixon's 1968 presidential campaign and took the press secretary's post after the election.

He fared well until the reelection campaign of 1972 when he found himself lashing back, mainly at the Eastern press for Watergate scandal revelations.

In April, 1973, when Nixon forced the resignations of his two top aides, H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman as Watergate began to unravel, Ziegler, with some humiliation had to come out and tell reporters that everything he had said on Watergate for the past 10 months was "inoperative."

The word "inoperative' stuck with him the rest of the way.

But Nixon absolved Ziegler of any involvement in Watergate, and gave him the additional title of assistant to to the President.

Carnival Slated

A children's carnival to raise money for the Muscular Dystrophy Association of America will be held tomorrow from 12:30 to 4:30 p.m. at Belvedere Park, San Rafael Avenue and Beach Road in Belvedere, according to organizer Kathy O'Grady.

Campaign Reform Bill Is Approved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Almost unnoticed amid the furor of the President Nixon's resignation, the House overwhelmingly passed a campaign financing reform bill to halt fund raising abuses like those in 1972 presidential election.

The bill, approved 355 to 48 less than two hours before Nixon announced his resignation, would set limits on political contributions, restrict candidate spending, provide federal subsidies for presidential conventions, elections and primaries, and establish a new six-man board to enforce the new campaign rules.

The bill now goes to a conference committee who will reconcile differences with a measure already passed by the Senate.

The bill limits Presidential candidates to $10 million total expenditures for a primary and $20 million in a general election. The entire $20 million for general election expenditures would come from a fund financed by the $1 tax checkoff o federal income tax returns.

Night Clerk Stares Down Hotel Burglar

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — "Go ahead and shoot if you want to," William G. Brammer, night clerk at the Pedicord Hotel told a would-be robber pointing a gun at him yesterday, demanding money, but getting no cooperation.

The startled bandit, in his 20s, ran from the hotel without a cent. Brammer is 75 years old.

Terra Linda Publisher Is Retiring

Eric Colby, publisher of the weekly Terra Linda News for the last 11 years, has announced his retirement from the newspaper post.

"I have been in this business for 11 years and I'm retiring," said the 37-year-old Colby, declining to elaborate on the move.

Named acting publisher of the Terra Linda News is Stuart Strong, 59, of Berkeley, the newspaper's former general manager. Strong, a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley, joined the paper in 1966 as a circulation, advertising and promotional consultant.

Strong previously has held a number of newspaper jobs, including a stint as night circulation manager of the San Francisco Examiner.

Strong also will act as publisher of the weekly San Rafael Pointer, a sister publication of the Terra Linda News.

Escape Tolls Are Plastered To Inmate

FAIRFIELD (UPI) — Solano County jailers found escape tools, a cutting wire and pliers, in the ankle cast of inmate Wilbur K. Perryman and halted his attempt to saw through his bars.

They said he suffered the broken ankle in a prior escape attempt.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

CHALKING A FEW LAST TIRES — Mill Valley's parking enforcement officer Molly MacGowan marks the tire of a motorist who is likely to get tagged if he doesn't watch out. In a few weeks, Molly will give up her route for ranch life in Northern California.

Meter Maid Will Exchange Her Uniform For Overalls

By REBECCA LARSEN

Molly the meter maid is leaving Mill Valley.

However, that doesn't mean that drivers won't get tickets anymore if they don't drop nickels in their meters.

But as of the first week in September, their citations won't be made out by Molly MacGowan, who's been writing those tickets since 1967.

Actually, Mrs. MacGowan doesn't like to be called a meter maid, she's really the city's parking enforcement officer. "Meter maids have little or no knowledge of the function of parking meters but I can repair the meters and collect the money too," she said.

On various occasions she also serves as radio dispatcher, police matron, clerk and police department tour guide.

At one time or another most people who have been in downtown Mill Valley on a weekday probably have seen Mrs. MacGowan in banks, spit curls and blue uniform, cruising the streets in her yellow buggy on motorcycle wheels.

At the end of August, she and her 5-year-old daughter, Ginger, are moving to her mother-in-law's cattle ranch in Etna, Siskiyou County. Her husband, Jack, is already there.

Jack MacGowan recently developed an arthritic-like disease that caused numbing of his hands and his doctor advised him to give up city life, smoking and drinking and to get away from it all for awhile.

So the MacGowans decided to close up his Texaco station in San Rafael and head for the ranch for at least a year.

Mrs. MacGowan had hoped to take a leave of absence but the city turned her down.

But the MacGowans are renting rather than selling their Mill Valley home in hopes of returning someday.

It will be a big change of pace for Mrs. MacGowan to switch from meters, cars and motorcycles to chickens and cows and the wide open sapces.

"I love my job and I'm very happy and content but you have to love your family more," she said.

Big changes in lifestyle are nothing new to her.

When she came to Mill Valley after her marriage, she gave up eight years of fast-paced international travel as a chorus line skater in the Ice Follies and Holiday on Ice.

"All my friends in ice skating said then that I would never be able to stand it, that I'd have to come back. But I can adjust to change more rapidly than most," she said.

One thing she'll really miss, Mrs. MacGowan said, is the regular chance to skate at a San Francisco rink. "I guess we'll have to build our own rink up in Etna."

Was she a strict, law-and-order-type meter maid during her Mill Valley years?

Probably, she admits.

"It's my philosophy that if you go up to a meter and break the law by not putting coins in, then you deserve a ticket. Before I got this job, I was like everyone else. I used to think, 'catch me if you can.' But on the other side, I can see that meters really are there to help in circulating traffic."

They also pick up a tidy bit of change for the city.

Mrs. MacGowan, for example, has collected some $30,000 annually from the meters alone.

And that doesn't count the parking fines from the thousands of tickets she's written while patroling the highways and byways of Mill Valley watching for little red "expired" flags.

Golden Gate Board Ignores A Report

Golden Gate Bridge District directors yesterday thanked an organization of accountants for criticizing the district's long-range financial projections, then dismissed the matter.

The Accountants for the Public Interest, a nonprofit national organization, had objected last month that the projection gives directors too little information to tell them the impact of major expenditures on future finances.

The finance-auditing committee listened to a brief presentation by the organization, but accepted its staff's rebuttal that the projection is reliable and that a more detailed version probably would not justify the huge extra work.

The district staff defended its financial projections by pointing to the results of last fiscal year's budget, when bus transit expenditures of $8.8 million were seven tenths of one per cent under budget and total expenditures were 5.9 per cent under budget.

The committee also received a report that new steel cables being put on the span will last 60 to 80 years, roughly twice as long as the original ones, because of thicker galvanizing.

In other business, directors recommended addition to antiskid devices to 30 new buses on order, bringing their cost to $63,877 apiece.

Ross Town Council Adopts A $48,105 Budget For Year

The Ross Town Council last night adopted a $407,780 budget for 1974-75, up $48,105 from the past year's.

Major increase was for employee salaries, a 7.8 per cent raise. Town attorney and town clerk will receive $5,000 each, an $800 raise.

The tax rate, however, will roll back to the 1970-71 level at $1.66 per $100 assessed valuation, noted Councilman John H. Chase, explaining that increased assessed valuation of Ross property will raise tax bills sufficiently to allow the rate decrease.

"We're saved again by new construction of homes and reevaluation of property," he said prior to the budget vote.

Salary and retirement raises account for much of the budget increase, but Chase added that police and fire department gasoline was budgeted 50 per cent higher than last year.

Major budget items include police department, $93,253, up $13,006; fire department, $65,317, up $3,253; general government, $59,317, up $4,092; parks and boulevards, $56,117, up $3,440; street department, $39,656, up $9,283; capital expenditures from reserve fund, $29,270, down $13,573; and storm drains and flood control, $25,599, up $2,675.

The council withheld approval of the tax rate until it receives final figures from the county assessor's office.

The Ross Town Council also:

TOWN PARK — Approved a tentative master plan for a 1.7 acre town park with sports courts east of the Ross Post Office, to apply to the Marin Municipal Water District for a meter permit before an Oct. 31 deadline.

PAVING — Approved recommendation of Town Engineer Roy H. Hoffman to pave Wellington, Baywood and Madera avenues in Winship Park and Laurel Grove Avenue from Sir Francis Drake Boulevard to Skyland Way. It called for bids before the next meeting.

THROWAWAYS — Adopted an ordinance to ban house-to-house distribution of unsolicited advertising circulars and shopping newspapers.

HOMEWIRING — Introduced an ordinance to ban home electrical wiring by amateurs.

PARK BOND — Refused State Park Bond Issue funds, designating that the town's share go to the county.

MURKY CREEK — Requested a letter be sent to the Marin Municipal Water District to investigate source of gray sludge in Corte Madera Creek, on a resident's complaint.

NEXT MEETING — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Aug. 19 at town hall to approve tax rate.

Plans Rejected By Design Board

The Tamalpais Design Review Board last night rejected plans by a Mill Valley construction firm for 13 condominium townhouses on Shoreline Highway west of Pine Hill Road.

The board agreed that the project proposed by Broughton-Horne Co. is too dense and suggested that it be reduced to eight units, according to board member Curry Eckelhoff.

In other business, the board approved plans by Dr. Elliott Brender for a 16-foot-diameter geodesic dome to be built on three acres at the end of Midvale Avenue. The dome will be used as a greenhouse.

Petaluma School Budget Adopted

Budgets totaling more than $12.3 million for the Petaluma high school and elementary districts have been adopted by the Petaluma Board of Education.

District business officials estimated yesterday that the board's action Wednesday night will mean a tax rate of $2.21 per $100 assessed valution in the elementary district, an increase of 35 cents over last year's rate.

In the high school district the rate is expected to be $1.97 per $100 assessed valuation, down seven cents from last year's rate of $2.04. The figures are subject to change when the final property assessment rolls are received.

As approved, the high school district budget is $9,185,171, compared with $7,646,428 last year. The elementary district budget is $3,129,221, compared with $3,100,539, last year, according to Supt. Lesly H. Meyer.

The bulk of the budget increase will be financed by increased federal and state revenues plus increased assessed valuation on local property, district officials said.

There was little debate as the budget was adopted during a routine business meeting.

The Petaluma Board of Education also:

KELLER — Approved promotion of Mathew Keller, dean at Petaluma High School, to vice principal at Rancho Cotate High School. Keller is a 13-year veteran in the district's math and science departments.

COMMITTEES — Appointed advisory committees to help board members formulate spending if a proposed tax rate maximum increase measure is approved by the voters Nov. 5, the high school panel will include teachers Thelma Dungan, Steve Curtin, Sharon Graham, parents Ned McFaddenn, Betty Wilson and Sandra Orme, classified staff representative Clara Miyano and a student to be named later; the elementary committee to include teachers Leonard Svinth, Helen Kole, Bud Heth, parents Beryl Skuse, Carmen Harris, Shirley MacDonald, Kathleen Buchholz, Marie Mogel and Craig Miller and classified representative Joseph Infanger.

Novato Planners Slate Meeting

The Novato Planning Commission will have a public hearing on plans for a neighborhood shopping center at San Marin and San Andreas drives at 8 p.m. Monday at the Novato Community House.

The commission also will consider a tentative map of a nine-lot subdivision at the end of Hickox Road.

Only Mazda and the cars from Rolls-Royce have engines warranted for 50,000 miles or 3 years. Ever wondered why yours doesn't?

Mazda is so sure of its rotary engine that we guarantee it with a warranty only the cars from Rolls Royce can match.*

Why are we so sure?

To begin with, it's so much simpler than a piston engine. It has fewer moving parts, so there's less to go wrong.

And it's a proven engine. Today, there are over three-quarter of a million rotary-engine Mazdas on the roads of the world.

Why don't other piston-engine cars offer a warranty as long as ours?

*Mazda's non-transferable warranty is free on all new rotary-engine Mazdas sold on or after March 26, 1974. Mazda warrants that the basic engine block and internal parts will be free of defects, with normal use and prescribed maintenance, for 50,000 miles or 3 years, whichever occurs first, or Mazda will fix it free.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Any individual, firm or agency who plans to build or place a structure in, on, under, or over the navigable waters of the United States must first obtain a permit from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. Such Permits are also required for any dredging, filling, or dredge disposal in navigable waters. Regulations governing the administrative procedures on permits for activities in navigable or ocean waters were published in the Federal Register on April 3, 1974 as 33 CFR 209.120.

Navigable waters are any waters which are, have been, or can be used for commercial or navigation purposes. Federal permit authority extends over the entire surface of such a water body. Thus, any work in areas presently or formerly subject to tidal action (below the plane of mean higher high water, including unfilled areas behind dikes) or below the ordinary high water mark of rivers and streams may require a Corps permit.

The Federal Corps of Engineers permit is required in addition to any State or local permits. Private ownership of land under or beside the water has no effect on the requirement. If work is done in navigable waters as described above without a permit from the Corps, civil or criminal actions (including removal) can be instituted pursuant to 33 U. S. Code Secs. 406, 407, and 1319. Any questions regarding permits for work in navigable waters may be directed to the Regulatory Functions Branch, San Francisco District, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, 100 McAllister Street, San Francisco 94102, telephone: (415) 556-5178 or 556-5489.

THE ROAD WAS FULL OF TWISTED TRUCK

When a truck about a half-block long overturns on a busy freeway approach, it is bound to attract at least a small crowd of onlookers like the people shown here at this crash scene on the overpass south of San Rafael, between Highway 101 and Highway 17. The California Highway Patrol said the rig, filled with steel scraps went into a skid shortly after 7 p.m., yesterday struck a cement wall and overturned. Truck driver Benito Tanuz, 20, of El Cerrito was not injured in the accident.

Dollar Drops On World Markets

LONDON (UPI) — The dollar declined slightly on world markets today as traders realized profits piled up when the currency rose in anticipation of President Nixon's resignation. The price of gold improved.

It dropped to 2.59 marks in Frankfurt compared with 2.5975 marks last night. It slipped in Zurich to 2.9590 Swiss francs compared with 2.9790 Swiss francs yesterday. It also inched marginally downward in London, Tokyo and Brussels.

Mill Valley Board Asks For Help

The Mill Valley Library Board last night asked the city's art commission to help choose and present art exhibits hung in the library gallery, according to head librarian Thelma Percy.

She said that in the past the library has not screened the artwork hung in the gallery but the board now would like the art commission to help set standards for choosing among pieces of art.

Upgrading Of Amtrak Approved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has approved legislation to upgrade the nation's rail passenger service (Amtrak), including the addition of basic Amtrak service to five states ignored when the system first began operating.

On a voice vote, the Senate yesterday amended the Amtrak legislation to extend passenger service to Boise, Idaho, Sioux Falls, S.D., Manchester, N.H., Portland, Maine, and Des Moines, Iowa.

The amendment's sponsor, Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, estimated it will cost $14.7 million to institute Amtrak service to Boise and $23.2 million to implement the other routes.

Another key amendment to the bill, which is expected to cost at least $265 million, will reduce the cost states must absorb to have additional Amtrak service. The amendment, by Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., will cut from two-thirds to one-third the losses from the line that must be paid by the states.

Included in the legislation, passed 75-13 and sent to a conference committee, are a number of changes to force the Department of Transportation to study better methods of serving all parts of the country, especially rural areas. Sponsors said they hope to integrate other modes of transportation, including bus lines, into the Amtrak system.

Ames Appointed Forest Park Head

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

For Most Pleasure Its Best To Plan Retirement Early

Retirement is becoming a way of life for many of the 10 per cent of our population over 65. But the sudden shift in lifestyle will be less traumatic if the retiree knows what to expect and how to get the most out of his last years, which is why it is important to start retirement plans early.

Retirement today means many different things to different people. The pessimist sees it as a termination; the optimist views it as a beginning; harassed executives usually welcome the period as an end to corporate responsibility. For the majority, however, it offers a chance to refine and develop individual interests and talents to find a second occupation or to turn a hobby into a well-paying business.

NONE OF THESE options is possible if the person is in poor health or has a chronic ailment. Unforeseen social, economic and emotional changes are always possibility, as are the same problems a person suffered from during his working life. This should be emphasized because personality problems, feelings of inferiority, mood disorders and other difficulties may ruin an otherwise happy period of life. Depression and boredom should absolutely be avoided. Be reamining active many retirement problems can be solved.

Planning for retirement should begin when the individual is in his early 50s. Many people who have planned ahead often leave their jobs before the mandatory retirement date. In some industries, management sets up counseling classes for these people. Almost everyone has a number of interests, but he or she must be encouraged to pursue them full-time after retirement.

OLDER PEOPLE are more than capable of functioning as important and useful members of society. Perhaps they feel too insecure to actively participate, but when encouraged and given the opportunity to work at their own pace, they usually surprise the younger generation.

SLOW TO WALK

T.E. writes: My first baby walked at 9 months, but the second baby who is now 15 months old has not started. Do you think it is because he has flat feet?

REPLY

Before they start walking, most children appear to have flat feet. But since most youngsters start walking before 15 months, who don't you get first-hand information on your child's physical and mental progress, along with the condition of his feet.

FAD NOTION

I.E. writes: Does white sugar dissolve the vital calcium in the body?

REPLY

No, despite propaganda of food faddists who advocate (and often sell) unrefined foods.

SALT, DIURETICS, EDEMA

J.T.M. writes: Can edema be cured through a low-salt diet?

REPLY

Yes, but it might take three or more months to do the job. Our modern diuretics act within a few days by encouraging the kidneys to eliminate salt from the body. In addition, digitalis may be needed when edema is caused by heart trouble.

MARRIAGE BLOOD TEST

B.L. writes: Is the blood test you have to take before marriage painful?

REPLY

A needle is inserted into a vein in the forearm to obtain a teaspoonful of blood. It stings for a moment, but few people complain.

VEGETABLE WATER

R. writes: I drink the water I cook vegetables in. Can this be harmful in any way?

REPLY

No. This water is loaded with vitamins.

ANTIBIOTIC ALLERGY

V.L. writes: Can a 5-year-old who is allergic to antibiotics and sulfa drugs survive to adulthood? What can we give him if he develops a severe infection?

REPLY

Yes, he certainly can survive. If you are a young mother, I can understand why you asked this question. Millions of persons lived to adulthood before World War II, when these wonder drugs became available. Not everyone died of infections back in those days, although patients who developed pneumonia or meningitis did have a rough time. Drugs to counteract reactions can be given if antibiotics or sulfa drugs are absolutely needed. And there is a good possibility that during his lifetime there will be many new antibiotics and antiseptics on the market that will not produce in him an allergic reaction.

HER ANKLES SWELL

Miss W. writes: I'm heavy, and my ankles swell after being on my feet all day. I sleep with my legs elevated on a cushion. Is this a safe thing to do?

REPLY

Yes, but it will not prevent swelling during the day. This symptom deserves investigation, even though the cause may never be found since many stout people are bothered by it. On the other hand, it may stem from a cardiac, liver or kidney disorder, or from a vein abnormality.

SACCHARIN

REPLY

Any food substance containing as little as one calorie theoretically adds to your weight. And, in this respect, all low-caloric food cannot be considered weight reducers.

DIGITALIS

REPLY

Yes, provided the rapid pulse is caused by a failing heart. Never exercise when the pulse at rest is 120.

Israeli Warplanes Attack Tent Camp

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Israeli warplanes swept into southern Lebanon today and struck at a tent camp used by Arab guerrillas as a concentration and supply point, the Israeli military command announced.

The air attacks were the second in three days. Israeli planes hit targets in the same area on Wednesday, killing two Lebanese civilians and woundin at least 17 others.

There was no immediate report of casualties in the strike today.

Arab newsmen in the region said today's air attacks concentrated on the hills and farming areas around the villages of Rashaya el-Fukha and Khreibe —the same section which were hit in two separate raids Wednesday.

The military command in Tel Aviv said the Israeli warplanes struck for 15 minutes at the camp and two houses in Rashaya el-Fukha. It said the camp and houses "are known to be a supply and concentration point" for the guerrillas.

The command said all planes returned safely.

The Wednesday raids came less than 24 hours after armed infiltrators from Lebanon kidnaped four Israeli Druze villagers. An armored Israeli patrol crossed into Lebanon in pursuit and returned with six Lebanese captives.

The Israeli command said the Druze had been taken to the two houses hit in the raid today.

Israeli political leaders have become increasingly vocal in warnings to the Arab world that Israel is prepared to meet another Middle East war in the face of continuing weapons buildups, especially by Syria.

"We must prepare (for war) in the face of these threats," Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin said Tuesday.

Belvedere Plans Selection Of New Manager

The City of Belvedere will take applications until Sept. 1 for candidates for city manager and hopes to choose a replacement for William L. Cavalli by Oct. 1, Vice Mayor Thomas S. Price said today.

Price and Councilman Stuart C. Cullen will review resumes to pick finalists who then will be interviewed by the city council after Sept. 1.

Price said he doubted whether those interviews would be held publicly.

Resumes of the top candidates interviewed recently for the city manager posts in San Anselmo and Fairfax also are being reviewed, Price said.

It's Hockey Time In Marin County

It's time for the Marin Amateur Hockey Club to start its operations for the 1974-75 season and it's no simple thing for the parents and other adults involved.

The yearly cost, for instance, is $15,000. The money has to be raised each year, so there's always a fund raiser or two going on to supplement the yearly charge to families with children in the program.

Cost to parents in Little League programs is usually $20 per child. Cost in the ice hockey program is $90.

A MAJOR REASON for the higher expenses in junior hockey programs is the cost for ice time, the money needed to pay an owner of an ice arena to close its doors to the public to allow kids practice time. There is no way ice time can come cheap in California.

From September through February, the teams of the Marin Amateur Hockey Club practice on Saturdays on their home ice at Raydine's Ice Rink in Corte Madera. Their home games are played at Raydine's on Sundays.

"IT'S EXPENSIVE," says club president Richard Popson, of Mill Valley, an advertising executive in San Francisco. "There's the cost of ice time, insurance and use of team equipment."

Among the fund raisers are sales at the Sausalito Flea Market, selling T-shirts and jackets, skate swaps, and collecting proceeds from a performance of the Ross Valley Players.

Despite all the hard work by the officers and parents of the hockey club, Popson feels there is a lack of public awareness that such a program even exists.

There is a reason for this. The average fan can see kids playing baseball on just about any diamond in Marin County on his trip to the super market. The kids are out in the open for all to see. Unless you drive to Raydine's on Saturday or Sunday, there is no hockey to be seen. It's different in cold climate areas where there are kids hockey games on frozen over lakes. Here in California, junior ice hockey will remain a secluded sport.

THERE ARE six teams in the Marin program, ranging from 8-year-old Mites to 14-year-old bantams. In between are 10-year-old squirts and 12-year-old peewees. They compete in the Northern California Junior Hockey Association and play 24-game schedules from mid-September through February, traveling in an area from San Jose to Sacramento.

So far it's a "boys only" program, but that is not to say the girls will remain left out.

"We're in the process of trying to find out how many girls are interested," said Popson, adding that if girls were involved it would be on separate teams since ice hockey is a contact sport.

LITTLE LEAGUE lost its fight to bar girls from competing but hockey and baseball are entirely different sports. The hockey people hope they don't get involved in a similar situation.

"If the situation arose, I don't know how I would handle it. That's one problem we don't have yet," said Popson. And additional problems are something the hockey prez can do without.

Rozelle's Role Is Prolonging Strike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The role of National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle in dealing with player grievances has become a major stumbling block in the negotiations in the 40-day old pro football strike.

As negotiations resumed today, Rozelle's authority and several other "freedom issue" demands by the striking players apparently hold the key to settlement of the prolonged sports deadlock.

The government's chief labor mediator, W.J. Usery Jr., called the NFL players and owners together for a joint session at 10:30 A.M.(EDT) after he conducted an intensive 12 hours of talks yesterday.

"I'm going to make every effort in the hope that an agreement can be consummated today," Usery said before the session.

He said, however, "there still are some serious problems to be solved."

Apparently the major hangup around settling the strike seems to rest more on the owners side than the players, according to some sources. Throughout yesterday, Usery shuttled from the headquarters of the NFL Players Association to the hotel where the owner's Management Council is staying trying to resolve their differences.

"I think progress is being made," Usery told newsmen.

At the conclusion of the long bargaining talks of Wednesday, Usery said he intended to bring both sides back to the bargaining table, but spent most of the day meeting separately with both sides in an informal campaign to achieve a settlement.

A major hitch shaped up over the union's submission of a legal draft of a proposed new player contract agreement that the owners viewed as presenting entirely new demands.

It was learned that the language of the new standard contract would call for a full year's pay to a player who was unable to play because of disability or found his career ended by being cut. Another provision in the contract would specify that if a franchise was moved from one city to another, every member of the club would be free to negotiate a new contract.

There were these other strike developments:

—The Washington Redskins disclosed that 6,152 ticket holders have asked for refunds for their game with Houston Friday night. This was approximately one-third of the 19,600 tickets sold in advance. The opening pre-season game between the Redskins and New England Patriots last Friday drew only 16,403 paying customers—the smallest pro football crowd in the 14-year history of Robert F. Kennedy stadium.

—Veterans continued to drift back to training camps. Foremost among them was quarterback Joe Ferguson of the Buffalo Bills. Others reporting yesterday included defensive lineman Joe Jackson with the New York Jets and running back Reece Morrison with the San Diego Chargers.

—And some veterans drifted out as 13 Cleveland players walked out together and Pete Athas and Rocky Thompson, who joined the New York Giants two days ago, suddenly disappeared yesterday.

Mild Applause Is Mixed With Scattering Of Boos

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

President Nixon's resignation announcement last night was greeted with generally mild applause mixed with a few boos in sports arenas around the country.

Correspondents at five major league baseball games and a World Football League game in Jacksonville, Fla., agreed that the cheers out-numbered the boos. But they agreed the cheers were only a little more or less than had a home run been hit.

The WFL game between the Hawaiians and Jacksonville Sharks was held up about 15 minutes for the president's speech which was broadcast over a loud-speaker atop the scoreboard. The crowd broke into long, sustained applause when Nixon announced his resignation.

In Houston, the crowd attending the Atlanta-Houston baseball game applauded mildly when Nixon made the announcement and there were some boos when the president said Vice President Gerald Ford would be sworn in at noon Friday.

"A baseball game seems insignificant at this time," commented Bob Rowland, a fan at the Atlanta-Houston game. "But my two children would have killed me if I hadn't come."

There was a smattering of applause at the moment of the announcement in Kansas City and Detroit. In Arlington, Tex., and Pittsburgh, reporters said the applause was obvious but not boisterous.

Many fans listened to Nixon's speech on transistor radios while others left their seats to listen to the speech in their cars.

Marinwood Seeks Trip To Series

SANTA ANA — A victory tonight against a team they have already beaten once will send Marinwood-Lucas Valley to Gary, Ind., for the Senior Little League World Series.

Pat Lee, with three wins behind him on the baseball tournament trail, has been named by manager Sesto Lucchi to pitch against Lennox, Los Angeles County, tonight at 7:30. Lennox, which lost to Marinwood Wednesday, 2-1 in extra innings, defeated Portland, Ore., 4-1 last night to stay alive in the double-elimination, western regionals. Portland and Las Vegas have been eliminated.

As the only undefeated team in the tourney, Marinwood has two shots at the title to one for Lennox. Should Marinwood lose tonight, the teams will play a final game tomorrow.

Lee is well-rested. His last appearance was a complete game win over Lincoln Glen of San Jose in the Division II tournament last week at Cupertino.

The tourney winner will leave Sunday for Gary. The series starts Monday.

A's Rudi Dislikes But Accepts Label

Underrated Standout Paces A's Triumph

Rudi puts up with that tag but that doesn't mean he has to like it.

"I get tired of getting ink (newspaper coverage) about the fact that I don't get ink," the Oakland left fielder said last night after he had driven in five runs during the A's 10-2 rout of Texas.

"I hear that everywhere I go. I get kind of sick about it. Nobody ever writes about what I do on the field."

He went 4-for-4, including a double (he leads the American League in doubles with 30) and his 13th home run.

"He is not underrated to the guys who know baseball," Dark said. "I hear that about him a lot, but to the guys who follow the game he is certainly not underrated."

Rudi's home run, a solo shot to left, boosted Oakland's lead to 3-0 in the fourth inning last night, and, with the A's leading 6-2 in the sixth, he produced a bases loaded double that drove in three runs.

The victory gave Oakland a 2-1 series edge over Texas, with the A's two wins being onesided affairs. And the tone of last night's defeat left Ranger manager Billy Martin more than upset.

Texas made only one official error, but the Rangers made several other mental errors including shortstop Toby Harrah's decision to throw to the plate with runners on first and third instead of going for what appeared to be a certain inning ending double play ball.

"It was the worst game we have played since I have been managing this ball club," Martin said. "They made all sorts of mental mistakes. I told the players that after the game. And that's not all I told them."

Astrology Follower Schlee Shares Lead

Floyd, Green Are With Him

CLEMMONS, N.C. (UPI) — John Schlee, a man who studies the stars for favorable signs, Ray Floyd, another of the tour's expectant fathers, and Hubie Green, a winner of money but not major titles, lead the PGA championship going into today's second round following opening 68s.

But just one stroke back, in a group of six which includes defending champion Jack Nicklaus, is that amazing 62-year-old, Samuel Jackson Snead.

Samuel Jackson revelled in the conditions which were suitable for duck shooting but not championship golf and said, "If I'd putted like this I could have won three or four times pretty easily this year."

Snead went out when Tanglewood's 7,050-yard, par 35-35-- 70, course resembled a quagmire following heavy overnight rain. A light drizzle when the first threesome went out did not help conditions, but when the rain stopped Schlee, Floyd and Green made their challenges.

Joining Snead and Nicklaus at 69 were Tom Watson and Leonard Thompson, who won on tour for the first time earlier this year; South African Open Champion Bobby Cole, and Eddie Pearce, a man still waiting to pick up that big check.

Tne men were bracketed together at even par 70, including Jim Colbert, playoff winner of the American Golf Classic, and Mexico's Vic Regalado, who broke into the winners' circle last week at the Pleasant Valley Classic.

Schlee found eight traps with his driver, but he stayed out of the rough and came home with nines of 35-33. "I can't honestly say I was pleased with my round and at the way I was hitting the ball."

But Schlee putted well, including a monster 40-footer for a deuce at the par-3 seventh, and made four birdies against two bogeys.

"My signs show that this should be a pretty good week for me," said Schlee, a Gemini who is co-author of a book combining astrology and golf. "But if the signs had been bad, I'd just know I'd have to try harder."

The signs were not in Schlee's

ANGUISH — Arnold Palmer watched in anguish as his putt failed to drop on the 18th green yesterday during the first round of the PGA Championship at Clemmons, N.C. Palmer, who finished the round two over par, has never won the PGA.

Preservationists Cause Die-Off

With deer season now here, a number of questions keep arising as to the status of the fallow and axis deer now located in the Point Reyes National Seashore.

To give you some background, probably 25-30 years ago Dr. Mailliard Ottinger of Inverness brought a few (17 in number) of these deer to his ranch at Inverness where he released them. Since that time, the population of these exotics has reached the 1,000 mark.

In five years, the Fish and Game Department expects the herds to probably reach a population of 2,000 animals. At present, there is no shooting of these deer except for a sample study of a few specimens for diseases, reproductive rates, stomach samples, growth rate, etc.

WHEN IT COMES to deer and the environment, a little knowledge can be a dangerous thing, and when only a little knowledge is applied to a complex biological problem, disastrous results can be expected even from the most well-meaning groups and individuals.

A case in point is the recent die-off of whitetail deer in the Great Swamp National Wildlife Refuge in Morris County, New Jersey. This 5,000-acre low woodland area was once proposed as the spot for a metropolitan jetport.

The local citizenry rose en masse, and the Great Swamp ended up as a national wildlife refuge, and a good one. It's located almost within sight of New York City, and surrounded by urban development and large estates.

The deer herd has prospered on the refuge, and also on private lands. Through this protection the herd has now grown beyond the ability of the land to support it.

Two winters ago the state and federal biologists suggested a controlled hunt to remove about 150 deer to prevent over-browsing on the refuge, crop and shrubbery damage on the outside, and to reduce the number of deer-car accidents around the refuge.

The logic of taking a percentage of the deer to reduce the herd was biologically sound. However, the preservationists rose to the occasion, and through hysterical appeals to "save the deer" and legal maneuvers, they succeeded in getting a court injunction to prevent the hunt.

THE DEER HERD continued to grow unchecked, and this past fall another professional biologist's suggestion was to remove about 150 of the approximately 600 deer in the national refuge. Again, the anti-hunting group, through legal technicalities, succeeded in blocking the hunt.

The day of atonement arrived recently when the refuge and state personnel found seven deer which died of starvation. Observations on the remainder of the herd showed it in poor condition, and census work immediately began to survey the vast refuge for additional dead deer.

Why had the deer died so late in the winter and into early spring? Over-browse and deterioration of the range were the culprits. By carrying an excessive population of whitetail deer on the Great Swamp National Refuge, the deer required more browse than was available to sustain the herd.

Every red cedar tree on the refuge was bare of leaves to a height of five feet. The wild blueberry and other succulent brush was eaten back to the unpalatable stubble. It was obvious to anyone viewing the area that the deer simply could not find enough to eat.

In situations like this, the weaker and smaller deer are first to die, then the herd starts to deteriorate physically, and finally, if conditions become severe enough, the entire herd can be lost!

The simple truth is that if this herd had been reduced in number, as proposed by the biologists, the deer would not have destroyed the range, and a healthy herd would have existed. Should the deer continue to die in Great Swamp, at the rate they did last week, more deer will be lost to the agony of starvation than would have been taken by hunters.

Amateur Ross Boxer To Cuba

Paul Sherry of Ross, a Golden Gloves winner who finished second in this year's national amateur boxing championships, will represent the United States in his weight class at the World Amateur Boxing Championships beginning Aug. 18 in Havana.

Sherry, a 22-year-old broadcasting major at San Francisco State College, was offered the trip to Cuba when Ray Leonard of Palmer Park, Md., winner of the nationals, hurt his hand sparring. Sherry lost a decision to Leonard in the final bout at Knoxville, Tenn., in June.

Sherry won the San Francisco Golden Gloves tournament in April after reaching the finals in two of the preceding three years. He fights at 139 pounds, the junior-welterweight class.

He leaves Sunday for Miami Beach, where the U.S. team will assemble. On Monday they'll fly to Jamaica for a one-day vacation, and on Tuesday they'll arrive in Havana.

Sherry's family is not accompanying him because "Cuba doesn't let anybody in. You've got to be invited by the government to get in there.

"I have no idea what to expect," the softspoken Sherry said yesterday. "This is my first exposure to international competition; I'm just going to go down and see what happens."

Every major country will be represented in the championships, which will run through Aug. 30.

Tickets For Kaiser Golf Play

The Terra Linda Holiday Inn box office and Macy's in San Rafael will be among the Bay Area ticket outlets for the Kaiser International Open golf Tournament scheduled Sept. 23-29 at Silverado Country Club in Napa.

THE MARIN AUXILIARY of the Florence Crittenton Services will present the first Crittenton Golf Tournament. Proceeds will benefit the children's services organization.

Entry fee is $75 for the 18-hold tourney slated Aug. 30 at 12:30 p.m. (shotgun start) at Marin Golf and Country Club.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Zisk Thinking About Home Run

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Richie Zisk was thinking home run last night but Jon Matlack was keeping his thoughts to himself.

Zisk tagged Matlack for a game-winning homer in the last of the ninth inning to give the Pittsburgh Pirates a 4-3 victory over the New York Mets and a sweep of their three-game series.

The sweep kept the Pirates within striking distance in the National League East, moving them to within 3½ games of St. Louis. But the losses were costly to the Mets, who are now 9½ games out.

Matlack showed the strain after the game as he told reporters, "You can ask all the questions you want but you won't get any answers — not one word."

Zisk, naturally, was much more talkative and he said he was thinking homer all the way.

"This was one of the very few times that I've gone to the plate thinking homer," Zisk said.

The Pirates are now 55-57 and they think they're ready to make a move in their bid for their fourth division crown in the last five years.

Manager Danny Murtaugh said, "I said all year that we have to get to .500 before we make a move and it feels real good to be this close. Our starting pitching has been all that we could hope for (Jerry Reuss' six-hitter was the team's 36 complete games) and now we're getting the timely hitting."

In the other games, Atlanta blanked Houston 1-0, Montreal edged St. Louis 3-2 in 13 innings and Philadelphia nipped Chicago 2-1.

Expos 3, Cards 2

Hal Breeden's bases-loaded single in the 13th inning handed Montreal the victory over St. Louis. The Expos tied the game in the ninth inning on a two-out single by Barry Foote. Bob Bailey singled and was sacrificed to second to start the 13th inning rally. Two walks then set the stage for Breeden's hit.

Phils 2, Cubs 1

Dave Cash's seventh inning single lifted Philadelphia over Chicago. Ron Schueler pitched six-hit ball for seven innings and Gene Garber finished up for his first save.

Braves 1, Astros 0

Ron Reed pitched a three-hitter and Marty Perez and Darrell Evans hit back-to-back doubles to lead Atlanta to the victory over Houston.

Angels 6, White Sox 4

Lee Stanton and Doug Howard, inserted as pinch-hitters late in the game, drove in four runs with a pair of singles apiece and Frank Robinson chipped in with a pair of doubles to spark the Angels' victory over the White Sox.

Brewers 5, Red Sox 3

Darrell Porter drove in two runs with a homer and an infield out to pace the Brewers over 17-game winner Luis Tiant and the AL East division-leading Red Sox.

Tigers 4, Indians 3

Errors by pitcher Tom Buskey and first baseman Tom McCraw enabled the Tigers to score three runs with two out in the ninth and defeat the Indians.

Twins 3, Royals 2

NOT IN TIME — Jose Cardenal of the Chicago Cubs slid safely into third base ahead of the throw to Phillie third baseman Mike Schmidt in the third inning last night in Philadelphia. Cardenal took the base on a wild pitch by Ron Schueler. (UPI Telephoto)

Golden Gaters To Get Back Star Roy Emerson

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Golden Gaters apparently will have playing coach Roy Emerson back in the lineup should they land in the World Team Tennis playoffs as expected.

Emerson has been gone almost two months from the Gaters since he had made business commitments prior to the founding of the team tennis league. But a spokesman said yesterday it appears the veteran Australian star will be available for playoff action.

The playoffs are scheduled to open in the Oakland arena either Aug. 19 or Aug. 20 against the West Division team with the best record, probably Denver.

Major League Expansion Studied

Combined AP & UPI

NEW YORK — Some sample arithmetic, such as one lawsuit plus one irate congressman plus two leagues, adds up to four new major league teams — Seattle, Washington, D.C., New Orleans and Toronto — for the 1976 baseball season.

A lawsuit in Seattle, which wants another franchise by 1976, and Rep. B. F. Sisk (D-Calif.), using the leverage of congressional action in behalf of Washington, D.C., have put the American League in the position of virtually being forced to expand in 1976.

On the last day of the winter meetings here yesterday, the National League took the first step toward joining the AL in a 1976 expansion.

The National League owners unanimously passed the following resolution:

"The National League President (Chub Feeney) has been instructed by the league to appoint a committee to prepare an expansion plan for the league's study to be reported to the league no later than the 1974 winter meetings, with special emphasis on consideration of cities of major league size with stadiums of major league capacity, either now existing, under construction or where commitments for such stadia are available."

In addition to Washington and Seattle, the only two cities currently meeting the resolution's requirements are New Orleans and Toronto.

GOLF

Floyd, winless since he took the 1969 PGA crown, sacrificed distance for accuracy and 9elected to slide the ball to the right to avoid the rough, a rough77o tough that "no man, even Nicklaus, can get out of it without penalty."

Floyd will become the latest "father" on the tour when his wife presents him with his first born next month, and for this reason he's only played four of the last seven weeks. "But the rest did me good."

He started with a birdie, canning a 12-footer, gave the stroke back at the second but then made two further 20- footers and another from 12-foot during nines of 34-34. A bogey at the 17th cost him the outright lead.

Green, 27, came into the tournament after being "a 100 per cent bum," during a twoweek Florida vacation during which he left his clubs in the locker so he could swim, fish and play tennis.

"I made some putts and I missed some," said the man who already has won three times on the tour this term and over $160,000 to stand second to Miller.

Green birdied two of the last three holes to go with back-to-back birds at the fourth and fifth in nines of 34-34 which included two bogeys. He dropped two 20-footers and two from six-feet.

HELEN DOUGLAS
'Anything was justified'

Mrs. Douglas Looked For Senate Trial

FAIRLEE, Vt. (UPI) — Helen Gahagan Douglas, whose political career was cut short by Richard Nixon in 1950, said yesterday she was sorry the impeachment process had not proceeded to its logical conclusion in the U.S. Senate.

Mrs. Douglas, the wife of actor Melvin Douglas lost the 1950 Senate race in California to Nixon who two years later was chosen by Dwight D. Eisenhower as his running mate. The Nixon-Douglas campaign was one of the most bitter in California history, with Nixon tactics allegedly linking Democratic candidate Mrs. Douglas to Communist causes.

Yesterday, she emphasized she was more concerned about the long-range implications of the constitutional crisis.

Mrs. Douglas said an impeachment hearing in the Senate where Nixon would have been found guilty or innocent, "would have educated us as to what a president can do and cannot do; what a congress must do and must not give up . . . if we are to retain our freedom."

She said the continuation of impeachment proceedings would not be to further humiliate Richard Nixon — "that's dumb" — but to help Congress make the necessary corrections to prevent another administration operating above the law "as this administration has."

Mrs. Douglas said the Nixon campaign of 1972 followed the pattern of the California campaign of 1950 as well as Nixon's strategy in that state in a congressional race against Jerry Voorhis and his ill-fated campaign against former Gov. Edmund G. Brown — "anything was justified if it brought success."

Pig Farm Made Into Hog School

FORT WORTH (UPI) — For years A.L. Milner raised hogs on land near downtown Fort Worth despite protests from city officials who said the hog farm was an eyesore that detracted from the city's image.

A jury refused to convict Milner of violating any ordinances and Milner claimed he was a victim of harassment by a motel on a bluff overlooking his hog farm.

Ironically, the city now announced that the U.S. Department of Agriculture will construct a school for swine inspectors on the site of Milner's farm.

Israel Conductor To Head Opera

COLOGNE, Germany (UPI) — Israeli conductor Yuri Ahronovich has become general manager and chief conductor of the Cologne opera.

Before emigrating from the Soviet Union in 1972, Ahronovich directed Radio Moscow's Orchestra. In Israel he headed the Israeli Philharmonic after the late Istvan Kertz.

ALMANAC

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Today is Friday, Aug. 9, the 221st day of 1974 with 144 to follow.

The moon is between its full stage and last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn. The evening star is Leo.

British author Izaak Walton was born Aug. 9, 1593.

On this day in history:

In 1831, the first train in the United States to be drawn by a steam locomotive made a run between Albany and Schenectady, N.Y.

In 1945, more than half of the Japanese city of Nagaski was destroyed when the United States dropped its second atomic bomb.

In 1970, 54 U.S. citizens were among 99 persons killed when an airliner crashed in Peru.

In 1972, the death toll from Hurricane Agnes was officially set at 118.

A thought for the day: From Izaak Walton's "The Compleat Angler": "I have laid aside business, and gone a-fishing."

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Finesse In A Short Suit Should Be Postponed Or Even Forgotten

When your contract seems to depend on a finesse in the trump suit or in the longest side suit, you must usually take the finesse and hope for good luck. But when the finesse is in a short suit you may be able to put it off or even do without it altogether.

South's slam seems to depend on the club finesse. If West opens a club, South must try the finesse at once — going down when the finesse loses. When West makes a more favorable opening lead, South has another chance.

South wins the diamond with the king, draws trumps with the king and queen, and cashes the rest of his high cards in the red suits. The next step is to lead a trump to dummy's ace and return a heart from dummy.

When East follows suit with the jack of hearts, South should discard a club instead of ruffing. This discard cannot cost anything, for South must lose a club trick sooner or later even if the club finesse should win.

What can East return? If East returns a club, dummy gets a free finesse.

What would South do if East held the last heart and could safely lead it? Or what would South do if West had Q-10 of hearts instead of Q-7, so that he could safely overtake the jack of hearts and take East out of the end play?

South would then fall back on the club finesse. He would be no worse off for having tried the end play. The end play is a free ride. If it works, the slam is assured.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠- A 5 3 2
♥- 9 8 3 2

♣- A Q 4

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one spade.

Avoid a double raise when you have four very small trumps. Bid a suit of your own first and raise partner's suit later.

John Dean Refuses Comment On Nixon

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — John Dean, who played a major role in the downfall of President Nixon, would not comment on Nixon's resignation.

Two Murdered In East Palo Alto

EAST PALO ALTO (UPI) — Authorities today tried to solve the deaths of an alleged drug dealer and his girl friend who were found shot to death in his home.

The victims were identified as James E. Dixon, 51, and Gwendolyn L. Lockett, 18. San Mateo County sheriff's deputies said Dixon was known as the "drug king of the peninsula."

The bodies were found yesterday after an acquaintance called police when they failed to answer his telephone call.

Calcutta Faces Water Shortage

CALCUTTA (UPI) — Calcutta, a city of more than eight million people, is faced with a drinking water shortage, health officials said yesterday.

An official said Calcutta has "virtually run out of its stock of alum'" needed to purify water drawn from the Hooghly River.

Calcutta's normal consumption of drinking water is estimated at 105 million gallons per day. Municipal authorities cut down the supply last week to 70 million gallons a day because of the shortage of alum.

Wallace Will Not Knock Nixon Now

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Gov. George C. Wallace, who only a week ago described himself as "a victim of Watergate," said last night President Nixon's resignation was a "national trauma that transcends individuals or past political acts."

Wallace, crippled by gunfire while seeking the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination, watched Nixon's televised address in a hospital conference room crowded with reporters and cameramen.

Wallace has been confined at University Hospital since Monday when doctors operated to remove what was described as a minor abscess that stemmed from an undissolved surgical stitch.

Wallace was reminded that the Watergate probe had indicated that $400,000 of the money not spent by Nixon in his 1968 campaign had been sent to Alabama for use against Wallace in his 1970 gubernatorial effort.

"Frankly I would prefer not to talk about that at this time," Wallace said. "I think the trauma the nation is going through tonight (yesterday) transcends any individual or past political actions.

"It is a sad night in American history for any president to resign," Wallace said only seconds after Nixon completed his televised address. The governor was seen wiping his eyes a number of times during the President's speech.

"I had always hoped and prayed that the President would be successful in solving his problems," the governor said, "But I accept his word that his resignation is being done in the national interest.

"With an orderly transition, we will show the world that this nation can transfer power without stress and without disorder," Wallace said.

RESIGNATION SPEECH

Even Foes Didn't Gloat As Nixon Said Farewell

NEW YORK (UPI) — Richard Milhous Nixon went before the American public and wrote his political epitaph on the medium he despised and feared during his long political career.

If it had not been for the White House horrors, Mr. Nixon's last televised appearance as 37th President would have taken place in all the pomp and glory of an outgoing statesman.

Mr. Nixon leaves Washington in disgrace, the first man to resign from the presidency in the 198-year history of the republic. His departure by helicopter also would be televised, the coup de grace to his tragic career.

But make no mistake about it, last night's historic 16-minute address —made before one of the largest audiences ever assembled —will be remembered by all who saw it and retold to future generations.

"We are not likely to see this again in our lives," said John Chancellor of NBC, "a president resign from office.

Critics, of course, will cite the indequacies of the speech. Nixon did not admit his guilt or his abuse of presidential power. And he did not discuss his own personal corruption.

But he did stress his search of world peace, which historians may evaluate as his contribution to mankind. And above all, this speech told his fellow Americans and world there can be peaceful change in a country that has been criticized for its violent streak.

As CBS's Dan Rather said, Nixon brought a "a touch of class, a touch of majesty" into living rooms of the world. He did not whimper, he did not cry and he did not attack.

It was certainly a marked contrast from his Checkers speech of 1952 and his bitter vow to the news media after his defeat for the governorship of California: you won't have Dick Nixon to kick around anymore.

Television has to be praised for its role during the final hours before Nixon stepped down. There was no smugness or victory smiles on the armada of newsmen who prepared the nation for the resignation.

Television, which has brought this nation its share of assassinations and funerals, presented a soothing effect. Network anchormen, Walter Cronkite, Eric Severeid, John Chancellor, Howard K. Smith and Harry Reasoner, did their job in a highly professional way. One only had to look into their eyes and know that all will be well. There will be a United States tomorrow.

But there was a lesson for those who watched:

"The American people," said Chancellor, "are living up to their responsibilities and learning to live with tragedy."

It is worthy to note that Rather of CBS —one of the White House's toughest critics —seemed almost on the verge of tears after the President said he would become Mr. Nixon at noon today. How odd a love-hate relationshiip these two combatants had.

There was one moment of bad taste before the resignation. Someone as a prank drove a moving van across the television screens. But there was little the networks could do to prevent this.

Papers Comment Runs Gamut From Nixon Praise To Criticism

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The country's major newspapers screamed Richard M. Nixon's presidential epitaph today in banner headlines evoking past national tragedies.

Editorially, their comments ran the gamut from praise of Nixon's foreign policy achievements to criticism of his "muted appeal to the American people."

The New York Times, a longtime Nixon critic which abandoned its usually conservative headline style to proclaim "Nixon Resigns" in type as big as that used for President John F. Kennedy's assassination and the first U.S. landing on the moon, criticized the President's resignation speech.

"The events that have been exposed under the generic name of 'Watergate'... represented a profound subversion of American democrtaic institutions ....

"This is really what was going on at the pinnacle of government, in the White House itself; and this, along with all his other violations of the law, is what Richard M. Nixon resolutely refused to acknowledge —or even refer to —in his muted appeal to the American people over the air waves last night," the Times said.

The Washington Post, which won a Pulitzer Prize for its coverage of the Watergate scandal, said in an editorial that it now was up to the new President, Gerald R. Ford, to enforce standards of presidential conduct.

"At no time in the country's history, has the standard of acceptable conduct of the presidency been so clearly defined or so widely subscribed to. This standard will now be Mr. Ford's to uphold and enforce," the Post said.

The Los Angeles Times, a Nixon supporter during both presidential elections, said Nixon failed to understand the problem when he said in his speech that he was leaving office because of a lack of support in Congress.

"His resignation was required not by the loss of support in Congress, as he suggested, but by his admission of impeachable offenses. He clings to the thought that he somehow could have won 'personal vindication,' while only in passing conceding some wrongdoing, apparently unaware of the seriousness of the things he did," the paper said.

The Chicago Tribune, a staunchly Republican paper which supported Nixon's reelection in 1972 but later called for his removal from office, pointed to the tragedy of the resignation.

"Our feelings toward Mr. Nixon must be of sorrow rather than anger, and of mercy rather than vengeance. His weaknesses are more of blind ambition and poor judgment rather than deliberate contempt for the law," the Tribune said.

The Boston Globe, whose front page headline was superimposed over a fainter printing of the opening words of the Preamble to the Constitution, said "ex-President Nixon ... has done the right thing at last."

"Most sincerely and with much appreciation of the travail he has gone through, we now wish him well as he returns to private life," the Globe said.

The Atlanta Constitution said, "Congress and the nation should now consider the options available to them —balancing justice against vindictiveness, for example, and making a serious and sincere attempt to support Gerald Ford as he assumes the burdens of the presidency."

Nixon Talk Heard By 130 Million

NEW YORK (UPI) — President Nixon's resignation speech last night probably had the largest television audience in U.S. history, according to the National Broadcasting Co.

The NBC Research Department estimated that 130 million Americans watched some part of the President's 16-minute resignation broadcast on the three commerical networks and on public broadcasting.

According to the last census, there are about 211 million Americans in the United States.

Additional millions watched the speech live in Europe through the facilities of Eurovision, the European multinational television facilities, or by delayed broadcast.

The telecast of the first man setting foot on the moon on July 20, 1969, had been the previously most watched show with an estimated 125 million persons viewing the event in the United States.

Nixon Wept Just Before TV Address

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — President Nixon "broke down in the White House last night and cried unashamedly" before announcing his resignation, the New Orleans Times-Picayune reported today.

In a dispatch from Washington correspondent Edgar Poe, the Times-Picayune said Nixon gained control of himself just before he walked into the White House Oval Office to make his nationwide television address.

While briefing a group of Congressmen on his decision, Poe said, Nixon "sat in the chair and wept. A group of strong men wept openly with him."

Poe said Nixon told the Congressmen, "This is my last night in the White House. You are my friends. Don't think I let you down."

A Settlement In City Cab Strike

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Mayor Joseph L. Alioto early today announced settlement of the strike by the city's Yellow Cab drivers.

The terms of the pact, hammered out after nine hours of talks, were not announced, pending ratification by the drivers.

Although there was no chance the city's cabs might be on the street until early next week, the drivers agreed to pull pickets out of Oakland, San Jose and Daly City immediately.

Four A-Rated Bonds That Will Yield 9%

By ROGER E. SPEAR
AND DAVID R. SARGENT

Q. Would you suggest several bonds rated A or better, maturing in 5 years or less, which yield 9 per cent or more? — A.S.

A. Certainly. Here are four A-rated, NYSE-listed issues which meet your criteria: Abex 8¾s of 1977, Appalachian Power 9s of 1975, Avco Financial 8⅞s of 1977, and Southern Natural Gas 9⅛s of 1976. All four issues are selling below par to yield 9.1 per cent to 9.6 per cent currently. Interest and fixed charges are covered adequately, within the perimeters of the various industries. Your yield to maturity or total return per invested dollar will be from 10 per cent up to 13 per cent.

Q. What is your opinion of Citicorp's $5,000, 15-year notes? How safe are they? — J.S.

A. After considerable opposition from the Savings & Loan and Savings Bank industries, these controversial floating rate notes were finally marketed July 24. Citicorp's original $250 million offering was raised to $850 million but later modified to $650 million and made nonrefundable before June 1, 1976, as a concession to an industry plagued by worries of disintermediation. Since disintermediation — the withdrawal of savinos deposits to other forms of investments offering more attractive returns — reduces monies available for mortgages, this is no minor concern to the government. In the meantime, Chase Manhattan has readied a $200 million similar issue and Crocker National is planning to market $75 million in 20-year floating rate notes. Should other banks rush into the market with similar offers, a drain of possibly $4 billion could be imposed on thrift institutions. With mortgage money already tight, this new form of debt offering could diminish the possibility of significant recovery for the housing industry.

As far as the safety of these instruments is concerned, you should bear in mind they are unsecured obligations of the issuing banks and DO NOT carry FDIC or FSLIC insurance. Thus the reputation and standing of the issuing bank is of prime importance in determining the safety of these notes.

Hewlett Named To Board Post

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — William R. Hewlett, president and chief executive officer of Hewlett-Packard Co., has been elected to the board of directors of Utah International Inc., according to chairman E. W. Littlefield.

Co-founder of Hewlett-Packard Co., the Palo Alto-based electronics firm, Hewlett also serves as a director of a number of other companies, including the Chase Manhattan Bank and the Chrysler Corp.

Utah International, with principal offices here, primarily is involved in the development of mineral resources in the western hemisphere and Australia, ocean shipping and land development.

Coal Gasification Contract Awarded

LOS ANGELES (BW) — Fluor Engineers has received a contract from Natural Gas Pipeline Co., Chicago, to serve as engineering contractor for its proposed coal gasification facility to be built in Dunn County, North Dakota.

The coal gasification facility will be designed to produce 250 million cubic feet of synthetic natural gas daily from about 35,000 tons per day of North Dakota lignite.

On Natomas Board

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — Directors of Natomas Co. have elected Dean B. Lewis vice president-legal, general counsel and secretary to the corporation and a member of its board of directors.

Prices Dip On Stock Exchange

Analysts said the market virtually ignored President Nixon's resignation, having reacted to it on the upside during the first three sessions this week amid rumors that his departure was imminent.

Profit taking on the gains earlier this week was evident, as it was during yesterday's sessions when the Dow Jones industrial average slipped 12.67.

Analysts generally agreed that for the near term the market would be influenced more by progress the new administration makes in getting inflation under control.

Most active issue was Marcor Inc., rising ⅛ on volume of more than 112,000 shares.

Eastman Kodak led the chemicals lower with a drop of 2. Dupont slipped 1 ¼.

In the oils, Texaco, Atlantic Richfield and Getty dropped ½ each. Kerr McGee gave up 1 ⅛.

Rails, airlines and aircrafts turned mixed. In the electronics Burroughs, Motorola and Honey- well lost more than a point apiece.

Prices were mixed in dull trading on the American Stock Exchange, with 204 issues higher and 191 lower. Volume totaled 590,000 shares. Syntex was the most active issue, up ¼ to 38¾ on 16,700 shares.

Saving Water

NEW YORK (UPI) — Any U.S. city could reduce water consumption by 35 per cent by switching from a flat rate to metered water rates, Rockwell International says. Rockwell is the nation's largest maker of water meters.

IGNACIO HILLS — New apartment complex of 189 units, plus tennis and other recreation facilities, is celebrating its grand opening for the rest of this month. It is located at Ignacio, across from the Pacheco Plaza Shopping Center. Developer is Duffel Financial and Construction Company of Concord.

Land Developers Borrow Sales Idea From Yachting

NEW YORK (UPI) — Land developers in resort states like Florida and Colorado have borrowed a sales idea from the yachting world.

For several years now, leading yacht brokers have been selling big boats to yachtsmen who have the time to cruise them only four to six weeks a year. The brokers rent the craft to other people much of the rest of the year. Profit on the rentals in divided between the owner and the broker. This enables many a yachtsman to keep a boat much bigger than he could afford otherwise.

The same plan now is being used in resort real estate by such companies as Marriott Corp., Golf Hosts International, Inc., and the operator of the Sea Pines, S.C., resort.

Marriott has obtained permission of the state to sell 200 rooms of the luxury Essex House hotel facing Central Park in New York as resort rental units. The other 579 rooms in Essex House will be maintained for hotel operations. The Sea Pines company is doing much the same thing. Marriott is using a similar plan at its Camelback Inn resort at Tucson, Ariz.

But Harvey Jones's Golf Host International, Inc., started out with this idea. It is developing condominium resort rental projects near Tarpon Springs, Fla., and at Durango, Colo. The one in Florida is called Innisbrook; the one in Colorado, Tamarron. "This is quite a switch from the usual condominium selling method," Jones told United Press International.

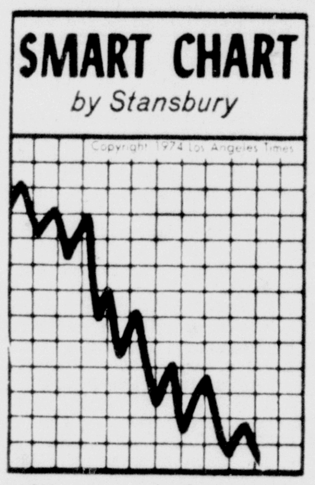
"The key to our operation is running a good resort profitably," Jones said, "not just selling off condominium units. We have to stay around and do a good job year after year. If we do our job well, everybody shares in the profits."

Profit in 1973 was $12 million.

Innisbrook is primarily a resort for people who play golf but swimming, fishing and boating are available and tennis will be added. The Colorado project at Durango is oriented to golf and skiing but tennis, horseback riding and trout fishing are available.

The condominium units at Innisbrook sell for $52,000 to $114,000 and those in Colorado from $38,000 to more than $100,000. Mortgages run 25 years. The current interest rate in Colorado is 10 per cent with a one-time three-point bonus and the Florida rate is 9.5 per cent plus two points.

Jones believes this condominium rental unit plan may be the wave of the future in the luxury resort business.



"We must do better at guessing tops in interest rates and bottoms in markets."
